Problems That Perplex

Answered by
BEATRICE FAIRFAX

In Pursuit of Style.

Dear Miss Fairfax: We are a group of girls that reside in a very small town; thus we do not know all we would like to concerning the really up-to-the-minute styles.

First, we have been reading about fiber silk scarfs. May they be worn with dress suits or must they be worn with sport tweeds only?

Second—Are the colored hose, such as nude, green and periwinkle being worn much, and are they worn with dark suits? Also, what other shades are worn besides the ones just mentioned?

Third and last, the anklet, is it true that only one is worn and only with strap pumps? We suppose they would only be worn for dress occasions, principally dances. Are we correct? We hope we have not been much trouble to you. Thanking you kindly, we are,
CURIOS.

The pretty silk scarfs may be worn with any kind of tailored suit. The colored hose are being worn considerably and with dark as well as light suits. The rose taupe (sometimes called nude) are probably most popular. The anklet is for evening wear. They come in pairs. They are not worn extensively here.

Just Me—Some girls are just naturally more popular than others. The best way for you to offset your chum's popularity is not by being jealous of her, but by developing your own personality. Interest yourself in other people and the things they are doing. Make yourself accomplished in something, music, athletics, good literature, or anything else worth while in which you have a natural aptitude. A good circulation earned through exercise and careful diet. Omit the candy you are eating. Better see a doctor about the underweight. Twenty-five pounds is rather serious and you should take early steps to add to your avoirdupois.

There is no harm so far as I can see in dancing at Club Fire meetings. Dancing is one means of expression and a very beautiful one, I think. A good actress must have beauty of voice and carriage, she must have good imagination, deep appreciation of the meaning of the thing she is trying to present; she must have personality and that elusive, inexplicable thing, talent. Your writing is very good.

Madeline: I cannot publish your letter nor answer your questions because it would amount to advertising for the concern about which you inquire. Write to them directly for information.

Shoes—Success and Happiness

Shoes that irritate end by making a woman herself irritable. You've met and done business with irritable women—you know their unconsciously reduced chances of achieving success and happiness.

Escape that irritation which impulsively produces short answers, and causes people to form a wrong impression of you. Every Cantilever Shoe is made, like your own foot, with a flexible arch, and with a natural inner sole line, also with the trim rounded toe and the lower heel in style today.

YOU FEEL BETTER

A stiff shank cramps the free action of your foot. Your ligaments and muscles all exercise as they need to exercise. Your circulation improves; your vigor and endurance are increased; you feel better, and, naturally, you look better.

Cantilever comfort might well be yours in place of the irritations of ordinary shoes. Cantilevers prevent and correct fallen arches. They will add to your health and good spirits; by freeing you of unnecessary irritations, they will help you to a larger measure of success and happiness.

All gait work eliminated in fitting your shoes now. We have just installed an X-Ray machine and every shoe is now fitted by X-Ray without extra charge to you.

Part Time Manners

the Mark of a Slacker

There are some young business men whose manners at a formal dinner party would be irreproachable, whose manners at luncheon are, to say the least, rather abbreviated. The fact is, elaborate service and leisure are conducive to good table manners, and it is only the person who has an innate sense of manners who can eat as daintily and as gracefully at a quick lunch counter or at a cafeteria where one must first collect one's entire luncheon for one's self as at a well appointed and well served dinner table.

In a certain large private school a self service cafeteria was installed not long ago for the convenience of the pupils of the school. And before long the parents of these children were complaining that all their children's table manners were deteriorating.

"Jack, why don't you wait to have things passed to you?" one mother reproved her young son when he reached for bread, butter, salt and pepper, without waiting for those things to be passed.

"Well, if we didn't reach for them at school we'd never get them," Jack explained. "The other boys never pass things to you, so you're such a racket they wouldn't hear you ask for them, and the sooner we get through eating the longer we have to play before recess is over."

The mother also found out that the usual way of serving milk was in a half-pint bottle with a straw. Hence young Jack developed a disinclination to drink fluids at home. He said it took less time to suck milk through a straw.

Quick lunch service of this sort is apt to have a bad effect on one's manners. In the simplest meal served at home in leisure and quietness there is opportunity and need for more attention to table manners and indeed if we all acquired the manner of the quick lunch place, eating would soon become a process of feeding. We would eat hastily and our digestions would suffer and the whole process would be robbed of most of its pleasurable associations.

In one way good manners at the crowded lunch room are more in demand than anywhere else, for there the young business man or woman have to eat at crowded tables where they cannot but observe and be annoyed by the bad manners of others. For this reason you should be just as particular about putting your theories of good table manners into practice at such a place as anywhere else.
