Entire Field of Controversy Over Arms Conference Reviewed During Debate on Pacific Pact.

Washington, March 19 .- The whole field of controversies centering about the arms conference was reviewed in the senate during an allday debate on the four-power Pacific

For the first time since early in the week, the treaty's supporters joined battle directly with its irreconcitable opponents and a score of senators, and fully as many issues of the treaty fight were drawn into the running cross-fire of argument. Senator Robinson, democrat, Arkansas, started the field day of oratory with a speech supporting his amendment to pledge the four signatory powers against secret diplom-He was seconded in the attack Senator Johnson, republican, Calfornia, who asked why the Franco-Japanese alliance, as well as the Anglo-Japanese alliance, had not been terminated by the four-power pact, and later Senator Borah, republican, Idaho, joined in with an assault on the Shantung settlement as an example of the sort of dipmacy with which he said the United States should not associate itself.

Poindexter Defends Conference.

When the discussion drifted to the naval limitation treaty and its fortification prohibitions, Senator Poin-dexter, republican, Washington, defended the conference as a real peace accomplishment, and when the Shantung agreement was assailed, Sena-tor Lenroot, republican, Wisconsin, read portions of the Shantung treaty to support his argument that the conference had produced a great deal of actual benefit to China. He took a short cut through the railroad yards on his way back to his cating house, and was accosted by two young men with revolvers, who invited him to "stick 'em up." But Philiponis thought of Charlie and his pies. He was brave. The next moment one of the pies hurtled through the air and clung to one bandit's eyes and cheek bones. The other bandit raised his revolver, only to bank and drew out $350 to pay his evidence to the growing strength of the general situation, that outside holders of stocks are manifestly not selling as they did in 1921 or 1920, even on a considerable rise in prices.

Downward Reactions Brief.

This time it is the downward reactions which are of brief duration and which are followed by a still more positive movement in the opposite direction.

The fall in the Wall street money market last week, tringing rates for one and two months loans to 4½ and 4½ per cent, respectively, the lowest since last July and marke the first time in four months that the consumption has fallen below 500,000 bales. The February average of 1217, was in some of its aspects, a striking incident, but in reality only continued a movement which has now been going on for nearly 12 months.

Last week's decline is not the less noteworthy, however, from the fact that in ordinary years of normal financial and industrial conditions, March is apt to be a month of advancing money markets. One inference from the present movement might, therefore, be that revival intrade is not expected. So far as concerns belief or disbelief in business expansion of large proportions during the coming season, the lower money rate, would have precisely that significance. But no one has been indulging in expansion of a business boom. The most that even the hopeful prophets see for the "apring trade" is another shaking off of that outright lethargy which has prevailed during most of the time since the downward reaction ended in the mid-die of 1921.

Building Permits Gain.

Signs multiply of a revival of construction activities in different parts of the country, and another month's building statistics make a favorable exhibit. While the estimated value of the February permits is 6.5 per cent less than that of January, eight fewer cities made returns than in the earlier periods, and some allowance should be made for the fact that February is the shortest month of the year. That conditions in this industry are more satisfactory than those of a year ago is evidenced by the increase of 44.6 per cent in the February permits, the total for that month of 1921 being little in exceeding from last year's figures demonstrates that the improvement has been widespread, and specially noteworthy expansion appears at New York city and some other large conjers. At 126,673,584, the February permits at the metropolis show a gain of 83.6 per cent at all points outside of New York which are included in the statement.
