Anniversary of Shenandoah Ends With Parades

Wedding Ceremony and Pageant With Cast of 600 Features Last Day of Celebration.

Shenanroah, Ia., Oct. 15 .-(Special Telegram)-A parade of progress in which early day and modern things intermingled a golden wedding anniversary, symbolical of Shenandoah's half century of his-tory, were features of the final day of Shenandoah's celebration of its feunding 50 years ago. The largest, prettiest, and most elaborate of the series of parades was held yesterday afternoon. Colonel George Castle. pioneer lawyer and civil war veteran, headed it as marshal of the day. Prize winning floats of other days participated.

The wedding celebration, in which Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Dalin took parts of bride and bridegroom, was solemnized in an outdoor theater before a crowd of 12,000.

The elaborate wedding ceremony was performed on a stage rich with was performed on a stage rich with autumn foliage and palms. It was an elaborate affair. Mrs. Frank Hoxie and Mrs. E. A. Moore, who were also 50 years old yesterday, were given place of honor in the parade. Charles E. Pickett of Waterloo gave an address following the wedding ceremony.

Eight turkeys, 40 chickens, 32 packages of sugar, 500 packages of gum and 800 pennies were given away when envelopes were thrown from the tops of store buildings to the scrambling crowd below.

The climax of the celebration was the mammoth historical pageant given by a cast of 600 actors in an outdoor theater built at Monument park. Scenes from early history of Shenandoah were shown as pages of a large book were turned. On one side was the reading and on the op-posite one appeared actors forming a living picture. The pageant was written by Miss Blanche Alden, Mrs, Helen Fischer and Miss Dorothy Fosket and was under their supervision, assisted by Mrs. George Gass Trainer. The history from the date of the buying of Iowa from the Indians was depicted.

Yesterday's crowd was the largest of the week and the interest shown in Shenandoah's birthday party was far beyond expectations.
