Without it there would have been failure; with it you have heartened the world.

"I announce to your great joy the election of the pontiff." This confirmed to the throngs in St. Peter's square the election which had been indicated by the thin stream of white smoke which came from the metal stove projecting from the room of the Sistine chapel when the voting papers of the final ballot were burned.

Meanwhile, Pope Pius XI, after waiting for some moments in the Clementine hall, had left for St. Peter's, accompanied by the members of the sacred college. Arriving at the balcony at the entrance inside the cathedral he raised his hand and bestowed upon the multitude his first public benediction. He then returned to the Vatican, where, although reigning, the pope has remained virtual prisoners until their deaths.

It was a striking scene as Pope Pius made his first appearance at the front of St. Peter's. As his holiness' appearance, the assembled troops presented arms, while the crowd acclaimed the new pontiff.

Born in 1857. Cardinal Achille Ratti, archbishop of Milan, who today at Rome was chosen pope to succeed the late Pope Benedict XV, was for several years papal nuncio in Poland, where in discharge of important ecclesiastical functions when the Polish question became acute earned for him the esteem of Benedict XV and the gratitude of Vatican authorities. It was because of this service that the red hat was conferred upon him on June 19, 1921.

Cardinal Ratti was born in Desio, Italy, on March 31, 1857. For many years he was librarian of the Ambrosian library and archivist at Milan. Later he became librarian of the Vatican. In this position he remained until the new republic of Poland established official diplomatic relations with the Vatican, at which time Ratti was appointed archbishop and was assigned to Poland as the representative of the holy see.

Officials Seek New York Youth in Taylor Case

Jealousy on Part of Former Fiance of Beautiful Movie Star Motive, New Police Theory.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 6.—The little green-eyed monster, jealousy, police and private detectives say, has directed search for a prominent young New York man, formerly engaged to one of the beautiful stars of filmdom, in connection with the mystery murder last Wednesday night of William Desmond Taylor, noted motion picture director here, known in New York prior to 1908 as William Cunningham Deane-Tanner, art consultant.

This mystery suspect was reported today to have checked out of a hotel here on the day the murder was committed and left the city the following afternoon. He is believed by investigators to have headed for San Diego and possibly crossed the border into Mexico. His name is withheld by the police.

Close Friend of Director. The actress to whom this suspect was at one time engaged, according to investigators, was a close friend of the slain director and in this friendship, investigators say, they see a possible motive of jealousy which would lead to the murder.

For sustained interest and thrilling denouement, after denouement the case continues to project itself farther and farther above any movie mystery which the genius of the director ever developed for the theatergoer. Letters written by Mabel Normand to Taylor, reported missing following the murder and evidence concerning the presence for six months at least of a woman's pink silk nightgown in the luxuriously appointed bachelor apartment today add considerable interest to the case.

Investigators were reluctant to discuss the woman's nightgown and a bit of mystery attaches to it for Henry Peavey, the negro houseman of Taylor, told of it having been in the house until the night of the murder. Where it is now is a police mystery. They will not discuss it, but reports are that it disappeared with the letters.

Great List of Names. The probe goes deeper into the motion picture colony here and the great list of names of actresses and actors, as well as managers and employees, being questioned by the police begins to read like a list of those present at a great movie ball.

The complexity of affairs in the motion picture colony of Hollywood makes the tangled skein of circumstances uncovered by the police full of snarls and prove slow and difficult of unraveling, and project many possibilities into the case. Clues develop which, in being traced to the roots, develop as many roots as a banyan tree. This makes the following theory of the revenge through jealousy most difficult, police say, for it develops so many leads, in each case of an actress involved as the woman motive.

War Over in State; Farmers Optimistic

Duroc Jersey hogs belonging to W. H. Rasmussen. The best one of these sold at $250; the average price was $140, as compared with $109 last year. This sale was one of a series held last week, beginning at David City and ending at West Point. At Stanton, a point on this circuit, the sale of Ed M. Kern totaled $22,000. Herman Toelle's sale of these khaki-colored hogs at West Point averaged $177, increasing so rapidly that stuff bought one week could be resold the next at a profit.

At a farm sale recently, dairy cows sold at from $100 to $125, and a team of 1,200-pound horses for $300, after months in which it has been hard to sell horses at all. A span of mules was sold for $500 cash at Elgin.

The point of this is that farmers have faith in the future or they would not be attending these sales or bidding with such new strength. This northern half of the state has received about $2,500,000 from the War Finance corporation. It has about 80 per cent of the corn crop in farm cribs and is feeding a great many hogs, although there is talk of a shortage of these. The proposal to limit the corn acreage this spring was debated and lost at the Warnerville Community club recent week in some fine circles that Mr. Taylor had many times openly showed his affection for the screen favorite.

It was disclosed that Miss Normand recently made Mr. Taylor a present of a black amber cigarette holder valued at $1,800. This is said to be one of the finest things of its kind in the world. In return, Mr. Taylor gave Miss Normand a dresser set.

Not much land is being changed hands and a good deal of it is held by the sons of the original settlers. Colorado land salesmen are now at work among this substantial class of trade-chasing western land for acres that reached, in many cases, a price higher than $300. They also are appealing to tenants, who have saved up $5,000 and who wish to buy a farm of their own, but cannot afford high priced land.

