

Trial of Banker On Embezzlement Charges Drags

Technical Nature of Testimony Requires Explaining To Jury—Case Will Continue Next Week.

Fremont, Neb., Dec. 2.—(Special Telegram.)—The technical nature of the testimony in the trial of Ray A. Lower, charged with embezzlement of $13,000 from the Valparaiso State bank, is causing the case to drag monotonously. The trial has been in progress all week. The state hopes to complete its case this week.

The state selected seven of the more than 20 counts of the indictment upon which to prosecute. Assistant Attorneys General Chase and Dort are conducting the prosecution.

Tones Chief Witness.
J. B. Tones, assistant cashier of the bank under Lower, has been the principal witness. Bank documents and records have made up a large part of the evidence. The transactions recorded in the books have necessarily been explained in detail to the jury.

The state is attempting to prove that Lower appropriated $13,000 from the funds of the Valparaiso bank and transferred it to his own credit in the Farmers and Merchants bank of Verdon. His father was one of the owners of the Verdon bank.

Wife Is Spectator.
Evidence was introduced to show that in 1918 and until the closing of the bank in 1919 Lower received a salary of but $175 a month. During this time it is alleged he built up a credit of $200,000 in the Verdon bank.

Mrs. Lower is an interested spectator at the trial and follows closely all of the testimony.

Lower was found guilty about a year ago. He was released on a technicality due to the signing of the complaint by Assistant Attorney General Lavery instead of the attorney general.

Neighbors of Animal Shelter Seek Removal.
The howling and barking and fighting and whining and yelping of dogs fills the air at Twenty-first and Iard streets day and night and residents of that neighborhood are tired of it. They filed a suit in district court yesterday for an injunction against the animal shelter operated there by the Nebraska Humane society.

They love animals, say the petitioners and are in favor of animal shelters on principle but not in practice when the animals show ingratitude by picking the air night and day with unseemly and disturbing cries.

Man Act Violator Given Jail Sentence.
Albert R. Raws pleaded guilty to violation of the Mann act in bringing a girl from Oklahoma to Omaha last summer and was sentenced to six months in the Dodge county jail by Federal Judge Woodrough late yesterday. The judge ordered, however, that his sentence shall date from August 16, when he was incarcerated in the Douglas county jail.

AT THE THEATERS

A notable attraction will come to the Brantley theater on Monday, December 5, with "East is West." This comedy by Samuel Shipman and John H. Hymer, ran for two consecutive years in New York, but the proponents of it as an entertainment emphasize in particular the fact that it has proved as delightful to playgoers in other cities. The comedy is one which great praise is due to the fine talents which have aided Miss Haines in such great praise to the way which has not in the least affected her industry or the zeal with which she plays her role. When the audience agreed that it was remarkable after years to see a player interpret the same role with such spontaneous vitality, Mr. Harris will seek with his usual reputation he has gained for only allowing the best to be seen under his name.

At the Gaiety (starting this afternoon) will appear Jacobs and Jermom's latest effort, the "Fighting 1921" headed by Fitchy (Shorty) McAllister, and Harry Simpson. There has been no attempt to make any deep plot, but merely a succession of amusing and lively features. The supporting company includes Lulu Moore, Olga Woods, Lillian Leary, Glenn Eastman, James Bister and Jack Hays. Tomorrow's business starts at 2:30.

"The Hat," which will be presented at the Brantley theater for the last time today, matinee and evening, has proved an Omaha success in New York and Chicago. One young lady who saw the opening performance on Thursday night said she grew so excited she was accused of endeavoring to climb out of her seat and never knew she was talking to a total stranger until she was pointed upon a little personal attention. What is more, she was believed. Last night an excited gentleman in the balcony, warned the people on the stage to beware at a critical moment. "The Hat" has a reality about it that keeps everyone in nervous suspense from the rise of the curtain to its final fall.

With the matinee and evening performance today the popular Orpheum show for this week comes to a close. It is the bill headed by William Hallahan in "Highlowdown" and by Eddie Russell in "A Man of Affairs." This show opening with the matinee tomorrow is to have Halph Riggs and Katherine Wichita for one of the stellar attractions. They are to appear in the daily offering called "Dance Idyll" starring McKay and Orla Ardine are to appear in the evening suit.

"All in Fun." Mr. McKay is to arrange an afternoon. This will be a unique entertainment, a revue in which every performer of the entire show will take part. Franker Wood and Bance Wyder are to appear in their latest success, "All Right, Edgy."

