

Clubdom Lay Corner Stone When Building Is Completed

"Behold, I lay in Zion for a foundation, a stone, a tried stone, a precious corner stone, a sure foundation."—Isaiah, 28-16.

The Omaha Walking club is original to say the least. Their new cabin completed, they now proceed to lay the corner stone. "We do things our own way regardless of convention," explained Edwin Jewell, charter member of the club.

The laying of the corner stone and dedication of the club house at Wiley Point, east of the Boy Scout camp in the Fontenelle forest reserve, will be held this afternoon following the usual Sunday walk. The start will be made at 3:15 p. m. from Jewell Place station on the Fort Crook and Bellevue interurban, continuing through the forest to the cabin, under the leadership of Miss Emma Knight.

Norman Weston, physical director of the Y. M. C. A., will serve as master of ceremonies. Following the dedication new members will be initiated, after which supper will be served.

A camp fire "sing" will be a feature of the evening program. The fireplace, round in shape is built in the middle of the room and will accommodate about 40 people at its immediate hearth and as many more in the second circle according to Mr. Jewell.

"The club is booming," says Mr. Jewell. The membership is increasing and all are bursting with enthusiasm, he states. The average attendance of Sunday walks is from 70 to 94 and on Saturday afternoon, from 40 to 50. Miss Allie Houston is president of the club, which was organized to promote outdoor recreation and for the civic purpose of acquainting the public with the natural beauties surrounding Omaha, and to impress upon all the necessity of preserving these rare beauties.

Past Matrons Club of Western Nebraska.

The Past Matrons club of western Nebraska elected the following officers at their annual meeting in Masonic hall, North Platte, October 6. President, Mrs. Clara Hawthorne of Kearney; vice president, Mrs. Lillian Clabough, North Platte; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Edith Wagner, Gothenburg; chaplain, Mrs. Alice Reed, Arnold; reporter, Mrs. Floy Daul, Elm Creek. The club includes all chapters in the state west of and including Grand Island. It is hoped that all chapters in the district will be represented at the next annual meeting to be held in Kearney, October 1922.

Proceeding the business meeting the visitors were entertained at luncheon by local members in the Masonic hall.

Behind the Scenes With Puppets

"In all the lack-luster of realism we stood on the bridge at midnight. Four of us stood on the bridge and we were very weary," states the author.

Thus spoke Helen Haiman Joseph, well-known puppeteer and authoress of the marionette. It was the bridge of the marionette stage over which the puppeteer had been tending for hours, rehearsing the little wooden-headed actors on the floor below.

The puppeteers shown in the picture are five of the seven who will appear at the Brandeis October 28, afternoon and evening, under the Drama League auspices, with Tony Sarg's little marionettes.

Much of the joy and reward of being a good actor must be relinquished by the puppeteer. Her work is truly a work of art for art's sake. The inanimate little figures on the stage below receive the attention, the applause, the praise of the audience, although the voices, emotions, gestures and very soul are supplied by the nimble-fingered artist on the bridge above through the myriad strings that control the marionettes.

All of them agree that their work though arduous, is thrilling and fascinating. To operate these puppets is an occupation of great responsibility, as some of them have as many as 24 strings, and pulling the wrong string would ruin the entertainment.

Be Tactful If You Would Be Happy

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

Remember that when you accept the shelter of another person's home you automatically put yourself for the time being at least on the social level of your host and hostess. This is a prerequisite of our American notions of hospitality.

To be sure, in countries where elaborate systems of aristocracy prevail the host goes to all sorts of pains to show his sense of social inferiority to an important guest who deigns to accept his hospitality. In the Orient this custom is especially prevalent, and in medieval England—and to a certain extent to the present day—kings and nobles are expected to retain their marks of social rank even within the threshold of their host. They used to be feasted on a table raised higher than that of the ordinary guests and they had special dances that the host and his family did not indulge in.

