Suit to Decide Future Powers of Labor Board

Fate of Organization Hinges on Decision in Case Brought by Pennsylvania Road, Attorney Says.

Chicago, April 4.—If the Pennsylvania railroad is upheld in its suit to enjoin the United States railroad labor board from rendering decisions, the board must close up shop and transfer all its proceedings to the federal courts, Blackburn Esterlin, special assistant to the attorney general of the United States, declared when the Pennsylvania innction case came before Federal Judge George P. Page.
Attorney Esterlin contended that the jurisdiction of the court did not extend over the board, that body being an administrative arm of the United States government,

The history of the controversy was reviewed by Attorney Esterlin after citing four cases in which the trans-portation act, which the Pennsylvania attacks as unconstitutional "had successfully withstood attacks in the supreme court." He contended that the Pennsylvania had recognized the law and the board by reason of asking the board, in 1921, to terminate the old federal national agreements, under which the road's employes still worked after the road

Tri-City Dental Society Endorses Credit Bureau

A resolution passed unanimously by the Tri-City Dental society en-dorsing and urging members of the society to join the Associated Retail Credit Bureau and Credit Men of Omaha, was read at the regular meeting of the credit organization at the Brandeis restaurant yesterday.

The resolution was as follows: "We the Tri-City Dental society. helieve it to be of mutual interest to our patrons and to ourselves to maintain satisfactory credit relations at all times. And that we desire to co-operate fully with the general pian of Omaha merchants towards that end as a civic duty, "Therefore, be it resolved that we endorse most heartily the Associated Retail Credit Bureau of Omaha, and urge upon our members that they become members and aid the organization in any way possible."
