

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

John has rebelled. For 15 years, on every Saturday night, John has handed Marie his pay envelope, unopened. For 15 years Marie has doled out just enough each day to cover car fare and lunch expenses. Marie is a good wife, remember. She does not use one cent of what is left selfishly. Yes, Marie is a nice person. So is John. Everyone likes them.

Main street. He's a resident of the world. He's got to play with the Man Gang, and he doesn't play in the man way, he loses caste. John's empty pockets prove that he isn't playing the game the man way. You may be quite sure that they're not going to give John the pay checks

WHO SHOULD HANDLE THE PAY CHECK?

But lately the men have taken to avoiding John. He's so pitifully eager for a chance to get a lunch invitation—somehow he doesn't seem like one of the Gang. John has noticed this—so at last he has rebelled. He wants to manage part of that pay envelope himself—wants to jingle a few dollars in his pocket—says he has the "right." Marie retorts that they barely get along as it is and that it isn't fair for him to feel injured—

Well, is it fair or isn't it? Is it good business or not? Marie is a good manager, probably a better manager than John. Many wives are. But is this the best management? Does she save or waste?

I think she wastes. She may not be wasting gold or silver, but she's wasting something infinitely more valuable—she's wasting a man's self-respect. You might just as well expect your gas stove to do full service with a leaky valve or your car to make speed with a missing cylinder as a man to give his best return without his full quota of self-respect.

John isn't merely a resident of the world. He's got to play with the Man Gang, and he doesn't play in the man way, he loses caste. John's empty pockets prove that he isn't playing the game the man way. You may be quite sure that they're not going to give John the pay checks

Canning Facts.

In canning work one of the most important considerations is the time required for the food at the center of the container to reach the temperature of the retort or water bath in which it is being processed. United States Department of Agriculture Bulletin 956, "A Study of the Factors Affecting Temperature Changes in the Container During the Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," which has just been issued, centers attention on these time temperature relations. The purpose has been to bring out the underlying principles rather than to lay down definite rules of procedure. The results of this experimentation are of interest to scientific workers in the field, to commercial canneries and similar large scale handlers of foods.

Sweet potatoes will keep for weeks if put into a strong paper bag and placed in the refrigerator.

Seven Good Books Named by Mrs. A. F. Merrill

Seven good books named by Mrs. Anthony French Merrill in her lecture Monday morning at the Blackstone hotel were:

- "The Mirrors of Downing Street," by Viscount Bryce;
- "How the French Built Their Cathedrals," by Elizabeth Boyle O'Reilly;
- "Victoria," by Lytton Strachey;
- "The Life of Harry Fabre," by his sister, "To Let," by Galsworthy, and "If Winter Comes," by A. S. M. Hutchinson.

For good measure, Mrs. Merrill threw in "The Prime Minister," by Harold Spender; "A Ball at the Park," by Ginterman; "A Penny Whistle," by Burton Lester Taylor, and "Out of the Mist," by Florence Kilpatrick Mixer.

"The Mirrors of Downing Street" must be read to the end, according to Mrs. Merrill. It deals with 12 prominent English leaders, showing their weaknesses with wit and satire. The book reveals that these men lacked moral earnestness, wherein is the justification for its publication. "The Prime Minister" is the life of Lloyd George, the "only public man who has survived the war," said Mrs. Merrill.

"Modern Democracies" is ponderous and great, the speaker informed. It shows the result of a republican democracy in America, Australia, South Africa, Switzerland, New Zealand and other places. Beautiful and constructive is "How the French Built Their Cathedrals," Mrs. Merrill continued. "It is tranquil yet animated and altogether absorbing. It transports you to a far-off time of wonder and beauty. 'Victoria' tells the story of Queen Victoria well and with it reveals her age. Although the author looks at the queen in an 'icy' way, without sympathy, yet he leaves us a picture of a solid, fine old woman. Mrs. Merrill told her audience.

A clever story of a man with a delicate temperament tied to an unsympathetic machine of business and a wife without temperament, is "If Winter Comes," the speaker said.

Florence Kilpatrick Mixer, who wrote "Out of the Mist," was formerly an Omaha girl.

"Back Lane" by Willis, was mentioned by Mrs. Merrill as a charming volume on the love of books.

Problems That Perplex Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In Need of Advice. Dear Miss Fairfax: Recently I moved to the city, but have a hard time getting acquainted with those of the opposite sex.

From what people say, although I do not see it that way, I'm attractive, and it is not every fellow I meet wants to flirt. I'll admit I'm good at that, but do it just for a pastime, as I'm rather particular when out with a fellow.

I've been with a few since I came, but none appeals to me, and thus I wait. I love to go out and have a good time, but it seems I'm always at home in the city.

How can I become acquainted with some one? I'm popular at dances and have many chances to go home, but never take them. Do you think your own good judgment of a chance acquaintance is always for the best?

I get lonesome at times, and when I do go out it's only with girls. My folks never care when I go out, so I just use my own judgment in choosing a mate, but want your advice.

I think you need some good, motherly advice, and I am sorry your mother is not more particular. You seem to have the wrong idea about several things. First, flirting is not to your credit; you see yourself what it brings you. That kind of popularity is short lived. Your own good judgment, if you had it, Jane, would protect you against the idea of thinking chance acquaintances. That is the cheapest thing in the world to do. It isn't well to believe you are so attractive looking, Jane. Always, you sound a bit flirty to me and badly in need of a little watching and some good, wholesome advice from a mother or some older woman relative.

The Big Sisters, the Get Acquainted club, the Bunnies club, the Candle club, the Glee Community and the First Presbyterian church all sponsor "get acquainted" groups for lonesome people.

CUTICURA HEALS CHILD'S ECZEMA

On Face, Neck and Behind Ears. Itched and Burned. "When I was a child my face, neck and behind my ears were covered with a rash. I scratched so much that I had scars and my mother had to wash me with water every day. The skin was inflamed and itched and burned, and I would scratch until it would bleed, which caused the skin to become raw. A friend recommended Cuticura Soap and Ointment and after using four cakes of Soap and two boxes of Ointment I was completely healed."
