

Iowa Homestead Routed in Attack on Credit Body

Louis H. Cook Responded to With Hisses When He Launches Fight at Farm Convention.

Atlantic, Jan. 4.—(Special Telegram.)—The faction led by Louis H. Cook representing the Iowa Homestead, suffered a complete rout in its attempt at yesterday's annual meeting of the Cass County Farm Bureau to gain control of that organization.

Cook was hissed when he took the floor, uninvited, and attacked the Iowa Farm Credit association.

The fireworks started after an address by Ed H. Cunningham, secretary of the state federation of farm bureaus.

Without naming any person or publication specifically, Cunningham said that attempts were being made in certain quarters to besmirch the officers of the credit association.

Brands Charges as Lies.

Charges that officers of the association are receiving big salaries and that its stock salesmen were former employees of the Associated Packers company are damned lies, cried Cunningham. Cheers greeted this remark.

As Cunningham took his seat, Cook leaped to his feet and began his attack on the credit association. He also renewed the Homestead's attack on President Howard of the American Farm Bureau.

Cries of "Sit down!" "Keep still!" mingled with hisses, greeted the Homestead man's attack on the farm bureau head and the officers of the credit association.

Cook declared the Homestead had affidavits to prove its charges. "Every salesman employed to sell stock for the Iowa Farm Credit association first made affidavits that he had never been associated with the Association Packing company," said Cunningham at the close of Cook's talk.

State Senator Defeated.

Someone asked that all those present who were with Cunningham and the Farm Bureau stand up. Of the 200 members on the floor all but a score jumped to their feet.

State Senator Julius A. Nelson went down in defeat along with the Homestead faction. He was the candidate of the faction for the office of president of the state bureau.

The fight precipitated at yesterday's meeting is the climax of weeks of propaganda against the Farm Bureau in Cass county.

Dante M. Pierce, publisher of the Iowa Homestead, and the Atlantic News Telegraph, is said to have engineered the fight. His representative, Cook, has been speaking in the county at meetings of the Farmers' union. The latter organization is said to be opposed to the Farm Bureau.

Pierce also has made talks in the county at these meetings. He remarked to persons here that he was going "to drive the Farm Bureau out of business."

At yesterday's meeting resolutions were adopted commending the work of County Agent Bennett.

The Fortune Hunter

By RUBY AYRES.

For a little while Anne sat quite still, her face hidden in her hands; then she rose to her feet suddenly, catching the Fortune Hunter by the lapels of his coat.

"I suppose I haven't any pride," she said wildly. "I suppose I ought to be willing to die rather than say what I must say, but I can't help it. I love you. I thought, when I knew—that it had all gone—forever; that you had killed everything I ever felt for you; but it's not true—I love you; I'll give up everything for you, if you won't leave me. I don't care what anyone says; I—"

"Oh, John—have a little pity; have a little pity!" The Fortune Hunter stood with his arms stiffly at his sides and when at last he answered his eyes looked over her bowed head into the silent room.

"You don't know what it means if I take you. I've no money, not a shilling, and I've stolen 2,000 pounds from Mr. Harding. It's got to be paid, if it kills me. The end of my life. His voice broke, but he struggled on again: "My dear, you don't know what it means. I'm nobody, a wanderer, a vagabond. It's sweet of you—wonderful—and I adore you for it, but—I'm not worth it. I can't answer, you never forget—all that, you never forget."

"Whatever I told you, you'd be thinking that I've lied to you—many times before. It would always be there—between us—the past! God knows I'd give my right hand to wipe it out, but I can't. You know that—we both know it."

"He drew back a step from him. "If you loved me, all this would not matter," she said.

"It's because I love you I know I can't answer," he said.

"If I am willing to take the risk," she faltered.

He shook his head; his lips were trembling too much to speak.

"She wrung her hands. "If it's only the money, John, don't let it stand between us. I have no money, and it's yours—oh, so gladly!"

"Anne, for God's sake—"

"If it's only that you are afraid for my sake what people will say, I tell you I don't care! They said bitter things—cruel things—years ago when you—"

"She broke off, the tragedy of it all striking home to her afresh, and for a moment neither of them spoke. Then the Fortune Hunter said hoarsely:

"Which of us do you love, Anne? Is it me? Was it ever me? I've longed so many times to ask you. If I knew, somehow, things—wouldn't be so hard. I—oh, I know I've no right to ask you!"

