

Attractive Personalities Omaha Has Given to Vaudeville.

"Charles Withers," vaudeville headliner, is Garland Davidson off stage. He is a graduate of Central High school and has many friends in Omaha. His last appearance here was in the playlet, "For Pity's Sake," at the Orpheum.

George B. Phelps, reared in Council Bluffs, where his family lived until two years ago, began his stage career in Omaha as a member of the old Woodward stock company. He appeared here recently with Corinne Tilton as one of the principals of "A Chameleon Revue," a headline Orpheum attraction.

Paul Reese, a brother of Ernest A. Reese, 1553 South Twenty-fifth avenue, is a distinctively Omaha contribution to vaudeville. He is appearing this season with Louise Dresser and Jack Gardner.

This charming young actress is Miss Hazel Wilcox, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. W. A. Wilcox, 4947 Emmett street. She used the costume shown in the photo in her last appearance here with the "Cameo Quintet," Orpheum attraction.

Here's Franker Wood, former Omahian, as he appears in costume in "All Right Eddy," the sketch in which he and Bunea Wyde are "knocking 'em dead" on the Orpheum circuit this season.

Freddie and Adele Astaire, appearing in a repertoire of songs and dances, were formerly Fred and Adele Austerlitz, of Omaha. They were child prodigies of the stage in their earlier years, and the critics have been giving them credit for improvement each season.

Pretty "Bobby Derant," who plays the Empress theater during her appearance in Omaha, is Miss Carrie Kahn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Kahn, 2015 Sherman avenue. "Ruffles," a one-act skit, is her vehicle this season.

This smiling and successful vaudeville team is composed of Hazel and Ethel Solomon, daughters of the late J. J. Solomon, of Omaha. They appeared recently at the Empress, as the "Anselma Sisters" in "Tidbits of Vaudeville."

Bunea Wyde, second member of the team of Wood and Wyde, is a former Omaha girl. It's a good team and Bunea's beauty and ability help keep it at the top.

This Omaha miss, graceful and attractive, is Florence Ellsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Ellsworth. Her personality and singing and dancing ability have won for her pronounced success on the Orpheum circuit.
