

Fremont Banker Returns to Face Criminal Charge

Frank B. Knapp Pleads Not Guilty to Embezzlement and Larceny—Left Town After Bank Crash.

Fremont, Neb., Dec. 9.—(Special Telegram)—Frank B. Knapp, president of the bankrupt Fidelity Trust company, returned to Fremont to face charges of embezzlement and larceny of $3,585 from Stephen Carpenter, farmer. He pleaded not guilty to both counts and was released on $6,000 bond, furnished by John Monnich, Fremont, and E. R. Gurney, Omaha.

Knapp's return to Fremont was not marked with a reception like the one accorded President Clarence of the Caster bank at Blair some time ago. The former head of the trust company left Fremont a few weeks ago after the Fidelity Trust had been placed in the hands of a receiver. He was accompanied by Mrs. Knapp.

Two cases were filed in district court against Knapp, but no reply was made. When Carpenter filed charges with County Attorney Cook, alleging the embezzlement and theft of $3,585, which the client states was to be used for the purchase of Liberty bonds, Knapp was in Chicago and would return to face the charges. Days passed and no word was received until the first part of this week, when Attorney Cook was notified that Knapp was en route to Fremont.

Upon his arrival he went directly to the county attorney's office, accompanied by his bondsmen, Justice of the Peace H. M. Kidder was called into the county attorney's office, where Knapp waived preliminary hearing, pleading not guilty. Gurney, one of the bondsmen, was formerly connected with the Fidelity Trust company and prominent among local bankers.

"Hard to Take Human Life," Says Girl Slayer

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 9.—"It's hard to take a human life, but it was my life or his. I could not do anything else. It nearly worried me crazy ever since," said Maude Moore (Mrs. Stubs) amid sobs during cross-examination at her trial for killing Leroy Harth here in September of 1919. She related in detail her version of the events of the night.

She said she purposely met Harth for the purpose of getting a revolver she had loaned him and told of their trip in his automobile; of how, she alleges, he attempted to subject her to a indignity, of a struggle that followed, during which her revolver fell from Harth's pocket, how both attempted to seize it from the roadway, how she beat him to it and then used it with deadly effect, despite the pain from a blow which she said Harth had dealt her.