While elsewhere in Nebraska the system of one-year leases is prevalent, this resulting in tenants shifting from one place to another and neglecting the fertility of the soil; in this section the custom of long term leases is growing. George D. Butterfield, who rents out 15,000 acres in Knox and Pierce counties, never makes a lease for less than five years. A clause is included, giving the right of cancellation by notice in September, to take effect the following March, but this is seldom used.

Long-Term Tenants. "You can't tell our rented farms from those that are operated by the owners following the war," says one one-year tenant can't be blamed for letting things run down and just skimming the soil, for he is not working for the future. Some of our tenants have been with us for 15 years, although most of them go before that and are not saying so themselves. They all work the land with an eye on the future and do a lot of things that are not immediately profitable, but repay them in the long run. They fertilize the land, plow deeper, clear out the weeds and manure the soil, and do many things that a mine, which anyone can tell you the average man on a one-year lease does not.

The problem of landlordism is a big one in Nebraska, but it is aside from the main program as drawn up by Mr. Butterfield, saying that the survey of Nebraska can not be ended without repeating 10 points selected by that meeting as representing what the farmers want: Farmers' 10 Demands. Deflation by labor and capital to match deflation of farm products. Creation of a credit system to suit the needs of agriculture. Adjustment of agricultural production to needs of consuming public. American assistance in the economic rehabilitation of Europe. More adequate financing for the export of food products. Preferential railroad rates on farm products for export. Lower retailing margin on the handling of food products. Great-Lakes St. Lawrence waterway. More complete information on foreign production and demand. In the old south the planter was the aristocrat. True, he had many slaves, but today the farmer has machinery for his slave, and many comforts undreamed of before. Here in Madison county 183 farms have modern water systems and 114 have modern lighting systems. One thousand, five hundred and eight-threes have motor cars, 136 have tractors and 125 have tractors.

fort known to the towns," says C. E. Burnham of the Norfolk National bank. "It would be the best thing that could happen to this nation if the aristocracy would settle on the farm and stay there."

Who knows, perhaps it will when the problems of production, markets, transportation, education and social life are adjusted fairly. But as it is, the boys who left the farm during the war have not returned, nor do many of the girls who once get away come back. There has been something wrong with agriculture, and with so many interests, even the business men of the east, fretting themselves about it. It begins to appear that a new farm age is dawning.

Des Moines, Feb. 6.—(Special Telegram)—Gov. N. E. Kendall was urged today by the Iowa Anti-Saloon League to take the toga of Senator Kenyon at Washington. Conference on Arms Ends; Pacts Signed (Continued From Page One.) had been affixed previously and conference attaches standing at the elbows of the delegates pointed where each was to write his name. Baron Deating, the only Belgian delegate, took his place as Elihu Root arose from the table. He had two treaties to sign, the general far eastern and the Chinese tariff.

Chinese Delegates Sign. The Chinese succeeded the British at the table and began signing. China is party only to the far eastern and the tariff treaties. Albert Sarraut and Jules Jusserand, the only two French delegates remaining in Washington, followed the Chinese and finished signing the treaties and the supplements in which France is concerned. Senator Schanzer, Ambassador Ricci and Senator Albertini for Italy had four treaties, but no supplements to sign.

Japanese Applauded. To the accompaniment of a roar of applause, the three Japanese delegates filed around to the table. Baron Kato signed first. Baron Shidehara and Vice Foreign Minister Hanjira followed, each signing his name to all five documents. President Harding arrived while the Japanese were signing, but waited in a cloakroom for the ceremony to be completed. Minister de Beaufort and Jonkheer Van Blokland, the two delegates of the Netherlands, signed. Their government was party only to the two far eastern treaties. Viscount D'Almeida and Captain Vasconcellos, the Portuguese delegates also had two treaties to sign and they finished at 10:50. That ended the signing.

Officials Deny Receiving Letter Attacking Army

Charges of "Prussianism" by Major Fail to Reach White House, Attaches Declare.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Declaration was made by Maj. Malcolm Wheeler-Nicholson of the Third United States cavalry, that he had sent a letter to President Harding charging that "the army is suffering from a reign of Prussianism," but at the White House and War department it was said that no such letter had come to the attention of officials.

The major, who is a patient at Walter Reed army hospital here, made public copies of his letter, which he said he had directed to the president at the risk of court martial for insubordination. His letter declared "a veritable reign of terror exists among junior officers of the army today" and that "this is caused by the unhindered power of the clique to have any officer discharged from the service by operation of what is known as the Class B law."

House Refuses to Pass Bill to Aid Indians Washington, Feb. 6.—The house today refused to suspend its rules and pass a bill authorizing an appropriation of $100,000 for the purchase of food, clothing and other supplies for destitute Indians. With a two-thirds vote required for suspension of rules a motion to pass the bill by this method was lost, the vote being 154 for to 104 against the proposal.

State Expects to Tear Down Moral Alibi in King Case County Attorney Understood to Have Witnesses From Boise, Ida., to Attack Character Depositions.

Despite the fact that no new evidence is being introduced in the retrial of Mrs. Eva King for first-degree murder in connection with the Lena Schneider handkerchief tragedy, interest in the case does not wane. The space allotted to spectators was occupied yesterday in Judge Wheeler's division of the Council Bluffs district court.

County Attorney Swanson expects to put on new witnesses in rebuttal to the end of the trial. It is understood that two persons will be here from Boise, Idaho, to attack the character witnesses who gave Mrs. King and her mother a fine record during the year they lived in the town. The state has not disclosed the identity of these witnesses and the defense will not know who they are until they are called to the witness stand. The belief is that the case will reach the jury by the end of the week.