Zena Gale, a Wisconsin woman and alumna of the state university, is one of the most talked of and honored stars in the book field of American life today. Someone has aptly called her a "green rose," supposedly on account of her remarkable success, and the stark style she used to win it. In her novel "Miss Louisa" she shows folks who have just been sponsored by the trials of culture and fashion, with unusual plainness of dress, manner and speech, and draws them into and out of her human story. Just as they are and we are, in the flesh. "Miss Louisa" will be the attraction at the Brantley on next Friday and Saturday, December 3 and 4, with a Saturday matinee.

At the Regency today, final performance will be given of the show which has as its stellar act the Five Troubadours, who present an exclusive singing act, in which they render a most interesting repertoire of classic and comedy songs. In the act offered by Adeline Rosolino and William Barrett, Miss Rosolino's characterization of an Italian flower girl is extremely clever. Besides being a talented comedienne, she possesses a voice of wide range and splendid quality. The dialogue of the play is bright and productive of plenty of laughs.

Dog Hill Paragrafs

By George Bligham

The Dog Hill preacher said some hard things about sinners in his sermon last Sunday, and the congregation wished that some of them could have been there to hear it.

Yam Sims says he has done more things for people than they ever did for him, and he is a good mind to sit down and wait until they do a lot for him, but if he did do that, the people would decide he wasn't any account and wouldn't help him at all.

MOVIES

Today's Attractions.

Rialto—Thomas Meighan in "White and Unmarried" and Charles Chaplin in "Shoulder Arms."
Sun—"Over the Hill."
Moon—Priscilla Dean in "Conflict."
Grand—"The Sheik."
Empress—"The Matchmaker."
Moss—"The Princess of New York."
Grand—"The North Wind's Malice."
Hamilton—Ethel Clayton in "Crooked Streets."

William Farnum has every right to be hailed as the "American Star Supreme" because the popular actor was born in Boston on July 4, 1876, the one hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence.

"Across the Continent," is to be Wallace Reid's next picture. Philip E. Rozen, who has just completed "The Champion," in which Mr. Reid stars, will again direct.

In this picture the star returns to his old love—the automobile, in a transcontinental tale by Byron Morgan.

George Siegmann, who plays the villain's part—and plays it cleverly—in the picture "Shame," which is soon to be shown at the Moon theater, because he wanted to stay home nights. He began in pictures as a leading man. Then he took on so much weight that he went into the "heavy" class—that is, he had to play villains. His work as Sir Sagramor in another picture booked for the Sun theater in the near future, "A Connecticut Yankee in King Arthur's Court," is said to be an exceedingly fine bit of screen characterization. Siegmann is a veteran of the Spanish-American and world wars.

Judge C. W. Sears Sees Son Initiated Into Elks

When District Judge C. W. Sears, as a benevolent Elk and a proud father, attended initiation ceremonies of eight candidates into the Elks lodge last night, he saw his son, Sigby Sears made a "Brother Bill." Judge Sears is a past exalted ruler of the Omaha Elks and he confided yesterday that it was one of his highest ambitions to watch his son initiated into the order. The other candidates were: District Judge C. O. Stauffer, A. J. Churchill, T. P. Hurley, Morris Wohler, W. H. Barnaby, Eric Sandberg and A. F. Strehlow.

Former Officers Give Information on Crime

D. B. Butler, city commissioner, admitted yesterday that he had been getting confidential information from Robert Samardick and Paul Sutton, former members of the Omaha police department, relative to alleged law violations here.

ADVERTISMENT.

FELT JUST LIKE IRON BAND WAS ROUND HER HEAD

This is How Lynchburg, Va., Woman Says Headaches Often Affected Her.

Everybody will read with interest the statement of Miss M. E. Woodford, 1808 Filmore street, Lynchburg, Va., who says:
"I don't believe anybody ever suffered from headaches like I did. The pains felt like an iron band was being drawn around my head and my temples would throbb until I was driven almost distracted. I shudder when I think of those awful headaches. I had no appetite either."
"I owe Tanlac an everlasting debt of gratitude for curing me of those terrible headaches. My stomach has been toned up, too, and everything I eat agrees with me now. Tanlac certainly brought me health and happiness."
Tanlac is sold in Omaha by the Sherman & McConnell Drug Co. and by leading druggists everywhere.
