Let Housework Help Your Hands

Housework makes the palms of the hands suffer but that can be prevented. Most housewives, in buying a broom, examine the business end, but how many take a grip of the handle? If you have small hands you need a small handle. Otherwise you cannot get a good grip. Thus your hands get "corned" on the inside and spread. The latter comes from having to take hold of a larger surface than the hands can really manage. The hand literally spreads out to get a grip. If you have a big hand a small handle cramps you, as you may know, and pulls the hand out of shape. So let the broomstick or handle be chosen with care so that it fits you.

A too-big handle can be spoke-shaved down or filed with a wood file. And why not, if you have a piece of old velvet, put quite a piece where your hand grips? It may be asked—And what about washing? You must use your hands then. Well, these new vacuum washers almost eliminate the hands, but for those who have not yet tried one—boon and blessing though they are—here is the way to save your hands. Before you begin to wash massage your hands thoroughly with a little olive oil. Rub it in so that the skin will absorb it. Wipe off any surplus, and then set about your washing. You will find that the hands don't get sore, do not crinkle, and that the skin will be quite supple. Ordinarily, a day's washing would rob the skin of all its natural oil. The olive oil adjusts matters. And when the wash is done just oil the hands again and wash them in (if obtainable) soft, warm water.

At night massage the hands with a good cold cream and put on an old pair of kid gloves with holes punctured in the palms. Your hands should soon be white and presentable.

Mrs. John Latenser and Miss Josephine Latenser will leave Tuesday evening for New York, where they will spend several days before sailing February 18 for Italy. Mr. Latenser will meet them at Genoa. While in New York Mrs. Latenser will visit her son, who is in Manhattan college.

Miss Laura Scott is in Washington, where she plans to spend several months. Miss Scott is living at the Women's National Foundation and has been attending the open sessions of the peace conference. Her brother, Edgar Scott, and his family, formerly of Omaha, are living in Washington this winter.

Problems That Perplex

Answered by BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

He's a Romeo. Dear Miss Fairfax: Now, Miss Fairfax, what do you think of a fellow who has two girls? He likes one just as much as the other. I am one of those girls—16 years of age. We both love him, and he seems to return both of our affections. I asked him to give either one of us up, but it seems to be a hard proposition for him to do. Saturday night he took me out, and Sunday night he took the other girl out. When he finds out he takes me out he says she doesn't mind, but when I find out he takes her out I get jealous. What would you advise me to do? HEARTBROKEN.

Are you afraid of turning the young man's head? That must be a delightful sensation for him to have two girls openly fighting for first place. But, then, you are all so young, my advice would be to all three get together and have a good laugh over it. You might even come to a quiet, amicable agreement by casting lots as to which one for Saturday evening and which for Sunday, the loser to look about for another young Romeo.

Fifteen Minutes Late. Dear Miss Fairfax: I am going with a young man four years my senior. I love him, having a date with him one night at 7:30 I happened to show up at a quarter to 8 and he was not there, and on the same night I met him at a school dance and he said he was through with me, and while saying it he smiled and said that I was going with another young man the same night, which was a lie. Will you please advise me if it is right for me to make up and how, or to let him make up with me? LILLIAN.

The young man has not learned a lamentable feature about our sex—our inability to arrive on time at a given place. However, he has a case against you which, together with jealousy, inspired his unfair accusation. But, then, you have to be fairly tolerant of a jealous young man like that, trying to remember they are the real sufferers following their hasty remarks and actions.

He's Only Teasing. Dear Miss Fairfax: I am a girl of 16 and like to follow three years my senior. This fellow is a brother of my best friend, and every time I go there he tells me that when I'll wear high heels and put my hair up he will take me out and he says he will wait for me. He keeps constantly asking me when I will grow up, and I tell him that I'm not in a hurry. I would like to know what you think of it and what it means. H.A.L.Y.

The boy is just teasing you, Sally, dear. Does he not tease his sister, too? It means nothing at all, child. Just a nice little brand of pleasantry your chum's brother is providing.

Cricket and Bob: A beauty expert can remove the wart. I think your questions are not seriously made.

You Need More Than Good Fitting

"Good Fitting" is a mere phrase unless you buy shoes that are basically right in design and construction to afford the correct natural foot support. It's the ordinary shoe with its sagging arch that causes foot aches and pains. Arch Preserver Shoes, with the built-in arch bridge, give real comfort, because they eliminate all strain. They are in good style, too, always having a smart, clean-cut appearance. Why don't you find out about real foot happiness?
