

One-Man Booze Squad Terror to Liquor Parties

Gotham Dry Agent, Masquerading to Suit Occasion, "Drops Into" Many Gatherings Incognito.

By LEO T. HEATLEY.
New York, Nov. 19.—When the ancient and secret order of Hooch Guzzlers convenes in solemn, oath-bound conclaves its members may feel safe from the prying eyes of "rum-hounds" who might attempt to spoil the party by unceremoniously seizing the liquid refreshments and dragging those present off to the hoosgow. In other cities, where ordinary prohibition officers enforce the "eighteenth commandment" this feeling of safety might be justified; not so here.

For Izzy Einstein, the one-man booze squad, chameleon-like masquerader of the dry forces, may be expected to drop in anywhere from an exclusive party in a Fifth avenue millionaire's residence to a private gathering of east side ward heaves. No amount of caution, no amount of secrecy can insure the prohibition lawbreaker against the sudden and dramatic announcement of this dry sleuth that he is Izzy Einstein and that those present can prepare for a heavy fine or distance vile.

Good Masquerader.
When a group of convivial souls gets together at the most exclusive clubs for actors to inhale a nip of Scotch or synthetic Johnny Walker nobody can say for a certainty that Izzy may not be among them, dressed in formal glad rags and chattering of prep and scenery and "the prof."

Or it may be an undertaker's convention. In this case Izzy will be arrayed in all the sombre habiliments of that morbid trade, and few indeed would recognize in this solemn young man anything but a business-like mortician.

When Izzy fares forth in pursuit of the Demon Rum said D. R. must do some tall going to dodge this super-detective of the prohibition forces. His latest stunt was to appear on the big foot ball field in Van Courtlandt park disguised as four-fifths of a foot ball team. The soiled and grim-faced warriors, with headgear tilted back and nose guards hanging from their belts, were none other than the famous Izzy Einstein squad. At a little cafe near the park the four men roughly ordered the waiter to bring whisky and to hurry up. Others at the bar were convinced their order sounded almost like a college yell and that these were indeed and truly veterans of the gridiron.

Highball Stars.
Eddie, the waiter, saw too late that those were highball and not foot ball stars. As it was he went unsuspectingly to his doom—somewhere in the back room—and returned with three small glasses. One of the gridiron heroes handed Eddie $2.50 to pay the $2.25 bill and waited patiently for his quarter back.

"Four-eight-seven-two!" shouted one of the men, and at the signal the team got into action like a perfectly-oiled machine, despite the fact none had touched the lubrication in the glasses before them. Izzy impounded the evidence, and Eddie was turned over to the police on a charge of violating the well-known Volstead act. In his comparatively brief career Izzy has impersonated a policeman, a politician, a movie actor, a newspaper reporter, a fireman, a truck driver and a longshoreman. His next may be a female impersonation.

American and British War Mothers Pledge Fidelity

Mrs. R. A. Dingby and Mrs. Amelia McCudden, war mothers.

"And never so long as we shall live will we raise our hands in mortal combat against each other!" declared Mrs. R. A. Dingby of White Plains, N. Y., national head of the American War Mothers, as she clasped hands with Mrs. Amelia E. McCudden, British war mother, who decorated America's unknown soldier, at a recent meeting in Philadelphia, where the mothers of the two nations' men pledged allegiance to each other and work for the cause of peace between nations. Their joint declaration of fidelity brought forth thunderous applause from the assembled throng of women, all of whom wore gold stars on their breasts, significant of the great sacrifice they had made during the world war.

Nose for News Almost Costs Ardent Reporter His Bride
Topeka, Kan., Nov. 19.—Here's a new member for the "most forgetful man's" club.

V. E. Bundy, Topeka newspaperman, was to be married. He had the girl, the ring and everything. As he journeyed toward the church where the ceremony was to be performed, he witnessed an automobile accident. He stopped, obtained the details, rushed to the office and started to write the story.

Almost too late, Bundy suddenly departed, post-haste in the direction of the church. He reached there just in time for the wedding march.

Cat Imprisoned 99 Days Without Food to Recover
Fairplay, Colo., Nov. 19.—"Tabby," the pet malted cat of Dr. L. M. Gwinn of Fairplay, escaped with all of its traditional nine lives when it was rescued from an old box in which it had been imprisoned for 99 days, without food or drink.

The children of Dr. Gwinn found the cat in a box, where it is believed to have jumped from a burning building last June. "Tabby" was a handful of skin and bones when rescued. It could not stand on its legs and could not even meow, but is expected to recover under careful nursing.

Boys' School Trick Arouses Scientists

Milan, Nov. 19.—A trick played by school by the young son of Com-mendatore Stringher, one of the leading men of Italy, is exciting great interest in scientific circles in Italy. Senor Stringher is a former finance minister and is now president of the Bank of Italy.

His young son feared that he could not pass his school examinations, and so he studied for days and nights to evolve an occult means of answering the questions he would be asked.

On the day of the examinations he had installed in his desk a small wireless receiving and sending apparatus, which provided him with constant communication with his tutor in a nearby building. The wireless worked perfectly, and young Stringher not only passed the examinations swimmingly, but all his friends also.

Jimmy Gosgrove Better.
A slight improvement was noted in the condition of Jimmy Gosgrove at Ford hospital yesterday, according to attending physicians. Gosgrove has a chance to recover, physicians say.

Officer Chews Gum to Restore Muscles of Jaw

Major Unable to Open Mouth After Rifle "Backfires"—Doctors Prescribe Chewing Gum.

Washington, Nov. 19.—One of the most unusual treatments in the history of medical science is being administered to Major Ramee of the Thirtieth United States infantry, at the Walter Reed hospital here.

Major Ramee recently was giving instruction at Fort Niagara, N. Y., in rifle practice to members of the infantry team which won second honors in the national rifle shoot at Camp Perry, Ohio, when he sustained his injury. During one of the practice sessions, while he was demonstrating how it should be done, his rifle "back-fired," tearing away a part of the flesh of his cheek between the eyes and the mouth and leaving severe powder burns.

He was sent to the Walter Reed hospital here and underwent hasty repairs, enabling him to leave the hospital in time to direct the picked infantry team in the national shoot in September.

Following the national contests, in which members of Major Ramee's team conceded their defeat to be due to the accident their leader had suffered. Major Ramee returned to Walter Reed hospital for further treatment. It was found necessary to cut away a part of the flesh. When the wound healed the major's jaws were drawn so taut that he could not open his mouth.

Confronted by this puzzling predicament, the surgeons who performed the operation solved the problem by resourcefully prescribing the unusual treatment that Major Ramee is now undergoing. It is simply chewing large masses of gum at intervals. He crams five packages (consisting of five sticks in each package) of chewing gum into his mouth at once and chews vigorously every few hours.

The idea, it was said at the hospital, is to make more elastic the drawn muscles, so that they will be restored to normal, enabling him to use his mouth unhampered.

Plane Makes Successful Trip Without Aid of Pilot

Paris, Nov. 19.—After the fool-proof airplane, the pilotless airplane. That the advent of the latter is not far off is evident from the successful trip of a passenger plane belonging to the Compagnie des Messageries Aeriennes, from Paris to Amsterdam and return, without the pilot once touching the controls.

The pilot in this machine is relegated to a secondary position, so much so that he can leave his seat at any time without in any way endangering the safe progress of the craft. This effect is achieved by an automatic stabilizer, which proved its efficiency during the long trip. The stabilizer besides making flying safer, also makes possible flying at night and in fog. It is the invention of M. Georges Aveline, an aviator, who made the round trip as Connecticut leads the nation with five women legislators.
