

Federal Finance Plan Approved by Lower House

Attempt of Rodman to Handicap War Finance Corporation in Nebraska Meets Stern Rebuke.

Lincoln, Feb. 1.—(Special Telegram.)—The lower house today passed a resolution of approval to the work of the War Finance Corporation in Nebraska, when it voted down an attempt of Representative James A. Rodman of Kimball to throw a monkey wrench into plans of the corporation.

The fight opened when a bill, which exempted limits on War Finance Corporation loans to country banks, was under consideration. Rodman wanted the bill killed, claiming withdrawal of the loan limit was dangerous and collections on notes and not loans from the War Finance Corporation would put Nebraska banks back on their feet.

Farmer Favors Plan.
Representative George M. Wallace, a farmer at Orleans, declared if it hadn't been for war finance money used by farmers to buy stock and tide over the hard times, thousands now pulling out of the financial rut of the recent depression would be ruined.

"I can speak from the standpoint of a banker," Representative Dwight P. Griswold of Gordon said. "Our bank, like all others, suffered loss of deposits during the depression."

Saved Many Farmers.
"For a time, in order to replenish these deposits, there apparently was one thing left to do. That was to go out among the farmers who owed us money and make them pay up. That would have been a catastrophe, but a banker's first duty always is the protection of the depositors."

"Then the United States senate provided for the War Finance Corporation. The banks, through loans from it, replenished their deposits and kept the farmers going. I am in a national bank and we aren't limited in loans we received. This bill doesn't affect us, but it does affect the state banks, and I believe it is up to us to give the state banks as much help as we can get from the War Finance Corporation as national banks."

Excepting Rodman, the house voted unanimously for the bill.

Good Roads Are Big Asset of Nebraska

driver enters the conversation now and then; it is like riding on the train and chatting with the president of the railroad. He, it turns out, is a farmer who is trying to earn enough to pay the interest on his mortgage. No, he didn't operate his farm, but rented it to a tenant. They both lost money on it, but things are looking better now. The man who owns and farms his land and has kept clear of debt, he states, is living in comfort.

The passengers disembark for half an hour at Grand Island, the third largest city in the state. Business has been much better here since the first of the year, merchants admit, but they shake their heads when asked to explain. They, too, are just recovering from the idea that the west had received a complete knock-out.

Considerable Building.
Considerable building is going on here, and from the bus a row of new bungalows could be seen. At Aurora, the bustling county seat of Hamilton county, a brick dwelling is going up. That means a good deal when it is considered that in many country towns a new house has not been built for 10 years. A salesman who climbed aboard there had the same joyous air of surprise that is seen on the face of a man who expected to be hung, but has been pardoned at the last minute. He said orders were surprisingly good and that his trip through Iowa, the week before had shown similar business improvement.

The city of York, at the end of the overland trip, is one of the most attractive in Nebraska. Somehow, one always thinks of business as being good here. It is the center of cattle and hog feeding, two industries of production that are profitable just now. Farmers here are 80 per cent better off than last year, on the word of a man who is out among them constantly, selling livestock insurance. He told of attending a farm sale where goods and implements sold for $800,000—the interesting thing about this was that the purchasers who were farmers of the neighborhood, paid $7,400 in cash. Of course, this must be unusual or so much would not be heard of it, but at all farm sales, though prices may be low, a good deal is paid in cash.

Store Sells for Cash.
One of the principal merchandise stores in York is run on a strictly cash basis. The proprietor is now on a buying trip in New York City, but before he left he dropped the remark that his cash sales last Christmas were better than those of a year ago. The 80-mile trip through Adams, Hall, Hamilton and York counties showed every crib filled with corn and immense piles out in the open. Some of these were drawn into cylindrical shape by meshed wire fencing while others were merely heaps. One farm was pointed out with 8,000 bushels piled up near the barn. The farmers are holding corn for a price which will give them a fair profit. When that time comes, this country will feel like Uncle Sam has died and left it all his money.

Appropriation Measure Holding Up Legislature

Conference Committee Is Endeavoring to Settle Differences Between Two Houses.

Lincoln, Feb. 1.—(Special Telegram.)—Decision on the extent of reductions in the appropriation bill is all that is keeping the legislature from adjournment. It is expected this bill will be disposed of tomorrow and members will be home by Friday telling their constituents what they did and why they did it.

The senate has added $800,000 to the appropriations voted by the house. This includes the $250,000 for continuation of good road building, which the house ruled should be borne by property owners in an increased appropriation bill and not by automobilists as the gasoline tax provided.

When the senate sent the increased bill back to the house that body refused to concur on the senate changes. A conference committee was appointed by both bodies and this committee tonight was endeavoring to prepare an appropriation bill which will meet with approval of both bodies tomorrow.

A row is promised in the senate's action in adding $10,000 to the rate investigation fund of the state railway commission. While efforts were being made to dissuade certain members from fighting the road appropriations, there is no certainty that a fight will not be made on the good roads appropriation of $750,000.

Senate members of the conference committee working tonight are Busher, Miller and Wiltse; house members are Axtell, Leitwich and Armstrong.

For: Foster, Hascall, Bowman, Dyball, Medlar.
