Judge Landis Suspends "Babe" Ruth Until May 20 for Violating Rules

Bambino Fined His Share of Series Prize

"Well, Just Let It Go at That For the Present," Says King of Swat When Informed of Decision.

Chicago, Dec. 5.—Bad news for "Babe" Ruth, world's champion home run hitter with the New York Yankees, broke today. Ruth was fined his world's series prize of $3,362 and suspended until May 20 of the 1922 season by Judge Landis, commissioner of base ball, for participating in exhibition games following the close of the world's series.

Outfielder Bob Muesel and Pitcher William Piercy, also members of the Yankees, who participated in the barnstorming trip, drew substantially the same penalty. Piercy's fine was $100 less than the other two, his share of the world's series being that much less.

Suspension of Ruth for at least the first month of the American league pennant race means, base ball observers pointed out, that he will have little chance next season of breaking his record of 59 home runs. He will not be eligible to apply for reinstatement until May 20—the season starts about April 14.

The decision, which, in the base ball world, rests as the most important Judge Landis has made, came after two months' deliberation.

The rule, enacted in 1911, forbids a member of a team competing in the world's championship series from participating in any exhibition games after the close of the series.

Washington, Dec. 5.—"Well, just let it go at that for the present," Babe Ruth declared today when informed of the decision in Chicago of Judge Landis, depriving him of his share of the world's series money and suspending him until May 20, 1922.

The ball player was informed of Judge Landis' decision in his dressing room at a local theater while preparing for his turn on the stage. He said he could make no statement until he had received the formal statement of Judge Landis' action.

However, he advanced the belief that he could not be kept out of his share of the world's series money, which amounted, he said, to about $3,200.

Greb's Manager is After Tom Gibbons

George Engel Insists Heavyweight of Gibbons' Family Scared of Harry.

New York, Dec. 5.—Ordinarily George Engel, manager for Harry Greb, Pittsburgh scrapper, is a most affable sort of citizen, but yesterday George stepped in with a vitriolic mean spelling pen and starts calling Tom Gibbons everything wrong except a horse thief.

Engel insists that Tom is scared of Harry. Then he takes another whack and tells how Tex Rickard and he tried to get Gibbons to meet Greb, but instead, according to Engel, Gibbons just goes around picking canvas kissers to play with. There is a big list of names showing the blokes whom Gibbons has knocked over in a round, and they are all bums, says Engel.

The announcement now comes that Sailor Friedman will go through with his engagement with Lew Tendler for 15 rounds in Madison Square Garden on December 16.

THE record of Midget Smith, the New York bantamweight who is trying to lure Champion Johnny Buff into a match for the title, doesn't shown a knockout blotch. But just the same the little Gothamite has been knocked out, and according to his own testimony the job was done in as artistic a manner as ever happened. Midget tells about the knockout with considerable pride, too, for the man who handed it to him was none other than World's Heavyweight Champion Jack Dempsey.

"How'd you happen to get your chin on the end of one Dempsey's sledge hammer wallops?" was the question popped at Smith after he had stuck out his chest and related how the heavyweight champion had socked him with the fists that rocked Georges Carpentier to dreamland last summer.

"O, how that big fellow does hit!" said the midget as he opened up on the conversational line. "It was when Jack Dempsey came to New York to start training for his bout with Bill Brennan at Madison Square Garden. I stepped into his training quarters one afternoon, and while watching Jack punch his sparring partners around the ring I was told that the champion was anxious to get some lighter boys for his camp so he could develop his speed by boxing with them.

"That looked like a chance for me to connect with a little job, so I volunteered to put on the gloves with the big fellow. The next day I was out at the camp bright and early with all my ring togs and ready for action. The action came all right, and it was swift and sure. I waited for my turn, and when it came I climbed through the ropes. Then the gong clanged and Jack and I went to it. I thought I could punch the big champion a few wallops and gallop away from the return fire, and for a little while I succeeded.

"But Dempsey finally started after me with his fists flying. He caught me over near one corner of the ring and let his right hand go. I forgot to duck that one and it caught me squarely on the chin. That punch surely had power behind it, for I wasn't only knocked out but was knocked clear through the ropes and into the arms of a bunch of newspaper men who were at the ringside.

