

Griffith and Frazee Unable to Agree on Big Trade

Red Sox Boss Wants More Men for 'Peck'

Deal by Which Peckinpaugh Would Become Manager of Senators Falls Through.

New York, Jan. 4.—A hitch in the proposed three-cornered trade of baseball players involving the Washington, Boston and Philadelphia teams of the American league, by which Roger Peckinpaugh, former captain of the Yankees, would become manager of the Senators, developed today at a conference between Clark Griffith, owner of the Capital club, and Harry Frazee, head of the Red Sox.

Griffith returned to Washington without any definite understanding having been reached. Frazee stated that there was nothing he could say other than that the proposition had not gone through, and that it remained for Griffith to make the next move.

The trade was said to include sending Joe Dugan to the Red Sox, and Joe Judge and Outfielder Biggie Scharf to the Athletics. Other players were also reported to be involved.

Later Mr. Frazee said that Mr. Griffith advised him that he could obtain Dugan from the Philadelphia club and trade him to Boston for Peckinpaugh. The Boston magnate declared that he wanted additional players and that Mr. Griffith's refusal to make the trade other than on even terms caused the hitch.

Augustine Massa (on right), Columbia's blind checker marvel, will test his skill in a match requiring the memorizing of positions of 480 checkers at one time, which means that he will meet 20 opponents at one sitting. He has already defeated 10 at one time and has downed all would-be checker champions at Columbia. He is planning a movement to put checkers on the same plane that chess enjoys in some of the big universities in Europe. He is seen here in a contest with Rody Green (on left).

Guy Chamberlain, Former Star Nebraska Gridster, Believes in Keeping College Game for Amateurs

Lincoln, Jan. 4.—(Special.)—Guy Chamberlain, former Husker star, now employee of the Staley Manufacturing company at Decatur, Ill., with his wife, was a visitor in Lincoln during the holidays. Chamberlain has been engaged in "Pro" football since his college grid career, and this past season was captain of the Staley professional eleven, which, by the way, won the world's championship in "pro" circles.

"Although I am a professional, I still believe in the college game and I believe in keeping the college game strictly for and by amateurs. Our strictly for 'pros' is forbidden to even look at a college player while he is in school. We don't even issue passes to an amateur gridster. But the minute he is out of school we like to see him remain in the game."

"Recently a member of our circle was found guilty of pulling players from Notre Dame, and using them in a 'pro' game. The players were apprehended and are through with college athletics. The 'pro' team is out of the circle ostracized. We cannot afford to have the 'pros' interfering and injuring the amateur standing of college men."

If the amateur gridster has any idea that the professional doesn't have to take anything in the line of work in order to keep going he is another guess coming. A team made up of all-American, all-western and all-conference men has less need of scrimmage, since each man knows about what to do. The team learns of the other team's formations, each man gets his instructions and they never have to be repeated, says Guy Chamberlain does not believe that the game is strenuous enough to injure or impair one's health if he continues in it. He states that it would take harder blows to put him out now than it would have in the days of his college football.

Chamberlain has all praise for the Husker team of the past season, and states that he believes there will be an undefeated Husker team to finish next season. He finished his football career at Nebraska in 1915 after playing his allotted three years. During his career at Nebraska Chamberlain at end was one of the stars of the country and Huskers still speak with reverence of "the days of Chamberlain."

Schlaifer Loses Decision to "Cowboy" Padget in Slashing Twelve-Round Bout at Denver

Denver, Jan. 4.—(Special Telegram.)—The new ring sensation appeared on the horizon Tuesday night when "Cowboy" Padget, the slugging copperworker, Dolores, Colo., won a decision over Morris Schlaifer of Omaha in a 12-round bout at the Stockyards stadium. The bout was one of the best ever staged in the local arena and was a real fight from going to going, with both men refusing to break ground.

Fouled in the second round, when Schlaifer struck a low blow, Padget refused to accept the decision and continued despite the fact that he was weakened by the blow. After getting his bearings he went after the Omaha lad in a vicious slashing attack, lasting the round out.

For the first six rounds both men stood toe to toe and battled each other all over the ring. Neither seemed to have the advantage. In the seventh Padget shot a straight right to the face repeatedly and shifted, raining several blows on the body. When the bell rang he had rolled up a big margin.

Schlaifer evened matters in the eighth with rights and lefts to the face and body and in the 10th caught the Cowboy with a hard right to the eye that drew blood. In the 11th Padget landed terrific rights and lefts to the face that drew blood. He backed Schlaifer to the ropes and played a tattoo on the body. In the 12th both stood in the center of the ring and slugged each other.

Padget had the better of the final round and seemed to be full of fight at the finish.

