Romance in Origin Of Superstitions

By H. I. KING.

The Bride's Bouquet. Everybody knows the custom of weddings when, at the going away of the bride, she throws her bouquet over the stair-railing and there is a struggle among the maidens gathered below to see who will catch it. The one who is successful, the superstition is, will be the next one to be married out of the company. It is one of those superstitious practices which are indulged in with a laugh and a half-belief, and "I wonder if there's anything in it." But away deep down in the heart of the participants is the real belief that there is something in it" and the results are closely looked after, "just to see,"

The bride's bouquet superstition is merely an application of the primitive doctrine of contagious magic. The bouquet of the bride, coming fresh from the hands of the newly married maiden, is charged by contagious magic with her own personality which is largely, under the circumstances, HAVE a well secured second mortgage of $1,700, bearing 7.2 per cent interest that I will sell at a big discount for cash.