"The scribes lifted this midget back through the ropes and into the arms of Dempsey, who was waiting. Jack stood me on my feet, but my legs wouldn't support me. He saw that I was completely out, and in order to make me look good to the crowd started dancing me around the ring while holding me up in a clinch. He didn't let go until I had recovered and after that we boxed a little and the gong ended the workout.

Midget Smith says that Dempsey is the eighth wonder of pugilism, but he also says there isn't a bantamweight who can do to him what Dempsey did.

HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

Cage Prospects Bright.

Marion S. D., Dec. 5.—Basket ball prospects are bright at Marion High school, according to Coach S. S. Bliss, who has had his squad at work since the beginning of the school year. Thus far five games have been played and each resulted in a victory for the locals. E. Grospel, the only regular left from last year's team, has been shifted from guard to forward. He has played three years and is captain of the team. W. Ebeling, substitute center last year is playing that position this season. T. Dunne, another second string center man of a year ago, has been shifted to guard with H. Dains, also a substitute last year. L. Wiseland, who worked in a few games in 1920-21, is holding down a regular position as forward. The schedule for the season follows:

This is Johnson's second year at Geneva, coming here last year from the Kansas Aggie school at Manhattan, where he played three years on the varsity. Laurence Buehrer, Vincent Willy, Clyde Yates, Freddie Picard, forwards; Bob Manning, John Mulligan, Ralph Reeve, guards, are all two and three-year men on the team, back this year. Says "BUGS" BAER

Pard:

My man, Cal Lamity, met Gink once and that was twice too much for Gink. Cal walloped him with everything but last year's cornstalks. If Gink ain't running yet it's because he's reached the jumping-off place. Cal is so tough that we got to shoot him in the morning to wake him up.

All the grizzlies in our neighborhood are harmless because they broke their teeth on Cal's neck.

When your Roughtown herring reads this he will jump out of his four-piece socks. W. J. BROWNER, Fremont.

CAL LAMITY never got within seismograph distance of Roughtown. He started this lone wolf business in Arson, one of our timid suburbs. Arson was so rough that even the trees had artificial limbs and turtles used to wear their shells backwards to fool the beetles.

Cal wore a tourist's hat into Arson, which was such a mean town that even friends were enemies. Bill Rogers shot the buttons off his vest without breaking a threat. Then the posse got after him with the official guest rope. Cal didn't make very good hanging because his Adam's apple was as prominent as a high school valedictorian's feet and hands.

He was tough, at that, because the posse had to cut him down to save the rope. Cal was well built and had a fine pair of shoulders in his hat. His first bone was to manage himself and sign up a match with The Glutt.

What didn't happen that night aint in the looseleaf ledger. The Glutt was some canvas connoisseur himself, but he couldn't do headstands like Cal. This was the first time The Glutt used his banana skin shoes, but it looked like Cal had roller bearings in his soles instead of nails. Those boys skidded around there like sunbeams on the water, it was one of those Australian pursuit battles. Finally, The Glutt lobbed a slow fungo over on Cal and dusted all the ears off his face. Then he powdered Cal's nose with a barbed-wire puff and hung him over the ropes like wet laundry.

He was out so long that the crows started to pick at him. After that Cal took correspondence lessons in home cooking. He donated his gloves to the peace conference and is off anything that looks like a ring. He wouldn't even open a box of Xmas presents because it had ropes around it.

If he ever sailed through Roughtown he must have gone through in a sealed package.

Billy Evans' Nerve as "Kid Umpire" Put Him in Majors-- Is Greatest of Arbitrators

By FRANK G. MENKE.

(Copyright, 1921, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

SOMETHING like 15 years ago an angry mob of fans, plus an angrier mob of home-town base ballers, grouped around a youthful personage in a uniform of blue, made menacing signs and verbally threatened him with a merciless death. It looked like "Lead Kindly Light" for the youngster.

