From the Jobless

Messengers of Hope

Since announcing our policy of running both help and situation wanted advertisements free of charge many competent employes have taken advantage of the offer.

Sixty-two enterprising job hunters offered their services yesterday. Help of any description can be located among this variety. All grades of skill are represented. The common laborer wants work of any kind, the overseas soldier states his qualifications, the high-salaried business executive offers real opportunity to some employer, while a pathetic plea is heard from the old man wanting work in exchange for