Lawler's Mother Watches Him Beat Noye—Is Proud of Son

"Boxing is so strenuous I'm just worn out."

No, it was not a boxer speaking, but Mrs. Lawler, mother of Jack Lawler, who had just watched her son trounce Johnny Noye of St. Paul in the main event bout of the Nonpareil boxing card at the City Auditorium Tuesday night.

Mrs. Lawler admitted she was "just worn out." Every sound blow which Noye landed on Lawler was felt by the elderly little woman, who occupied a seat at the ringside.

But as a fighter she thinks her son is without a peer.

Noye worked on body. Lawler won the decision, but neither scrapper suffered any ill effects from the 10-round fisty business.

Lawler piled up a lead in the early rounds, but Noye came out of his shell in the latter stages and plastered the Omaha ringman on the jaw with several hard blows.

Record Entry List in Elks Pin Meet

Carpentier Failing in Health, Report

French Champion Not Fully Recovered From Dempsey Battle.

New York, Jan. 4.—Reports of Georges Carpentier's physical decline continue to drift in from London to New York, where the European heavyweight champion is topping off training for his bout with George Cook.

An Australian man known, on January 12, Jack McAuliffe has looked the Frenchman over and finds a startling change in him. He says that Carpentier is no longer the debonair, light-hearted Carpentier of Manhattan days, but seems to have lost his grip on his condition through worry over his health.

This bears out other stories of Carpentier's failing health due to the awful body punching he endured at Jack Dempsey's hands last summer. Despite official denials, Carpentier apparently has not recovered from that beating. He has made no effort to return to America, where he pursues a quiet life. His fight with a former Australian, where he was regarded here as a "set up" for the Frenchman.

Eight years ago he was a shoeshiner in a New Orleans hotel. It was in the neighborhood of the fighting men congregate and while Pete was doling up the booties of the customers, they talked of things fistic in such a way as to excite his interest in the mitt slinging pastime.

Eventually Pete was able to buy himself a membership in a gymnasium. Then came the day when he got a chance to fight in a preliminary—for $250. Pete accepted—and won. Tempus fuit. At last came the moment of joint claimant was to fight Joe Wagner back in 1914 in New Orleans, had to cancel the match on account of illness. There was no one else to offer up as a sacrifice to Wagner, who was going great guns at the time, except Herman, who was a preliminary kid.

Herman went on, punched Wagner all around the ring for 20 rounds, won by 12 or 13 miles—and became a sensation.

Mystery Clouds Death of College Girl's Admirer

District Attorney Grills Young Grecian Beauty Who Declares Youth Killed Himself.

New York, Jan. 4.—Did the tiny, white, bejeweled hand of 19-year-old Elizabeth Veichos, a strikingly beautiful Grecian college girl of Philadelphia, pull the trigger that sent three bullets crashing into the brain of her lover, John Palmiero? Was it physically possible for the man to have killed himself?

Elizabeth, heartbroken, swears that Palmiero shot himself. Assistant District Attorney Hennessey, who spent the entire day questioning the girl, confessed that the manner in which Palmiero met his death is a mystery to him. Much depends on the report of the medical examiners tomorrow.

Young Spaniard Dies.

John Palmiero, a Spaniard, 39 years old, died from three bullet wounds in the fight temple. He had been taken to a hospital from the little apartment he and Elizabeth Veichos occupied for several months.

Elizabeth was found in a stupor on the sidewalk in front of the apartment, clad only in a sheer siren nightgown, almost frozen by the wintry blasts. Neighbors who assisted her, found the dying Spaniard with a pearl handled revolver lying on the bed beside him.

Pete Gets "Comp."

One gentle P. M., a customer, in lieu of a tip, gave Pete a complimentary ride on one of the night shows. Pete was among those present that night and became so enthused about the noble art that he shadow boxed his way home, in imitation of the swingers that he saw in the gymnasium.

Eventually Pete was able to buy himself a membership in a gymnasium. Then came the day when he got a chance to fight in a preliminary—for $250. Pete accepted—and won. Tempus fuit. At last came the moment of joint claimant was to fight Joe Wagner back in 1914 in New Orleans, had to cancel the match on account of illness. There was no one else to offer up as a sacrifice to Wagner, who was going great guns at the time, except Herman, who was a preliminary kid.

Herman went on, punched Wagner all around the ring for 20 rounds, won by 12 or 13 miles—and became a sensation.

Beats Williams.

Called the day that Herman whipped "Kid" Williams, who was at the moment a joint claimant with Johnny Erle, for the bantamweight championship. That gave Pete a leg on the crown. He later established undisputed right to the title and, meanwhile, Sammy Goldman, a boyhood pal from New Orleans, began to do a good deal of business with Pete's annual income tax payments began to look like a statement involving the assets of the Federal Reserve bank.