Did he quail? Did he shiver, as the ring of maddened natives drew tighter and tighter around him? Did he turn pale? Nix! He just looked one after another of the closest threateners in the glaring optics and said:

"Scat—the whole gang of you."

And that, in lefthanded fashion, is the story of how Billy Evans, "the greatest umpire of them all," got himself a job as an American league official.

Once Sport Writer.

At the age of 20 or so Evans, who was a Cornell student, was likewise a sport writer in Youngstown, O., in the good old summer time. Just as a diversion he started to umpire ball games. His work there was so good in the combats in which he figured that he was invited to do a lot of umpiring all around the vicinity.

These were the good old days when an umpire was considered an unnecessary evil and players and fans alike seized every opportunity to make it possible for the umpire to take a quick and wholly unconscious trip to a hospital.

One balmy afternoon Evans, umpiring in one of the little oil towns, was forced to rule against the home team on a close play at the plate. A ton of money had been wagered on the combat—and a riot ensued. The crowd leaped onto the field and the rival ball players began to page as many ambulances as possible, for they figured that Evans would have to be carried away in small sections.

The Old Berries.

But Evans met the charging enemy with a smile—and a wave of his arm. His fearlessness in that moment of dire peril for him really cowed the natives. They had been accustomed to umpires who would attempt to run a mile in one minute flat every time they started across the field after him.

Evans, the boy, smiled at them, ordered them to "scat" and, marvelous as it may seem, they "scatted" right back into the stands and play was resumed.

A few days later Evans was halted on the street.

"My name is McAleer," said the stranger. "I used to play ball with Cleveland. I saw you umpire the other day. I liked your work. If you get a call from the American league you'll know how it happened."

A Letter From Ban.

A short time afterward Evans did get a letter from Ban Johnson—and the kid, then 22, journeyed to Chicago.

"James McAleer tells me you are a good umpire and that you have courage," said Johnson. "You are the type of man we want in our league. I have a contract here for you to sign, if you think the terms are agreeable."

They were. And Evans signed.

Billy, discussing the incident afterward, said:

"It was only a bit of good luck that made me a regular arbitrator right away. I was realy hired for farming out purposes. It was reckoned that I ought to get a few years of seasoning in the American association before I was eligible for regular duty in the big leagues.

Best Ump of All.

"But it so happened that on the very day I was to get my orders to go to the miners, Tim Hart, one of the regular umpires, took sick. These were the days of the single umpire system and the American league, at the time, did not have an emergency man of experience. So Ban Johnson sent me out to work until such time as Hurst got back into harness again."

It's history that Evans, in those few days as an extra displayed ability which stamped him as a wonder-umpire. And in all the years since then Billy Evans has been regarded by officials, by players and by fans alike as:

"The best umpire of them all."

Purdue to Stage Grid Comeback

Lafayette, Ind., Dec. 5.—Purdue university will be ready in another year or two to retrieve its lost prestige, on the gridiron. This is the opinion of athletic authorities here. Although in the number of games won the past season was disappointing, followers of the team were cheered by the fighting spirit, which, they declare, was characteristic of Purdue teams of a decade ago, but which has been noticeably absent in recent years.

Although 12 men will be lost to the foot ball squad by graduation, there will be a number of veterans back next year and with the recruits from this year's freshman team, it is expected there will be little difficulty in rounding up an experienced eleven. Five of the 12 who will get sheepskins were regulars this year.

Ferd Birk is one of the stars who will be lost. Birk, during his three years on the team, has gained fame as a tackle and center. Capt. "Zeb" Carman is another regular who will leave. Carman has held down an end position for two years. Other regulars to go are Ray Miller, end; E. B. Wagner, halfback, and J. E. Meeker, fullback. Some of the second string men played in a number of games and will be keenly missed. They are Bob Watson, E. S. Rate, W. L. Spencer, "Shorty" Macklin, C. E. Israel, J. C. Kepple and C. D. Merrill.

Philadelphia, Dec. 5.—The University of Penn today declined an invitation from the state fair association of Texas to send a football team to compete against the Texas agricultural college at Dallas, December 12. The fair association was informed that the team had been disbanded for the year.
