Mays Brings Delight to Yanks

Everybody is happy in the New York Yankees' training camp. Carl Mays, the master of the "submarine ball," the last of the team's holdout brigade, sent old man gloom on his way when he signed a two year contract calling for more than $100,000 a year for his labors on the mound.

Major Clubs Play Practice Games at Camps--Ruth's Big Salary Inspires Yank Rooks

NEW YORK, March 6.—Down at the Yankee training camp in New Orleans today, Manager Miller Huggins and his American league champions of 1921 were all dressed up in their snappiest accoutrements in anticipation of the arrival of Babe Ruth, fence and record smasher and baseball's child of fortune.

They had been apprised of the fact that Babe, by the mere flipping of a paltry copper penny, had won for himself a contract calling for a salary of something around $200,000 a year and a $500 bonus for every time he bumped the horseshoe for a round trip of the socks.

That started the rookies to thinking yesterday and they galloped through their training stunts with an enthusiasm that did not escape the eyes of Huggins.

Huggins had only one worry left—Aaron Ward, and his salary complaints. Yesterday Ward and Huggins talked over their differences, but failed to come to terms. Ward is reported to be holding out for a salary of $100,000 a year.

John McGraw still was giving attention to his youngsters at the San Antonio training camp.

Sixty Nebraska Athletes to Run State Tourney

LINCOLN, March 6.—Sixty or more Cornhusker athletes will participate in the 21st annual basketball tournament which opens here Thursday. Over 100 games are slated for the first day. Almost half the teams will be eliminated in the games, but the tournament will require a multitude of referees during the entire season.

Among the older Cornhusker athletes who will officiate are Ted Riddell, Charles Gillilan, John Pickett, Cable Jackson, John Riddell and a host of other well known letter men.

The "Y" club is taking charge of the officials and at a meeting of the club, which consists of men who have won their letters in Cornhusker athletics, the assignments to the different games were made.

Owen Frank, basketball coach, is assisting the "Y" men in framing the schedule for officials which promises to be almost as hard a piece of work as that of drawing up the schedule itself. The selection of officials takes in almost every Cornhusker athlete and this will include many first year students who have played basketball in high school. The freshmen, however, will be assigned to lower classes.

Important Changes Made in Rating of Class "A" Cage Teams
THE annual high school basketball tournament this season will see many changes in the rating of the teams as well as a number of additional names on the list of entries.

Kimball, the semi-finalists with Lincoln last year, has not entered the tourney. Auburn, another class "A" team, dropped to class "C" this year, while Norfolk is not entered. Superior, like Auburn, dropped to class "C" standing.

In their places Crete, a class "C" team last year; Wahoo, Fremont, Alliance and Clay Center, class "B" teams last season, all advanced to the highest group. The changes will make more than one-third of the classification in the highest class.

Omaha is well represented in the first class with four teams listed, Omaha Commerce, Omaha Central, South Omaha and Creighton Prep. Omaha has one-fourth of the upper class all to itself, giving the metropolis a good chance to take the pennant into that city.

Lincoln, Sutton and Omaha Central appear to be the leading contestants from the rating of their games this season. Omaha Central and Lincoln

Idleness Prevails in Camps of State High Cage Teams as Annual Title Tourney Approaches

Lincoln, March 6.—With their competitive playing schedules completed, some with satisfaction, others in varied degrees, idleness temporarily prevails in the camps of Nebraska high school basketball squads. General orders in the heavy majority of camps read "rest," three or four days of it, then entrainment for the capital city and the championship classic, beginning Thursday.

Less than a dozen games are found to be on schedule this week, from those cards that have been made public. There is an added possibility that a few of them have been cancelled since the schedule was made up in order to permit the team's participation in the tournament.

Following the announcement of classifications of the entries, the popular indoor sport the forepart of this week will be the doping out of the individual chances and the running possibilities in their bracket. Considerable shaking up in classification was done by the committee in grouping the teams, some in lower classes and others hoisted in lieu of season performances.

The state meet will open under a rather unique situation. For the first time in a number of years, observers state, a possible champion in each of the higher classes cannot be settled upon prior to the beginning of play. A pre- and reversals have been so frequent in all divisions during the season that comparative scores practically are valueless to dopsters.

Lincoln looked very good for the Class "A" berth up until last week, when it was defeated by Sutton, 23 to 16. It was a second defeat. Although the Lincoln squad has played erratic throughout the season, the team managed to squeak out with victory. With this possible exception, paper followers of the interscholastic race thus far have refrained from picking any possible champion in any other division.

The following games were scheduled:

Station at Warren, March 7. Valerius at Cedar Bluffs. Holdings at Grand Island. York at Fullerton and Berkeley at Alliance, all March 10.