But it remained for Goldman, as a manager, and Herman as a warrior, to bump all records into the discard during the 365 days that elapsed between December 22, 1920 and December 22, 1921.

On the night of December 22, 1920, Herman defeated Joe Lynch in Madison Square Garden, New York, and lost both the decision and the title. But he got approximately $30,000 for that affair. Hardly had the smoke of battle cleared when Herman was on the looney blue, on his way for England, where he got $35,000 for beating Jimmy Wilde.

Herman sailed back home, met four or five average bantams, beat 'em all and got an average of $7,500 for his work. The sale of his trip to England and picked up $25,000 for pounding Jimmy Higgins, bantam champion of England, into submission.

Three hours after the fight with Higgins ended, Herman was on his feet and ready to come back. Two days after he arrived he fought Joe Lynch, got $30,000 for it—and regained his title.

Then he fought Charley Ledoux, Frankie Daly, Young Montreal and about six others, in winning scattered parts of the country, getting from $5,000 to $10,000 for each of his efforts.

Early this fall Herman met Johnny Bufl, then flyweight champion, and lost the decision, thus surrendering his crown once again. But Herman got $18,000 for the work. Losing the championship simply acted as a spur for greater endeavor and Pete scooted to all parts of the country, picking up nifty purses wherever he was needed.

John D. Uneasy

Herman rounded out the year by warring against Midget Smith on December 22, 1921 in the very same garden where he lost the title to Lynch—and he got another bulky purse for his efforts.

John D. Rockefeller has sent out agents to find out how much of a financial spurt he must put on to keep Herman from gathering in the "richest man" championship.

Hays Undecided About Offer of Movie Concern

Friends Inclined to Think Postmaster General Will Not Quit Cabinet for New Position.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Postmaster General Hays said today he had not yet decided whether to leave the cabinet and accept the new place he had been offered in the motion picture industry and was not likely to make a decision within the next 10 days.

As matters now stand, it is said by some of the postmaster general's friends that he is not inclined to sever his connection with the administration, despite the unusual salary that would be carried by the position tendered him.

Details of the offer made by the motion picture people are to be discussed with them by Mr. Hays on January 14 and he is said to intend to hold an open house until after the conference.

Until yesterday the postmaster general, who had been away from Washington resting, had not made a proposal to him, some of those closely associated with him believe that in the end he may do so. The postmaster general is a comparatively poor man and when he entered the cabinet after devoting all his time for several years to his tasks as a national chairman, many of his friends predicted that he would stay in the government service only a year or so and then again take up his law practice.

Published figures to the effect that the motion picture producers have suggested $150,000 a year to begin with are said to be somewhat under the sum now in prospect, as the bid has been increased upon the postmaster general's hitherto repeated refusals.

Disabled Soldiers Want 'Buddy Doctors'

New York, Jan. 4.—More than 600 disabled soldiers at Fox Hills hospital, Staten Island, last night adopted a resolution asking the president not to sign the senate bill designed to reduce the size of the medical reserve corps of the public health service.

"These good old buddy doctors who will be replaced by local physicians—the cheap kind of doctor who has no interest in you or me," declared Edward Palmer of California, one of the disabled soldiers who urged the resolution on his comrades at a mass meeting.

Civilian practitioners, he said, "will lack sympathy for us lusers—the sympathy which our buddy doctor has, because he knows of the gasses, and he knows what to do." The service doctors, he asserted, were being "turned out into the street."

Brothers-in-Law Fight Duel With Shotguns in Swamp

Monroe, La., Jan. 4.—Deputy Sheriff W. G. MacCallum of Swamps and J. D. Hefflin, his brother-in-law, fought a duel with shotguns in the La. Fourche swamps. MacCallum was killed. Justifiable homicide was the verdict of the coroner's jury.

Arms Naval Experts Complete Report

Washington, Jan. 4.—(By A. P.)—The practical completion of the report to be submitted by the committee of naval experts to the naval committee of the armament conference and agreement of the submarine on Chinese tariff on a 5 per cent effective basis were two important developments today in the conference situation.

The naval committee may be called to meet this afternoon or tomorrow, it was said, to receive the report of the experts which will contain a body precise definition of the replacement schedules as well as the exact method of scrapping ships which are to be eliminated from the navies of the signatory powers.

While the rate agreed upon by the subcommittee on Chinese tariff is the same as that provided in existing treaties, the fixing of 5 per cent as the "effective" rate is expected to result in a clear increase of approximately 1 1/2 per cent to the Chinese government, adverse exchange having reduced the existing tariff to about 3 1/2 per cent.
