Problems That Perplex

Flowers for Months.
There is a pretty myth in flowerland that while the carnation gives a flower opens up its petals and gives forth a little perfume to the newborn child. For each month a separate flower is appointed: January—Snowdrop.....Consolation February—Primrose.....Early Youth March—Violet.....Modesty April—Daisy.....Innocence May—Hawthorn.....Sincerity June—Wildrose.....Modesty July—Lily.....Purity August—Poppy.....Fidelity September—Morning Glory.....Contentment October—Hops.....Joy November—Chrysanthemum.....Joy December—Holly.....Foresight
And then in Jewelland there is a dedicated to babes born in that month.
The garnet is dedicated to January born to insure constancy, fidelity and true friendship.
February: The amethyst will provide those born in February with sincerity, peace of mind, freedom from care and trouble.
March: Those born in March should wear a bismuth to provide them wisdom with which to battle the world.
April: Diamonds, the emblem of innocence and happiness, should be worn by April born to save them from bitter tears and vain repentance.
May: If you would be a loved and happy mate, wear the emerald if May is your birth month.
June: The agate, which will command health, wealth and happiness for you.
July: To remain free from love's doubts and anxieties wear the glowing ruby.
August: To insure conjugal felicity wear a sardonyx.
September: A sapphire for the September born to keep the mind free from trouble and obsessions.
October: To cure the woes of October's child, the opal is the gem to wear.
November: The topaz, amber hue, is emblematic of true friendship and sweethearts.
December: The turquoise will crown your efforts with success.
Three Pals.—If you are so badly annoyed by men whenever you are on the street, I suggest that you confine your goings to occasions when you have a man with you, or an older person as chaperone. Are you sure you conduct yourselves in an inconspicuous manner? Girls of high school age are better at home nights than on the streets, anyway.
Edith: "A man is known by the teeth he keeps," said a doctor of authority. And old Sancho Panza said a diamond was not worth as much as a tooth. You haven't any idea the train of disease and trouble that follows neglected teeth.

Mrs. Hellman a Visitor

Mrs. Meyer Hellman of Baltimore is among the well-known women here for the 50th anniversary celebration of Temple Israel. As the wife of a pioneer citizen, she resided in Omaha more than 30 years ago, when she was a leader in the temple activities. Mrs. Hellman is mother-in-law of Rabbi William A. Rosenau, also of Baltimore, one of the leading rabbis of the country, and professor of Semitic languages at Johns Hopkins university.

For Old People's Thanksgiving.
Those who are planning to send Thanksgiving donations to the Old People's home, Fontenelle boulevard, are requested to do so this week.

Donations may be sent to the home or put in the barrels which have been placed in all the Buy Rite stores for the convenience of those who wish to contribute. Checks or supplies may also be sent to the following members of the board of trustees: Mesdames E. R. Hume, Isaac Carpenter, Ford Hovey, S. K. Spaulding, J. C. Hammond, C. C. Belden, Charles Tracy, H. I. Adams, Isaac Douglas, W. J. Bradbury, G. W. Wickersham, E. O. Loomis, A. D. Peters, G. A. Joslyn or Willis Todd.

For Mrs. Howell.
Mrs. R. Beecher Howell will be honor guest at a luncheon Friday given by Mrs. A. D. Dunn at her home. Covers will be laid for Mrs. Howell and the Mesdames A. V. Kinsler, C. W. Axtell, Lucien Stephens, W. F. Baxter, F. W. Heagy, Hester Cooper, V. Von W. Schulte and Miss Henrietta Rees.

Children's Party.
Miss Louise Smith and Miss Crystal Fay Pratt will entertain Friday afternoon for the 36 little pupils at the Pratt School of Individual Instruction. The party will be at 1 o'clock, and Mrs. E. A. Holyoke will be honor guest. Mrs. C. F. Pratt and Miss Sadie Smith are in charge of the arrangements.

What's What

By HELEN DECIE

Many girls reared without corrective social discipline do not seem to realize that it is almost as improper to visit a man by telephone as to make a personal call upon him. A well bred girl never makes advances of any sort to a man; all the eagerness should be on his side. When he is indifferent certainly telephone calls will succeed in arousing him, but to admiration but to disapproval. He classifies the caller at once with the "fool-girls" who only annoy the objects of their attention by conventional.

