

Mckelvie Fires Broadside at His Predecessor Governor Charges Neville Is "Irresponsible" in Attack on Special Session and Code Law.

Lincoln, Jan. 21.—(Special.)—Governor Mckelvie in a statement issued today goes to bat with Ex-Governor Keith Neville for alleged "irresponsible" charges made against the special session and the code department.

Only Way to Relief. Immediate relief could not be given taxpayers in any other way and I do not think this administration which inherited a deficiency of one-third of a million dollars from its predecessor should wait until another administration comes in to give taxpayers the benefit of $1,000,000 in decreased appropriations.

Continuing, the governor cited the act passed during the Neville administration pledging the state to carry on a five-year federal aid road-building program.

Then the governor launched into a defense of the code departments. He said: "Governor Neville says repeal of the code bill would effect a direct saving to the taxpayers of more than $2,000,000. The fact is that the only increased cost that could be attributed to the code is the $30,000 per year that is paid to six secretaries, and, in fact, less than half of this represents an increase, for these secretaries displaced other officials, including boards and commissions with big expenses to be paid by the state.

Practically all these activities of the code existed in various forms under Governor Neville's administration and any increase in cost is merely increased activities placed on these departments by the legislature. It is unbelievable that, with nearly every other state in the union adopting this form of administrative government, Nebraska would permit reactionary democratic politicians to return to the old inefficient and un-sound system of handling the state's business."

Yeggman Killed When Trying to Open Vault

(Continued from Page One.) after he was gone, but found the revolver still there. He had been brooding for the last six weeks because he was out of work. But I never thought he was doing such things.

The two little girls wept bitterly. Mrs. Hopkins regained her composure. To neighbors who called to comfort her she said: "If he had lived something else might have happened. I have plenty of friends and we will get along. But I am so sorry. He was a good husband and father."

Hopkins had evidently worked deliberately. A cigar partly smoked and with the hand still on was found by police and shown to Assistant Sales Manager Kenneth Goeby by police before they knew the dead man's identity.

"It's Hopkie," he exclaimed, "He worked for us and used to leave the bands on till the fire reached it."

Nitroglycerin Found. A bottle of nitroglycerin was found on a table near where Hopkins was at work. After he had broken in the Fifteenth street door, the man had unlocked both the Farnam street and the alley doors, evidently to make a way for his escape in emergency.

Hopkins had taken Hopkins at least five hours to drill through the heavy brick wall, then through the steel-lined vault, according to Harry Izard, superintendent at the Nebraska Power company.

Police believe there was another yeggman in the case, but did not see more than one. Hopkins worked as a carpenter in repairing the damage to the same vault when it was robbed about a year ago.

Hopkins' father, Philip Hopkins, is said to live in McDowell, Ky.

The largest adult night school in the United States is claimed by North Platte, Neb., a city of 11,000 people with 1,164 night school students between the ages of 16 and 80. There are 44 teachers. More than one person in every 10 in North Platte is a student in this unique school.

By January 6, the enthusiasm for the school was so wild that Superintendent of City Schools Little and the local authorities wired to Lincoln, and L. A. Hartly of the state vocational board and Miss Alice Loomis, supervisors of industrial education, hurried to North Platte.

Co-operation is said to be the keynote of the school's success. And besides this, according to Mr. Hartly, success is due to the fact that "the people of this locality are close to the grass roots. There isn't a snob in the town."

Nursery Is Next. Mrs. Joseph Roddy is chairman and Mrs. Walter Gilchrist secretary of a composite committee that works for the establishment of the school. A nursery is to be established in connection with the school, where small children will be cared for every evening while their parents are at school.

Detective Loses Fight Against Bigamy Charges

Man Accused of Having Three Wives in Three States Must Return to Minnesota. Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 21.—(Special Telegram.)—Earl Sorenson, private detective, charged with having three living wives in as many states, lost a week's fight today against facing bigamy charges in two states when Governor Mckelvie signed extradition papers which will force Sorenson to return to Minnesota.

Bigamy charges filed by wives Nos. 1 and 2 in Minnesota and South Dakota, respectively, were issued several weeks ago and Sorenson was located in Lincoln with alleged wife No. 3.

He was held for two days in the city jail charged with vagrancy while Minnesota and South Dakota officers waited for extradition papers which apparently could not go through.

Meantime, Sorenson instituted habeas corpus proceedings and was released late yesterday afternoon. As he stepped from the courthouse the South Dakota official arrested him on a fugitive-from-justice warrant which held Sorenson in jail until extradition papers from Minnesota arrived. South Dakota will relinquish its claim, but officers must wait now until Monday before taking him back to Minnesota, as it will take that long to dismiss the fugitive-from-justice warrant. "I'm going to stay with him through it all and in the end I'll be his lawfully wedded wife," wife No. 3 said today. Sorenson is 27. There is also a child-abandonment charge against Sorenson in South Dakota in connection with the child of wife No. 2.

This was a statement made by Federal Judge T. C. Munger as he imposed a series of stiff fines and sentences on a dozen violators of the Volstead law.
