Acts of Philanthropy Cited as Reason Why Institutions Should Not Pay Tax Levy.

Lincoln, Nov. 3 .- (Special.) - Ownrs of Omaha and Nebraska hospitals, not exempted so far from taxation under the new law, appeared before the state board of equalization and pleaded for exemption. Representatives of the John Mc-Lellan hospital at Omaha, a radium institution for cancer, declared that it should be exempted because in giving radiu mtreatment it was re-fleving the state of a duty which it really owed the public.

T. J. Doyle, attorney, pleaded for exemption of the Home for the Good of the institutions.

Similar declarations were made by representatives of the Matzen Sis-ters' hospital at Columbus; Sacred Heart hospital, Lynch, and Mrs. Lulah T. Andrews, chairman of the republican state committee.

"We are not objecting to paying taxes, but we understand the republican party is the only one assessed," Mrs. Andrews said.
"My understanding is that the democratic party has nothing left excepting some curbstone politicians,"

W. H. Osborne, state tax commissioner, said.

The board announced it would

A Wonderful Show produced by the "Wonder City of the West"

OU KNOW THAT in recent years Omaha has made such strides that in the commercial world it is named "The Wonder City of the West." "Hogs and Hominy," in the language of one Omaha business man, is largely responsible, for that has made this city the center of a great community of agricultural producers and consumers. But manufacture has played its part. Indeed, it has contributed to this marvelous growth so rapidly and consistently that even the people of Omaha, immediate beneficiaries, are, on the whole, poorly informed as to the growth and development of these home industries.

You have some general ideas along these lines, but you do not know the wide and complete range which Omaha industry has been taking nor the fact that what you may now learn is only a hint of what the future holds for this line of endeavor. It is to tell you something of all this wonderful work that the "Made-in-Omaha" Show is to be given on the 8th Floor of The Brandeis Store, beginning Monday, November 7th, and continuing until Saturday, November 12th. You will be delighted with the attractive display and the beautiful arrangements on this occasion. It should be the duty, as well as the privilege, of every man, woman and child to visit this show. Today Omaha sells the products of about four hundred manufacturing establishments. These establishments represent an investment of almost a quarter of a billion dollars. Their annual output is probably half a billion. They give employment to 28,000 persons—thus justifying the statement made by one Omaha booster: "About half the people of Omaha are directly dependent for their earnings upon Omaha's factories." These employes draw salaries and wages amounting to thirtyseven million dollars per year.

With all this remarkable showing, what is the trouble? The people of other cities are awake to a fact of which many Omahans are ignorant—the fact that Omaha is rapidly taking its place as a manufacturing town.

What is the remedy? First, education through such articles as these and through the "Made-in-Omaha" Show. Second, Buy Omaha-Made Goods! Buy Omaha-Made Goods consistently and persistently. This is not charity, for Omaha can compete with the world in quality and in price. When you buy it in Omaha you increase the Omaha output and hence you increase the Omaha payroll. If you are in business you thus make more customers for yourself. If you are a homemaker you provide more and better opportunities for your boy and the boys of other homes.

When you buy it in Omaha you create a never-ending circle of good for yourself and for your neighbors. You build your city upon a rock that cannot be dislodged by financial storms or commercial disorder. You engage in the most practical and effective community service that could be devised. Putting your money into the pocket of your neighbor, it will return to you, in individual as well as in community prosperity, not in many days, but immediately.
