Listen, World!

"Take it from me," said the Junior Engineer, who had just had his first married quarrel, "this idea of modern women that they 'can wear the pants' is the bunk. All most women are fit to wear are trousers. Turkish harem trousers, with the sort of manners that go with 'em!"

Which, you must admit, is a valuable carol. What are freedom and co-education doing for the modern girl? Is she really fitted for the pants of the powerful, or merely for the silken trousers of those who rule by kisses and pouts, by schemes and snares?

I do not think that the world has ever seen finer human specimens than a certain class of "modern women." Great hearted, sane headed, sweet minded, they deserve our golden praise. But how about the rank and file? Has freedom altered their viewpoint? Have they discarded with contempt the old furies and fibs by which they ruled the home, or do they still cling to them? Are they willing to take upon themselves the obligations of those who would rule—the obligations of trained brain and disciplined spirit? Will they hold their tempers and their tongues? Will they argue like comrades with a friendly give-and-take? Will they play fair, not squealing or slacking or throwing the race? Will they take their own share of the job and see it through, without protest? Will they face life without asking exemption, because of their sex, from any of its grilling? Will they take criticism and defeat with a stiff upper lip? These things and more a man must be and do if he would "wear the pants" in the game of life. Not all men can do them. Can women? I'm not telling you—I'm just asking. I've only one life to lose and I don't intend to lose it right here in the middle of the page—so answer the questions for yourself.

Things You'll Love To Make

Over-Stitched Checked Trimming

For a little miss' frock cross-stitched checked trimming is simple and sweet. Cut a six-inch band with tabs five inches wide and three inches deep; one tab at each side and one at the back. With red wool or mercerized thread cross-stitch a black checked pattern on a simple-pointed pattern. Have a small tab at each side of the collar and one above each cuff. Many very stunning combinations can be had by using plain chambray or linen for the body of the frock, combined with checked for the trimming. A red frock with black and white cross-stitched checked trimming makes a pretty and practical little play or school frock. (Copyright, 1921, by Public Ledger Co.)

Perfectly clear cold coffee will renovate black silk nicely. Apply it to the right side of the silk, which should be ironed on the wrong side when half dry.

To Save Pressing.

When you unpack your winter clothes and find them full of wrinkles put them over a hanger and hang over the bath tub. Turn on the hot water and allow them to remain in the closed room in the steam. Shake them or brush them once in a while and the wrinkles will disappear. This saves many a pressing bill.

Girl Reserves Observe the Day

A Thanksgiving offering was given today by the Girl Reserves given yesterday by the Girl Reserves of the Y. W. C. A., which will go toward the support of Miss Ethel Hartley, Omaha Y. W. C. A. secretary in China.

The Girl Reserve club of the City Mission girls visited the Child Savings Institute last Tuesday, carrying with them a basket of fruit for the children.

The Girl Reserves, who are the younger girls of the Y. W. C. A., are clubs of high school and grade school girls. There are 500 girls in Omaha clubs. These are from 80 different churches and 14 denominations. There are clubs of girls from Central, Commerce, South and Benson High schools.

Presidents of the clubs are Ruth Elliot, the Club of Commerce Girls, Zelma Westberg, Central Student club, Leola Jensen, Central Freshmen club, Alice Graves, Benson club, Adeline McCulloch, Friendship Club of South Omaha. These clubs meet after school at the club room of the Y. W. C. A. The program of the meetings are arranged by the girls themselves with the aid of their advisors. After each meeting comes a social hour in the gymnasium.

This week the clubs are co-operating with the city-wide movement of Music week by preparing entertainments to give at different hospitals and community houses. Tuesday the Friendship club girls went to the South Side hospital, where they have a program of songs which everyone knows and loves. These were interspersed with club songs. As the group went down the stairs singing "Fare Thee Well" two of the girls distributed roses to the patients.
