The Married Life of Helen and Warren

The Monotony of Domestic Duties Stir Helen's Restless Rebellion.

"Darnation!" exploded Warren, as a button flew off his dress shoes. "I'll sew it on—it won't take a moment."

Warren, now dressed, stood glowering over her while she still struggled with the last button.

At last he was off. Forlornly, she turned back to straighten his room, in cyclonic disorder after his hurried dressing.

Putting away his tan shoes, a broken knotted lace demanded attention. She was running in a fresh pair when Anna appeared.

There were never any real dinners, only warmed-overs, when Warren knew she was standing still.

After dinner in the library, Helen felt the long evening alone. Broodingly, she darned a torn neckband in one of Warren's shirts...

Warren was forging ahead making a name and a career for himself—while she was standing still.

She had always pitied those colored middle-aged wives to whom their husbands were attached only through a sense of duty.

"The turn comes king, ace," called Kincaid, exactly as if nothing unusual had happened.

"He paid the smaller bets that won and gathered in the chips that lost. Then out of the drawer he took Gurney's check and laid it beside his stack of 10 chips, which he picked up. "Four for one; $400.00," he said.

"Nobody doubted he was speaking the truth, of course. If he didn't make good his gambling house days in South Texas would be over."

"He nodded agreement with this, too. 'All right,' he told her. 'I know you're a good girl. Give him my compliments and tell him I'm a damn good actor. . . . Will you be dropping in?'"

Did You Know That—

Edith Roberts and Madge Bellamy are often mistaken for each other?

Theodore Roberts was once a sailor? Harry Myers was the originator of art titles in films?

That W. V. Wong, the character actor, is noted in California as a raiser of blooded livestock? That only two years ago Marguerite de la Motte was an extra, hardly known in the film studios?

That Irving Cummings still has a mirror given him by Amelia Bingham when he began to act at 14? That Charles Ray, who has just filmed "The Harbormaster," once barnstormed on the stage? That Lester Cuneo is the tallest star in pictures—over 7 feet 2 inches?

ADVERTISEMENTS. SULPHUR SOOTHES UGLY, ITCHING SKIN. The First Application Makes Skin Cool and Comfortable. If you are suffering from eczema or some other torturing, embarrassing skin trouble you may quickly be rid of it by using Mentho-Sulphur, declares a noted skin specialist.

ADVERTISEMENTS. Making Your Hair Improve Your Looks. How to Have Beautiful Hair—and Make Yourself More Attractive. EVERYWHERE you go your hair is noticed most critically. People judge you by its appearance. It tells the world what you are.