"She drew a long breath and the faintest smile trembled on her lips. "If you could both be here now—you, and—and he," she said slowly, "and I had to choose, it would be you—you always. Even—even—and her eyes fell as the color rose slowly to her white cheeks—even though I—married him."

The Fortune Hunter's arms went out to her, but fell again helplessly. What was the good? They had to part. Every nerve in his body told him that this thing could never be. Why prolong it? Why not cut out his aching heart once and for all? He turned blindly to the door. "I must go—"

"John!" There was such a world of passionate reproach in her voice that she stopped with a stifled groan, and she went on, sobbing now, as if her heart was broken.

"And I count nothing—nothing, I suppose! It doesn't matter that I've offered myself to you, that I let my pride go! Oh, if you ever cared for me at all, you can't be so cruel. Life's so short—few years, and it won't matter to anyone who you were, or if we loved each other; but, now—oh, haven't I borne enough—haven't I borne enough?"

The Fortune Hunter turned slowly and looked at her; then he came to her, and she stood up and put his arms round her, pressing her head to his breast.

"Don't, don't! It breaks my heart! I'm not worth a tear, not worth a thought. Oh, my dear—"

"She lifted her arms and clasped them round his neck.

"Promise me you won't go—promise me! Promise me! Stay just for tonight, just till the morning. Oh, I shall die if you leave me like this."

N. P. L. Inconsistent on Gas Tax Stand, Says Governor

Lincoln, Jan. 4.—(Special.)—A letter from Gov. R. A. Nestor of North Dakota to Governor McKelvie states that the gasoline tax enacted with the support of a Nonpartisan league governor is still in force there and working well.

"That shows inconsistency on the part of the Nonpartisan league in Nebraska in its threat to hold a gasoline tax law by referendum if it is enacted in Nebraska," said Governor McKelvie.

Two southern democratic states also have such a law, the governor said, and their democratic governors express themselves pleased with it.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to flush Kidneys and neutralize irritating acids.

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and it is very distressing; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

Cloudburst Destroys 600 Feet of Union Pacific Track

A cloud burst near Caliente, Nev., Monday afternoon which destroyed 600 feet of track on the Salt Lake route of the Union Pacific railroad, caused the Los Angeles Limited, due in Omaha at 7:45 p. m. and the Pacific Limited due at 1:20 a. m., to detour by way of San Francisco, according to the office of E. E. Calvin, vice president of operations, yesterday.

It was first announced repairs would be made quickly and a detour unnecessary.

Vice President Calvin, at his ranch near Los Angeles, for the holidays, went to the scene of the wreck to direct repairs of damaged equipment.

Earth Nearer Sun Than Any Other Time in Year

This tiny globe called the earth reached perihelion Tuesday morning at 10 minutes and 37 seconds past 2, according to Rev. William F. Rigge, Creighton university astronomer.

The earth was then nearer to the sun than it is at any other time of the year—3,000,000 miles closer than it was last July.

A peculiar fact is that the earth is closest to the sun in the winter. But the sun's rays strike this hemisphere at a greater angle in December than in July and, therefore, produce less heat.

The earth buzzes along all the time at about 66,000 miles an hour.

Vet School Will Open January 16

Fifty Ex-Service Men Due That Day—Capacity Is 200—Inspection Made.

Bellevue college, leased by the United States Veterans' bureau as a rehabilitation center for ex-service men, will be opened January 16. Fifty ex-service men are expected to arrive here that day. Others will follow until the capacity of the institution, which is 200, is reached.

Ex-service men whose war service developed nervous disorders which have prevented them from promptly returning to their normal routine of life, are eligible for admittance. It is estimated there are some 2,000 ex-service men in Nebraska, Iowa, Missouri and Kansas, which comprise the ninth district of the veterans' bureau territory, who need rest, quiet and direct training.

Bellevue college has been remodeled and refitted. There will be instruction in ordinary English branches—stenography, typewriting, bookkeeping, sign painting, agriculture and in trade and professional work such as salesmanship, drafting, carpentry and mechanics. The college has been leased for five years.

E. H. Dunaway of St. Louis has charge of preparations for opening the school. D. C. Buell of Omaha will take charge of the institution. A. C. Johnson, chief of the district's rehabilitation, and Maynard Bush, special trades supervisor of this district, were in Omaha yesterday making a final inspection of the plant.
