

Foes in Senate Concede Bonus Bill Will Pass

Senate Finance Body to Report Measure in Near Future—Land Reclamation Provision Doomed.

Washington, April 8.—Passage of the soldier bonus bill, with only one change from the form in which it passed the house, and signature of the bill by President Harding were conceded yesterday by several of the bill's most determined opponents. Two developments have practically swept away hope of beating the measure. One of these was a statement by Chairman Joseph W. Fordney in a letter to a constituent in Detroit that President Harding had told him he regarded the bill passed by the house as good and that he would sign it if it passed the senate without substantial modification.

The other development was the practical assurance that the senate finance committee which now has the bill, would report it in the near future with just one change. This change is the elimination of the alternative proposition with regard to land reclamation. There has been considerable bitter opposition to this section of the bill and it passed the house, even among some of the most devoted friends of the bonus.

Yesterday's concessions by opponents of the bill do not mean that there will be no debate when it comes up on the floor of the senate. On the contrary there is a group of senators who will talk at great length and who would resort willingly to a filibuster if they thought it possible to beat the bill. In discussing the situation today none of them thought it likely that any of the group would go that far because the utter futility of such a course is apparent.

Genoa Conference British Plan to Use United States

Considered Scheme of Lloyd George to Open Russ Markets With U. S. Capital for Benefit of Britain.

By GEORGE R. HOLMES. Washington, April 8.—The highly advertised economic conference of 31 nations, which is scheduled to meet shortly in Genoa, is foredoomed to failure, according to the well-nigh unanimous opinion held by officials of the American government, who are familiar with the events leading up to the parley. It was largely for this reason that the United States declined to participate, turning down the Italian invitation in such terms as to leave no doubt about what America thinks of the conference.

"I regret to inform Your Excellency," wrote Secretary of State Hughes, "that it has been found impossible to engage the conference in such terms as to leave no doubt about what America thinks of the conference. The United States is rich enough to buy but won't, because she is self-sufficient, producing every-

The industrial situation in Great Britain, according to American observers abroad and reflected in their reports to government sources, is little short of desperate. As in the United States, the end of the war found Britain with greatly expanded means of production and no markets. Russia in chaos, Germany squeezed dry, so far as buying ability went, and the rest of eastern Europe "broke" afforded little outlet for the great industrial concerns of Manchester, Sheffield, Leeds and Birmingham.

In the case of the United States and in the case of France the situation was much the same as far as absence of markets was concerned. But there was one vital difference—both France and the United States are in truth self-sufficient. Great Britain is not. Her case in this respect was eloquently pleaded in Washington a few weeks ago by Sir Arthur James Balfour in his now famous speech urging abolition of the submarine. In that speech he laid emphasis on the fact that Great Britain "never has more than seven weeks' food" in England proper.

Foreign Commerce Vital to England.

Foreign commerce, trade with the outside, is essential to the prosperity of France and the United States, but to Great Britain it is vital to her very life, for she produces but a fraction of the food she eats. Reluctantly Lloyd George has been forced to turn to Russia, Germany and eastern Europe for British markets. The United States is rich enough to buy but won't, because she is self-sufficient, producing everything she needs. Ditto France. As for Russia and eastern Europe, they are eager to buy but have nothing to buy with except inflated currency of little or no value. Therefore, the problem of the harassed Lloyd George evolved itself into one of finance and credit. His eyes naturally turned westward to the United States as the only nation able to shoulder with Great Britain the enormous burdens of world credit to get Europe back on its feet, and incidentally get Britain's factories back to work.

That the talk of credit and finance at Genoa would lead inevitably to the reparations muddle and the cancellation of war debts American officials felt sure. Not caring to be put in the position of defending the policy of not cancelling war debts the United States refused to attend.

