By HOLLAND. While many competent authorities re predicting a revival in industry nd mercantile business before the resent year ends, yet it is observed tat none of these authorities are silling to say that anything like a om in industry will be under way. All the authorities agree that it will e the better part for industry and ommerce to make haste slowly. A udden boom would surely be folswed by collapse, Covernor Norris f the Federal Reserve bank of Philadelphia, in an address recently felivered, said that it is idle for anyie to look forward, as many are ow doing, to a great business boom the present year. He also calls tention to the fact that every boom eriod in business was started by ne event which came suddenly nd unforseen, but irresistable in its

The reaction in the foreign exchange and grain markets was neither illogical nor unexpected. It was hardly necessary to bring up Lloyd George's threatened resignation or the better growing weather in the winter wheat belt to explain them, for the very extraordinary rise in the last two months, amounting to
