What the "Movies" May Become.

That the cinematograph has not attained, perhaps not approached, the limit of its possibilities, is admitted by all who have given the matter serious attention. Scientists are studying the machine, with a view to extending its range, the special quest being for the stereoscopic projecting lens, that will give the pictures the semblance of life, rather than the motion of shadows.

Illiterate, But Not Ignorant.

One of the educators of national repute, talking to the conference on illiteracy at Chicago last week, said a man may be illiterate and yet not ignorant. This is granted. A certain degree of native shrewdness usually marks the man or woman who can not read or write, but this is not an argument in favor of neglect of opportunity to acquire enough of an education to at least read and write.

The Splendor That Goes Unseen.

"When Jackson opened his mouth he said something worth while," is Vachel Lindsay's characterization of that American president. The poet went on to express his disgust with "our modern soupy daily writings, of the soupy weekly and the soupy monthly."

THE HUSKING BEE

It's Your Day
Start It With a Laugh
HIGH AIM.
At times I have a wish to write a sonnet,
And then it is of fame I sit and dream—
Vain seeking through the shadows for a theme
That I may put the stamp of genius on it.

Selling Psychology.

"We have largely subdued the material world to our uses, but men are trained and selected, influenced and controlled, employed and dismissed, put in prison and in congress by methods that have survived from the pre-scientific period."

PHILOSOPHY.

A rolling stone gathers a lot of polish.
When a woman hesitates to tell anything, it isn't a secret.

STUNG.

He married her for her graceful form
And then, I do declare,
He came home and found that form
Reposing on a chair.

TODAY'S IDLE THOUGHT.

It takes a mighty pretty girl to wear a last year's model and get away with it.

SQUARE DEAL.

He stole a kiss but gave it back—
The maiden now believes
That there is truth in that old hack,
Of honor among thieves.

FRIENDSHIP PLUS.

Philo, Old Thing: This salutation being the result of a few evenings' association with a very flippant flapper.

ISN'T IT THE TRUTH?

Man's work is from sun to sun,
He goes each day and hustles through it,
But woman's work is never done
Unless she has a maid to do it.

RARE.

Once in a shoe clerk's life, forsooth,
He meets a maiden sweet
Who will admit the honest truth,
That she has got big feet.

AFTER-THOUGHT.

A man buried in thought is dead to the world. PHILO.

How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS.
Questions concerning hygiene, sanitation and prevention of disease, submitted to Dr. Evans by readers of The Bee, will be answered personally, subject to proper limitations. Questions stamped, addressed envelope in care of Dr. Evans will not be made. Address letters in care of The Bee.

CONSTIPATION'S DANGERS.

Dr. A. F. Kraetzer holds that there are many thousands of persons who are suffering from constipation, but who complain of being nervous, tired, irritable, never feel quite fit, have flatulence and distress after eating, and constantly "catch cold."

Poet and Stage

Mr. Bernard Rosenberg's opinion that Shakespeare owed "very little" to the "executive instrument" is of interest as echoing the many critics who have found, not Shakespeare's stage but the modern picture stage inadequate.

When Mamma's a Flapper

Of course "things have come to a helluva pass" when Chicago school boys and school girls indulge in the cardinal vices and when investigation reveals smoking, drinking, cabaret going, limousine driving and visits to flapper and main-tained by school boys, as terminal facilities.

TELL ME.

Tell me, what has become of the quiet young girl
With the natural color and neatly kept curls?
The bobbed and the painted has taken her place,
And all knowing acquiescence her innocent "I'll say, it is!"

TELL ME.

Once a girl played with dolls at the age of fourteen,
And was happy after-school hours di- viding moonbeams;
Now for every night "there's a date, don't you know?"
That will keep her out late where she's willing to go.

TELL ME.

If you criticize, caution, demur or deny,
She answers, "The times that have changed and not I."
Both in girl and in garb she must follow the year,
And the dad or the mother that dares interfere is "far behind," we hear.

TELL ME.

The world's topey-turvey, and it is for that,
If this situation is payment for "that"
Then tell me, wise-acre, can't Simon's stern "down" on this "that" to the girl that has come,
Else what shall be the sum?
