Belle of '61 Declares Halo of Woman Gone

Mrs. Elizabeth Packard.

The modern woman has bartered the respect of man. That was the statement yesterday of a belle of '61, Mrs. Elizabeth H. Packard, a recognized painter, at the Flatorion hotel, where she is stopping.

"I wouldn't change with you for the world," she tells the modern business woman.

"Men see too much of you daily in their offices. It robs you of the mystery and the halo which is your real charm in the eyes of men. Familiarity breeds indifference."

She compared the easy air of men in women's presence today with that of her youth.

"A man would no more think of lighting a cigar in my presence than he would of lighting a volcano," she said.

Despite the fact that she is 81 years of age, Mrs. Packard takes a keen interest in life and all that goes on about her. She continues her painting with a clear eye and steady hand.

Omaha Too Warm for Explorer of Arctic Regions

"This heat is terrible!" exclaimed a young man in a gray two-piece suit who came into the weather bureau office this morning.

The young man had reason to feel warm, for he was accustomed to the blizzards, the 50-below-zero and the icy wastes of the arctic.

He is Dr. Herald Sverdrup, head of the scientific work of the Capt. Roald Amundsen arctic expedition. He has been at the government kite station, near Elk City, for two days studying the methods of taking kite observations, intending to use this knowledge in the four or five years he is about to spend among the arctic wastes on a little ship of only 300 tons and with only nine human companions.

To Sail June 1.
He landed in Seattle last September with Capt. Amundsen from three years in the arctic waters north and east of Siberia.

"We sail again from Seattle June 1 in the Maud," he said. "Our object is to go north from Behring Strait and freeze in the ice pack and then drift with the ice across the north of north America into the Atlantic ocean."

"We have provisions for seven years, consisting of canned flour, meats, fruits, vegetables and dried fruits and other things. We get fresh meat also by killing seal and polar bear."

No, Not Married.
"For amusement? Well, we have a talking machine and a moving picture outfit."

"Are you married?" he was asked. "No, no," he laughed. "I am afraid I would not make a good husband. I am now away from Norway four years and it will be at least five before I can get home again. What wife would be satisfied to

Farmers Near Leigh Ship in Cattle Unfinished

Two cars of steers averaging 1,463 pounds were brought to the Omaha market by James Knosch of Leigh, who received $8 a hundred, which was the high mark of the day for cattle of that weight.

Mr. Knosch said, "Most of the cattle around Leigh had been shipped and there is a large surplus of corn in my section, but it seems there are not many farmers that want to finish out their steers. A large percentage of the cattle around Leigh were shipped back to market after being on feed a comparatively short time."

Probe of Actions Toward Family Is Blamed for Act—State Agent Made Complaint.

Ogallala, Neb., April 6.—(Special Telegram.)—George Peters, farmer, living south of Ogallala, committed suicide by shooting himself with a shotgun. The department of public welfare of Nebraska has had a woman representative working in this locality the last week. No Trace Found of Kansas Ax Slayer

Concordia, Kan., April 6.—Officers investigating the ax murder on the Tremblay farm near St. Joseph Tuesday night, when Theodore Tremblay was killed by an unidentified ax man and his body burned, four of his young brothers and father hacked and the home and barn set on fire, said today they had failed to find any trace of the murderer.

Bloodhounds failed to pick up a trail, they said.

The four boys are not expected to live, while the father's injuries were not considered serious. The boys' heads were split open and the father sustained a slight scalp wound and several burns.

Officers said they believe the deed was committed by some one violently insane.

Mr. Tremblay told officers he was unable to remember anything that happened until he found himself on the back porch, where a neighbor attracted by the burning buildings discovered him. He declared that he had been no trouble in the home or with neighbors and that no money or valuables were in the house.