A man who is not a cad never speaks of his telephone hussies, because he would not be so base as to reveal to other men the extent of an ignorant girl's folly, but quite often he must be tempted to ask the guardians of a "fool-girl" to guard her better and to guide her more wisely. Etiquette and ethics are closely allied; there is moral sense as well as social propriety in teaching a girl that modest reserve is her most valuable asset.

Day Nursery Will Close Doors Saturday

For lack of funds, the Omaha Day Nursery will close its doors Saturday night. Six thousand dollars a year would keep it running. Mrs. William Archibald Smith, who was devoted to the nursery for several years before her departure, is now residing in California. Mrs. E. M. Syfert has been acting head since Mrs. Smith left a few weeks ago. Many generous offers are open from Omaha women, but they cannot be taken advantage of under the circumstances. Mrs. George Roberts has offered to furnish the third floor of the Kimball home on St. Mary's avenue, where the Day Nursery has been held, and Mrs. H. H. Baldrige has offered to give her time and services at the home in the capacity of executive, such work as was done by Mrs. Smith before her departure. More children are at the nursery now than have been in the history of the institution. They number about 35 daily. They are given medical examination before acceptance and are examined daily by a trained nurse. No contagious disease has ever broken out in the home. The nursery is designed to help mothers who must work. Some are widows, some have husbands who are ill. In all cases careful inquiry into the need of the applicant is made.

Personals

Francis X. Mulry has returned from Minnesota where he spent several weeks.
Miss Elizabeth Stewart of Lancaster, Pa., will arrive next week to visit Mrs. L. F. Crofoot.
Mrs. George Haverstick, who is spending the winter abroad, had left Paris and is in Spain, where she will spend several weeks.
Mrs. Campbell Fair of Baltimore, Md., has arrived to spend some time with Mrs. E. P. Peck and Mr. Peck. Mrs. Fair formerly resided in Omaha.
Mrs. John R. Hughes, national president, P. E. O., will attend the funeral services, Friday of Mrs. A. G. Peterson of Aurora, a past state and national president in the organization.
Mr. and Mrs. John C. Goodwin of Newcastle, Ind., left Tuesday evening for their home after a visit here with Mrs. Goodwin's parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. B. Kennard, at Fairacres.
Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hansen left last week for the east. Mr. Hansen is in Detroit on business, and Mrs. Hansen is making a visit at the home of her father, Allen J. Pratt of Coldwater, Mich.
Mrs. J. E. Baum and daughter, Miss Katherine Baum, arrived from New York Monday. They are taking an apartment at the Blackstone today, and will spend the greater part of the winter here.
Mrs. J. F. Lowe and daughter, Miss Grace Lowe, returned Friday from San Francisco. Miss Lowe has just returned from a two years' sojourn at Manila, where she has been teaching school. She expects to remain in Omaha.
Captain and Mrs. George Grundy will arrive Friday morning to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Calkin over the week-end. Mrs. Grundy is a sister of Mrs. Calkin. Captain Grundy was a lieutenant commander in the navy during the war, and he and Mrs. Grundy are on their way to San Francisco, where Captain Grundy will be stationed.

My Marriage Problems

Adapted from the New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"

The Reason Pa Cosgrove "Made a Break for It."
"Tchik! tchik! tchik! But dis is bad, bad, fery bad."

The round little proprietor of the roadside inn shook his head gravely as he looked at the wounded state trooper on the stretcher which Pa Cosgrove, Dicky and the twins were lifting from the car. Then he started for the house on a ludicrous-appearing but ground-covering trot. With a barked command to the young men in the place, another to a woman behind the counter at the rear of the room, he swiftly and efficiently engineered the placing of the tables for which Pa Cosgrove had asked, and the spreading over them of blankets and sheet which the woman produced as if by magic at the instant they were needed.

There was no lack of volunteers to help get the wounded man on the improvised bed. Indeed, the revellers in the room pressed so closely around the unconscious trooper that the proprietor energetically shoed them back to the corner of the room as if they were so many excited hens, and then went to the telephone, evidently to give the summons for the Kingston surgeon.

"Isn't it perfectly thrilling?" Bess Dean murmured to me as we leaned forward in the front seat of the car, watching through the windows the tense dramatic scene. "It's like being in a box at the theater."
I threw a furtive, appraising look at her. Yes, she meant exactly what she said. To her the whole thing was simply a part of a play. She was utterly indifferent to the fate of the wounded boy on the stretcher, and I added another mark to my score against her.

