Should One Take Self Seriously

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

"I've no patience with the people who are afraid to take themselves seriously," said a wonderful woman recently. "I'm sure that nothing worth while was ever accomplished by anyone who did not take his work so seriously that he put his best into a serious endeavor to accomplish what he had set out to do."

"When we talk about the inadvisability of taking ourselves seriously, what we mean is not to let ourselves be eaten up by conceit about what we have accomplished. There is so much to do that the greatest effort any one of us can make is nothing more than a drop in the bucket.

Work requires unstinted effort. Constant striving is possible in the face of defeat only when our belief in the ultimate victory is a serious and unswerving conviction.

"Believe in yourself and you'll go on to justify that belief." Let's make that our creed.

Don't Tell All You Know if It's Unpleasant

By LORETO C. LYNCH.

Many folks feel that there is something essential lacking when meat is taken from the meal. There are, however, number of soups which, though lacking meat, are most nourishing as well as toothsome, and when served at the beginning of luncheon or dinner, go far toward dispelling the appetite.

Clean and pick over the beans, using a little over half a cupful of cold water. Reserve the liquor. Put aside the soft part of the beans; finely chop the hard parts, add to liquor, bring gradually to the boiling point, strain, and add soft part of beans and thicken with butter and flour rubbed together.

Soak the beans over night in the morning drain, rinse and cook in the cold water. When soft, run through a sieve. Cut the vegetables into small cubes and cook about five minutes in half the butter. Remove the vegetables, add flour, salt and pepper and stir into the hot soup.

Bean soup is a tasteless concoction unless one follows a really good recipe. You will find in cream of lima bean soup a tasty, nutritious and inexpensive dish. It is made from: One cupful dried lima beans, three pints cold water, two slices onion, five slices carrot, one cupful rich milk, four tablespoons butter, two tablespoons flour, one scant teaspoonful salt and one-half teaspoonful pepper.

Cut the leeks and celery into very thin crosswise slices and cook in the 2 1/2 tablespoons of butter for 10 minutes, stirring constantly. Add milk and cook in a double boiler 45 minutes. Cut potatoes into 1-4-inch cubes and cook in boiling salted water 10 minutes. Drain.

Combine the butter with the flour and add it to the contents of the double boiler with the potatoes. Continue cooking until the potatoes are soft. Add seasoning.

Jolly Seniors. The Jolly Seniors will give a St. Patrick's dance at Crouse hall Tuesday evening.

Sealing Wax Jewelry Is Latest Fad.

Just because you do not happen to possess the Hope diamond or a string of pearls, you need not feel that you have not the latest in jewelry—that is if you happen to possess a few sticks of sealing wax.

For it has been ordained by Dame Fashion that sealing wax jewelry is quite the latest thing. In fact, the smart shops are showing it. Among the smart novelties are attractive brooches to be worn around the neck on black ribbon. These are black with bright colors and have whole gardens of little flowers trimming them.

Sets of lipstick holder and powder box are unusual, fashioned with flowers in wreaths of sealing wax. Hat ornaments, one in particular of geranium red with silver in it, makes sealing wax glow with pride in the knowledge that from its lowly station in life as a seal for letters it has been elevated to a position on lady's hat.
