

Body of Crippled Newsboy Taken To Plattsmouth

Funeral for Paul Stadelman, Killed by Unidentified Autoist, Probably Will Be Held by Masons.

Body of Paul Stadelman, 28, crippled Omaha newsboy, run down and killed Thursday night by an automobile at Seventeenth and Cuming streets, was taken to Plattsmouth yesterday for burial.

The funeral probably will be held from the Plattsmouth Masonic home, where Stadelman lived for the last seven or eight years, according to William Evers, superintendent of the home.

Paul Steinwender, deputy county attorney, announced yesterday that no inquest will be held into Stadelman's death. Both police and county officials, however, are looking for the motorist, who drove rapidly away after the accident, leaving the newsboy a moaning heap in the street.

"Any man who drives off after running down a pedestrian ought to be sent to the penitentiary for life," County Attorney Shotwell declared.

Newsboys of Omaha are raising a fund among themselves, in charge of Sam Ziegman, with which they intend to buy flowers for Stadelman's funeral and also offer a reward for the arrest and conviction of the motorist who fled after striking the crippled youth.

No inquest will be held into the death of Tom Barnett, negro, 1504 Burt street, who was run over by a freight train at Fifteenth and Izard streets Thursday night. Mr. Steinwender said. No witnesses to the accident have been found.

Mrs. M. J. Yeck, seventy-six and blind, streets, and Ralph Polk, 2427 Dodge street, both injured in traffic accidents Thursday night, were reported to be out of danger yesterday.

Mrs. Yeck was struck by a street car at Tenth and Howard streets, receiving injuries about the head and body. Polk was struck by a Peterson Bakery truck at Twenty-fourth and Dodge streets. His injuries were slight.

Inspectors Report on Good Shepherd Laundry

F. W. Kennedy, state secretary of labor, and John Larsen, factory inspector, have completed an inspection of the Good Shepherd convent, Fortieth and Jackson streets, at the request of 15 laundrymen of Omaha, to see whether the female and child labor laws, and sanitary and safety laws were being complied with at the convent laundry.

They have reported everything clean and sanitary, but recommended that numerous safety appliances should be put on the machinery.

They found 54 children, girls and women in two rooms employed in making shirts and overalls. Among them were 21 girls under 16. Two girls were in the line, one ill from heart disease and the other with fainting spells.

Between 50 and 60 girls and women work in the laundry, none of them under 16. The sister in charge stated there has not been an accident since she has been there.

Exhibit Visited By Record Crowd

"Made-in-Omaha" Show Is Thronged by Parade Attendees and Children.

Parade crowds thronged the "Made in Omaha" show on the eighth floor of the Brandeis store building yesterday, making it the biggest day in point of attendance since the show opened.

Kiddies out of school took advantage of the opportunity to view the exhibit—and gather free samples, especially of Omaha-made candy.

The miniature house exhibited by the Adams-Kelly company, complete in every detail of household furnishing, drew admiring throngs. Stoves, tires, woodwork, clothing, caps, shoes, candy, pastry, washing machines and furnaces give a small conception of the scope of the exhibit.

"I never knew that was made in Omaha" was an exclamation of surprise heard on every side and before almost every booth.

Scores of Omaha-made prizes are being distributed at nearly all the booths.