Another and far deeper reason, however, animated administration officials in turning down the Genoa project. The administration feels, particularly Charles E. Hughes and Herbert Hoover feel, that there never will be any appreciable betterment of Europe's economic situation until Europe disbands her armies, ceases her petty quarrels which form the excuse for maintaining those armies, and gets back to productive work. In view of this condition officials of the American government do not believe that credit is what Russia and eastern Europe need. They need to disarm and go to work, produce what they eat, balance their budgets, get their currency to the place where it means something again besides so much paper, and start their factories.

It is the view of American officials, also, that the reparations schedule needs adjustment, that too big a load has been put on Germany. They believe Germany's economic recovery is inextricably woven with the economic recovery of all Europe, and so long as Germany's fate is in the mind with the heel of France on its neck there can be no permanent economic betterment for all of Europe.

France having expressly stipulated that it would attend the Genoa conference only if the reparations agreements were not molested, Washington considered that all hope of relief on this score was dissipated. France also refused to set the example for the rest of Europe in the matter of land disarmament. Without the correction of these fundamental economic principles the United States does not believe that the conference at Genoa can accomplish any real or lasting good. It is believed probable that some scheme of international credit and finance will be adopted at Genoa, if for no other reason than that the world statesmen there will be unwilling to confess themselves unable to do anything. But the efficacy of anything accomplished is seriously questioned in Washington.

Break in Levee Threatens Town on Illinois River

Lower Part of Beardstown Flooded by Back Water—Residents Move to Places of Safety.

Beardstown, Ill., April 8.—Straining at the city levee which sprung a leak late yesterday, the Illinois river was expected to break through into Beardstown last night, city officials said. Ten blocks of the lower part of the city were covered early in the evening with back waters which reached within 18 inches of the door of the leading hotel and other business houses. The river is steadily rising. Residents of the lower part of the city received ample warning, Mayor Perry said, and moved to places of safety. There will be no suffering, the mayor added. Tents rushed to the city by Adjutant General Black at Springfield have been pitched on high ground and neighbors have accommodated many families driven from their houses. Five hundred railroad men in Beardstown, laid off since the coal strike, are engaged in the battle with the flood.

The town last night was completely surrounded by water from one to three feet deep, covering 500,000 acres of wheat lands. More than a million acres of wheat lands would be inundated by a break in the levee, it was said. Tracks of the Baltimore & Ohio and the Wabash railroad and the state highway east were the only means of entering the city on dry land. Many boats were in use. Workmen last night were banking sewers with sandbags to hold the water back in several parts of the city. Officials said it was the first time in the northern United States that this means had been resorted to in fighting flood.

Man and Wife Arrested on Charge of Murder

Chicago, April 8.—Miss Veronica Long and Louis Zandt, her husband, were taken into custody last night in connection with the murder of William Purdon, 32, who was shot and killed last Tuesday night as he stopped his automobile in front of the young woman's home to call on her. Miss Long separated from her husband eight weeks ago and assumed her maiden name. Zandt furnished an alibi for himself on the night of the shooting, but is being held while it is checked up. Purdon, whose wife is in Los Angeles, had stopped his auto in front of the house in which Miss Long was rooming when two men appeared. They spoke to him, and as he turned, shot him through the side. He died 15 minutes later.

An Open Letter to E. Buckingham

Dear Mr. Buckingham:

If you weren't such a big, husky guy, and myself such a runt, I might have addressed you as "Dear Buck," like everyone else does.

Ever since you came to Omaha as General Manager of the Union Stock Yards you have been a good patron of The Pantorium.

We are glad to have you as one of us, Mr. Buckingham, because you are a BIG MAN both physically and mentally, and would "stand out" in any gathering or in any community—and you are always well groomed.

You are a public-spirited man and have done much for Omaha and Ak-Sar-Ben, but we expect still more from you.

You have "pep" and "pride," two qualities that go far to keep one young, so cling to them, Buck, and remember we are all FOR you, as you are for us ALL.

Any time you need your dress suit pressed quickly just call DO uglas 0963 and we will rush right out for it and have it back the minute you want it.

Co-operatively yours,

Guy Liggett
