

Effects of Shot Fired in Meat Is Told at Auburn

Neal Case Reopened After Arguments Start to Permit Defense to Introduce More Testimony.

Auburn, Neb., Nov. 25.—(Special.)—Unusual procedure marked the trial of Mrs. Lucy Neal, charged with the murder of her husband, Ben Neal, when the case was reopened Friday afternoon, on request of the defendant's attorney, following a two-hour argument for the prosecution in rebuttal by Judge Jensen.

Reopening of the case was granted to allow attorneys for the defense to question Sheriff Davis as to his experiments in shooting with a revolver into meat and various cloth fabrics.

Pictures Neal's Death. Judge Jensen, in his argument for the prosecution, had pictured the state's theory of what actually occurred the night of the tragedy, in an attempt to prove that blood stains on the walls of the house and other evidence pointed to Mrs. Neal as the slayer of her husband.

Throughout the argument Mrs. Neal sat impassive, never for a moment changing her facial expression. The stockings and the nightgown of Mrs. Neal figured in the final hours of her trial here on a charge of murdering her husband, Ben Neal.

Resisted to the stand for the fifth time, she testified she did not see her black stockings after she took them off in her daughter Ava's room the night of the shooting of Neal.

The gown worn by Mrs. Neal the night of the slaying of her husband was passed, among the jurymen for examination. She swore that garment that night, when she was awakened from sleep by a shot and fled from the house and across the fields to the home of Charles Buck, the Neals' nearest neighbor, according to her own story.

Didn't See Daughter. She testified today that she did not remember seeing her daughter in the house that night, but met her first in the yard.

The defense rested at 10 this morning. The judge then instructed the jury to disregard the testimony of Mrs. George Davis regarding a conversation she had with Neal in December, 1920, in which Neal is alleged to have said the whole family of his wife was "crazy." He instructed the jury also to disregard the testimony of Frank Schubert of Shubert, Neb., in which Neal is alleged to have said Mrs. Neal was "crazy," and the testimony of Glen Davis relating to talks with Neal, in which Neal is alleged to have threatened to kill his stepson, Leland, and himself.

Defense Opposes Testimony. Despite strenuous objections by the defense, the judge allowed the state to introduce in evidence a slab of meat and five sheets of cotton cloth with which Sheriff Davis experimented by firing revolver shots into the cloth wrapped around it. He found, he testified, that slight powder shots were made in the flesh even when the gun was discharged at a distance of 36 inches, and more marks when it was discharged at closer range.

Former District Judge Kelligar testified that he talked to Neal on the Saturday preceding his death and that he then expressed affection for his wife and did not mention any financial or other trouble.

Keeping Milk Pure.
In the preservation of foods, an art which has reached considerable perfection in these days, it is interesting to note how important a part is played by opposite forces of nature.

For instance, after milk is obtained from the cow, it is a great stride toward keeping it pure, to use "cold" (in the form of natural ice generally) to bring the temperature promptly down until near the freezing point.

Later, however, an opposite plan is essential. By prolonged heating of the milk to a moderately high temperature the bacteria germs which are unhealthful are killed and the milk, unchanged in its digestibility, is rendered safe for use by the infant or invalid.

Both of these methods are used in their simplest form in the preparation of Horlick's Malted Milk, so as to obtain the highest purity of the food.

Motion to Quash Indictment of Bankers Argued

True Bills Against W. V. Mathews and M. F. Shafer Assailed—Attorney General Confident.

Motions to "knock out" indictments against W. V. Mathews, former president of the now defunct Pioneer State bank, and against M. F. Shafer, former officer of the American State bank, were heard yesterday by District Judge Troup.

Indictment against Mathews alleges he embezzled money and funds from the Pioneer State bank totaling $200,000.

The indictment is insufficient under the contention of Ed. P. Smith, counsel for Mathews, who filed a motion to have the indictment quashed. Mr. Smith declared the indictment does not charge that the money embezzled is in Mathews' possession, that it does not charge that the money has been converted to Mathews' use, and that it does not charge that the money and funds were obtained by Mathews by virtue of his position with the bank.

Outraged Public Sentiment.
"I realize there was an outraged public sentiment which demanded action in Douglas county," said Mr. Smith. "If the courts, however, can not argue and a plane above public sentiment I'll quit practicing law."

An argument ensued over the entry on the bank's ledger of a check for $12,200, which W. C. Dorsey, special counsel for the state's attorney general, declared was a false entry.