But in this land of ours we are never expected to do this sort of homage to our guests. If the president of the United States should honor you with his presence you could do him no greater honor than to receive him at your own board and offer him the general fare.

Remember this fact when you go visiting your poor relations or friends in humbler circumstances than yours. Remember that in accepting their hospitality you have accepted their mode of living for the time being.

If your hostess has to wash the dishes after meals, you, if you are a woman, should never betray the possible fact that you were unfamiliar with the intricacies of that art, but should graciously offer to assist and should do your share in this work unless you see that your presence in the kitchen would be positively unwelcome.

The man guest should not feel himself exempt from some service in the servile household. I know of a western lawyer, who has since become a governor, who to this day is remembered throughout a certain district where he spent many of his vacation days as a youth because he always used to take a hand at carrying out the dishes after supper in the houses which he visited. Some of the old

Federated Club Notes.

Mrs. E. B. Penney, Fullerton, vice president of the Nebraska Federation of Women's Clubs, was honor guest at the opening meeting of the York Women's Departmental club Monday evening, October 10, in the parlors of the Methodist Episcopal church.

The club reports a membership of 240.

Talks were given by Mrs. Penney and Mrs. E. E. Welch, state chairman of literature. The president, Mrs. S. A. Meyer, presided.

The Community Service department of the club, Mrs. J. W. Little, leader, met October 12, at the Y. M. C. A. "What Women Can Do to Better the Conditions as Found in the Court," was the subject of a talk given by Judge George F. Corcoran.

Society section of the Bee all the news about the folks you know.

Women who remembered this got out and cast their votes on election day for this man. They never had taken the trouble to do so before, though their state had had suffrage since 1890. It is in extremely bad taste to dress more elaborately than your host or hostess when enjoying their hospitality. If you are in far better circumstances than they it may be necessary to wear clothes more expensive than theirs, for you may have no others; but they should never be more elaborate. Never dress in evening dresses when this is not the custom of the household where you visit.

Social Settlement

An average of 300 children were entertained at the Social Settlement house during the month of September. The playground attendance daily was 212. There are 300 children already registered for clubs and classes, which will be opened within the next week. Nine hundred and seventy-three telephone calls were made during the month, 100 interviews were given, 95 visits and calls made and there were 29 visitors at the Settlement.

The work at the Settlement this year is under direction of Mrs. Ralph S. Doud, head resident; the Misses Lorena Knox, Helen Overstreet, Lucile Barnum, Helen Corr, Clara Swanberg, Thomas Myler, in charge of boys' work; W. I. Keedler, garden and playground. Several volunteer workers will also assist in clubs and class work.

The Friendly Visitors, Mesdames T. W. Carmichael, N. W. Graham, W. S. Knight, E. B. Ransom, A. J. Sampson, K. M. Snyder, N. K. Sype and Miss C. Scandrett are planning a Halloween party for mothers and youngest children of the Settlement.

Think of This

A woman who prepares the family meals walks two miles a day—without going anywhere! Just in the kitchen. Back and forth. An expert in home economics found it out by means of a pedometer.

How many miles would a man's size total for a woman's day if you include the sweeping, dusting, answering the telephone. And still more if there's any time left for shopping, calling or airing the baby.

No wonder a woman is tired at night (the reason for which no man can ever understand).

How much easier those miles would be in Cantilever Shoes! How much lighter the burden of the day's work. How much fresher and happier when the long winter evenings closes in!

Cantilever Shoe Shop

For the arch of Cantilever Shoes is flexible (not stiff as in all ordinary shoes). The shoe harmonizes with every step of the foot, the arch of which likewise is flexible. The Cantilever instep fits up snugly, giving restful support while it eases the movements of the foot. The heels are sensibly styled, the toes are just right to be comfortable and modish. "I feel like Winged Mercury every time I walk in my Cantilever Shoes," said a trained nurse to us.

There is a day of comfort and an evening of contentment for every woman, even though the work of the house be dreary, if she will only help her happiness by wearing Cantilever Shoes.
