My Marriage Problems

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of "REVOLUTIONS OF A WIFE"

The Way Junior Helped Madge and Dicky

Shoes next to his best negligee shirts, a box of brown shoe polish snugly wrapped in his best white flannel trousers, these were but a few of the things I found to remedy in Dicky's packing.

I was fatigued by the trip to Kingston, nervous over the possibility of trouble at home, which I imagined Dicky might be keeping from me, and when after a strenuous hour I finally succeeded in finding a place for each article of Dicky's belongings, and strapped his suitcase, leaving space in his dressing bag and the emergency linen sack for the last things, I was almost ready for nervous tears. And when Dicky came in bringing Junior with grimy face, hands and knees, his romper and socks so torn and dirty that he could not possibly wear them another minute, I lost the last remnant of my self-control.

"What have you been doing with that child?" I demanded crossly. "Just look at him!"

"I shall have to give this child a full bath and change him from head to foot. And his rompers are all packed away. I had counted on his wearing this the rest of the day. You will pardon me, I am sure, for not reading the instructions."

"I Will Leave." "Please tell Mrs. Cosgrove that I shall be late to supper."

Jack and Jill

"We've the most interesting invitation for today, dear," Jill told Jack, as they were half-way through breakfast. "I forgot to tell you last night."

"What is that, I don't like 'interesting' things. They sound like educational travel lectures or something."

"You grouchily, half-asleep humbug? You do? But this is not a lecture, though it may be educational."

"What is it? A trip through the Natural History museum?"

"No, dear. It's a studio party in MacDougal alley, in the city, given by Mr. Pincus, the noted Swedish sculptor. Isn't that glorious?"

"Hah! I never saw anything glorious about MacDougal alley or any other of those punk byways in Greenwich village. Long-haired artists and short-haired girls who never paint anyone's face but their own. A lot of stupid, hypocritical fools, I'll say."

"I'll be thunderstruck. Why, dear, if you don't want to go, you needn't. But there will be poets and musicians and novelists and a lot of famous men there. We could eat dinner in the Pink Elephant or the Chu Chin Chow den or some of those romantic places."

"Very well," and Jack pushed back his chair. "I'd prefer a good conventional dinner in an American hotel untown, but if you want it, dearest, I'll be the martyr."

"I'll do it, and she was so serious about it that she forced herself to eat the almost unpalatable meal served on a wooden table, with a waitress who flirted outrageously with every man in the Pink Elephant—including Jack."

"That hero, however, was imperious. He did not like the place, the dinner nor Bohemianism in general."

CRAMPS, PAINS AND BACKACHE

St. Louis Woman Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Louis, Mo.—"I was bothered with cramps and pains every month and had backache and had to go to bed as I could not work. My mother and my whole family always took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for such troubles and they induced me to try it and it has helped me very much. I don't have cramps any more, and I can do my housework all through the month. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends for female troubles."

Just think for a moment, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been in use for nearly fifty years. It is prepared from medicinal plants, by the utmost pharmaceutical skill, and superior methods. The ingredients thus combined in the Compound correct the conditions which cause such annoying symptoms as had been troubling Mrs. Scholz. The Vegetable Compound exercises a restorative influence of the most desirable character, correcting the trouble in a gentle but efficient manner.
