Dependent upon ill-health, James Greenfield, 47, of Chicago leaped to his death from a fifth story window at the Iowa Methodist hospital here. Greenfield, who was a traveling salesman for a Chicago firm, was taken to the hospital March 11, suffering from a nervous breakdown. The tragedy followed a reception held in the entrance of the women's and children's ward. The salesman, who was permitted to walk about the halls, climbed the stairs and stepped into the bathroom. Carefully knocking the ashes from his pipe on the window ledge the salesman laid his pipe on the sill, stepped on the edge of a bathtub, climbed to the open window, and plunged forward to his death. His act was not discovered until nurses and attendants on the floor below saw the hurtling body strike the ground. Although the salesman fell five floors death was not instantaneous.

Want Receiver Removed

First steps looking toward dissolution of the present receivership of the Des Moines City Railway company were taken when Federal Judge Martin J. Wade at Ottumwa signed an order permitting the company to exercise its corporate powers to borrow money with which to pay its debts.

The court order was in response to an offer by the company to assume and pay the debts incurred by the receivership and to pay many of the long past due debts of the company itself if it were again placed in control of its property and the receivership lifted. The offer states that the company on the strength of its franchise granted November 29, has arranged for credit to pay its debts if it can get its property under its management between March 28 and April 1.

"Pal Al" Reeves Back With Banjo

Old Gayety Favorite Returns With One of Best and Cleverest Shows of Season.

A performance that by the entire absence of anything suggestive makes a direct appeal to the women features Al Reeves' "Big Beauty" combination at the Gayety theater. The show is not made up of bits, but consists of scenes of merit. There is a costly splash with costumes and scenic effects.

"Pal Al" personally appears with his banjo and a line of chatter that takes one back to the old days. Years ago he won the Richard K. Fox medal in the world's championship banjo playing contest. His comeback this year proves that he has lost none of his cunning with his strings. His fingers manipulate the instrument in flawless fashion, bringing out the tones clear cut and without a blemish.

Harry (Heine) Cooper, a graduate of other Columbia shows, evidences decided improvement. His comedy methods are more effective. Frank Pickett, who assists him in the fun making, will be one of the leading comedians on the circuit. His specialty was one of the big hits of the show. Peggy Reade and Evelyn Dean in their song numbers were one of the most pleasing features of the performance. Mae Jensen carries the bulk of the song numbers, assisted by Helen Gillis.

Walter Pearson, "the man who wears the clothes," and Charlie LaVine, in character parts, add much to the entertainment.

Mr. Reeves shows that his eyes have not lost their cunning any more than his banjo hands. He has a real beauty chorus. The entire company is well proportioned and the show ranks among the topnotchers on the circuit.

Over Half Million Men Will Quit April 1 Unless Agreement Is Reached, Union Chief Says.

New York, March 19.—Six hundred thousand union miners in the anthracite and bituminous fields will quit work April 1, unless some unforeseen solution of the present wage controversy is offered in the meantime. John L. Lewis, president of the international organization of United Mine Workers announced. Plans for evacuation of the mines already are under way, Mr. Lewis said. In the event of a walkout crews of pumpmen, engineers, firemen, watchmen and helpers will remain at their posts to prevent flooding of the mines and maintain the general wage council, session at Shamokin, Pa. An arbitrators committee of eight, composed of operators and miners, will meet here Tuesday to discuss a new wage scale for this field.

Final orders for withdrawal of the men will be issued by the general policies committee of the union at Cleveland or Chicago, probably next week, it was said, effective in case operators and miners fail to arrange a new working contract before April 1.

The order to suspend operations in the anthracite field April 1 already has been issued by the miners' general wage council, session at Shamokin, Pa. An arbitrators committee of eight, composed of operators and miners, will meet here Tuesday to discuss a new wage scale for this field.

Work in bituminous mines automatically will cease April 1, Mr. Lewis said, because of the operators' refusal to meet with the miners, in accordance with the terms of their last contract.

Wages Above Prewar Level

The national industrial conference board issued a preliminary statement on its investigation of conditions in the anthracite coal situation, declaring that actual earnings of workers in the anthracite field were 150 per cent higher than before the war—a greater increase than that received by wage earners of railroads and in manufacturing industries.

The investigation covered the period from the last of June, 1921, to the last part of October, 1921, and included 53 companies employing 94,514 men and operating 179 collieries, with production in 1920 of $4,640,938 tons.

The percentage of increase in actual hourly earnings for anthracite workers, the report stated, was 113 per cent from July, 1914, to July, 1921; for railroad workers up to October 1, 1921, 131 per cent, and for anthracite workers, 166 per cent. By July, 1921, it was found that the average weekly earnings of workers in manufacturing industries were only 83 per cent above 1914; those in railroad work in October, 1921, 102 per cent, while in anthracite mining the increase was 152 per cent.

Southern Ireland Bracing Itself for More Trouble

Tension Along Tyrone-Monaghan Border Increasing—Inhabitants in Hourly Dread of Hostilities.

By PAUL WILLIAMS, Copyright, 1932.

Dublin, March 19.—Expecting nothing but trouble from Gen. Sir Henry Wilson, the south is bracing itself against the activities of the forces under the former British chief of staff in the execution of the task of restoring order in Ulster and strengthening the frontier. For this purpose $8,800,000 has been set aside.

The tension along the Tyrone-Monaghan border is increasing and the inhabitants are in hourly dread of hostilities. About 500 additional Irish republican troops have taken up positions along the southern side of the border between Anghacloy and Caledon.

Fearing an attack from the north, a detachment of the Irish republican army opened fire on a group of men near Mullens hill, but there were no casualties. All the bridges north of Anghacloy have been destroyed and the roads have been demolished. Bridges are being demolished all along the frontier and communication between County Monaghan and County Fermanagh are being cut off. Lackey bridge and Carranah bridge near Clonely and a new bridge near Clonely have been blown up. The road from Clones to Cavan and Beltrush has been destroyed in several places by mines north of the border.

The Catholic population within a large portion of Ulster is now isolated from the rest of the territory. The Dublin press asks what is meant by this method of safeguarding the frontier and the answer generally given is war.

University of Nebraska Costs Over $2,000,000

Cost of Operation Includes Running of Agricultural College and Other State Branches.

legislature, bent on saving money for the students, ordered a college bookstore established to sell texts and reference works at cost. Inasmuch as the profit of a bookstore comes chiefly from selling pencils, paper and other supplies and the legislature failed to authorize dealing in these, the bookstore is losing about $400 a month.

It is not too much to say if the legislature desires to cut off all activities except those on the campus, the university could be run for one-half of what it is now costing, and yet have almost as many students. Without question a great many of the outside features are giving valuable service to the people, some of which results indirectly.

Thus, one complains about the cost of the agricultural college, it can be replied that the experiments conducted there, quite aside from the instruction given students, have brought millions