Who Is This Man?
My eyes turned to the broad windows again. I saw the burly figure of Pa Cosgrove stooping solicitously over the wounded boy. As he raised himself he shook his head doubtfully, and spoke to Dicky earnestly. But as was my interest in the unconscious youth, my eyes strayed as if drawn against their will to the tall figure of a man who had been stationed at a small table in the extreme corner of the room, and who had sat still, quietly observant through the bustle of bringing in the wounded trooper. At Pa Cosgrove's despondent shake of the head he rose slowly and advanced as deliberately to the side of the tables. There was something about him that compelled one's attention. One instinctively decided that here was no supernumerary in the drama, but one of the principal figures.

As he bent over the young trooper I felt a fantastic psychic impulse to spring to his side and snatch him away from the wounded man. I felt, somehow, as if his very presence was baleful, filled with evil possibilities. And yet there was not the slightest apparent reason for my feeling.

He was a distinguished looking man—one could almost apply the epithet "handsome" to him—of tall, commanding figure, and apparently open countenance. But I could not rid myself of the eerie feeling which had seized me at the sight of him, although I knew that never in my life had he crossed my vision before.

Trouble Close.
He, too, shook his head as he straightened himself after examining the figure on the stretcher. Then he beckoned the proprietor of the store to him peremptorily, and I saw him make an inquiring gesture toward the men of our party. It was a gesture that held in it insolent doubt, and I was glad that Pa Cosgrove had turned before he saw it.

"Mr. Jackie Jones, the cook lady says tell the master to order more Kellogg's Corn Flakes right away, because they ain't no more in the house since everybody's eating Kellogg's—they're so awful good!"

How Kellogg's Corn Flakes appeal to the most fastidious appetites! What a wonder-picture they make—all joyously tumbled and jumbled in a big bowl; sunny-brown, oven-fresh—the gladdest good-cereal you've ever tasted—or looked upon!

Kellogg's Corn Flakes are a revelation—palate-ticklers that bring the sunshine right into the breakfast room and get the day going all right! Never was such flavor as you'll find in Kellogg's; never was there such all-the-time crispness!

Your happiness will know no bounds when you see the little folks come back for "more Kellogg's, Mother, please!"

And, my—how Kellogg's delight the mothers, too—and the daddies and brothers and sisters! Kellogg's win everybody—they're so delicious!

The makers of KELLOGG'S KRUMBLETS and KELLOGG'S BRAN, cooked and krumbled had engaged Dicky in quick, rapid conversation, and that the two men, followed by the twins, were coming out of the room. Pa Cosgrove's voice reached my ears as he opened the door.

"Something's got to be done for him right away," he said. "I'm afraid he won't last till the Kingston doctor gets here. If only old Doc Moss was in this section tonight. He doctors everybody through here, and—"

"Did you see Doc go back again?" Pa Cosgrove interrupted rudely.
"No."
"Turn your car around, Mr. Graham," Pa Cosgrove shouted. "We'll run down the road to Kerns and get Doc Moss."

As I obeyed him I saw the tall man and the little proprietor of the inn come to the door, and saw the smaller man speak in furtive, troubled fashion to Pa Cosgrove. At his words, Dicky made two strides to the car and jumped on the running board.
"That tall fellow in there is trying to insinuate that we're responsible for the trooper's injury. He suggests holding us here, and that means no doctor in time for that chap. Get ready to step on the gas when Cosgrove breaks away. Now, that was pretty!"

CREAM CLEARS A STUFFED-UP HEAD
Instantly Opens Every Air Passage—Clears Throat.

If your nostrils are clogged and your head is stuffed because of nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic cream into your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing and healing swollen, inflamed membranes and you get instant relief.
Try this. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm at any drug store. Your clogged nostrils open right up; your head is clear; no more hawking or snuffing. Count 50. All the stuffiness, dryness, struggling for breath is gone. You feel fine.

GROWING DEAF WITH HEAD NOISES? TRY THIS

If you are growing hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness or if you have roaring, rumbling, hissing noises in your ears, go to your druggist and buy 3 ounces of Parmitin (double strength), and add to it 1/2 pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.
This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little and is pleasant to take. Anyone who is threatened with Catarrhal Deafness or who has head noises should give this prescription a trial.
