

Washington Society

Bureau of The Bee, Washington, April 13.
Washington society is busy for its Easter season. As though everything is about the flowering trees in Japan are not planted and do not grow in rows such as the borders in Potomac park. The White House grounds are a beautiful garden, with huge trees laden with several shades of pink, white and yellow blossoms and the grass seems never to have been so beautiful and velvety a green. Mrs. Harding is taking the keenest delight in the flowers and trees of the White House grounds.

The country-wide slogan appears to be "on to Washington for Easter." Great parties of school teachers and senior classes have been doing the sight-seeing for a week or more and many others are scheduled during the next several weeks. They are from schools all over the east and middle west country and the sight-seeing buses seem never to have been so busy as they have now. The daughters of the American Revolution fill the corridors and small parlors of the leading hotels, especially the Willard and Washington, all the days and evenings and plans are well laid for all that will be seen of the Memorial Continental hall next week, beginning with the opening session of the congress on Monday morning.

Easter festivities will begin tomorrow afternoon with innumerable teas and "at homes." Some formal luncheons and dinners also will be given tomorrow. Monday night the annual Dixie ball will be given in the ball rooms of the Willard, and Wednesday evening the much delayed last state reception at the White House this season will be held in honor of the army and navy. The egg rolling festival will be given on Monday to the children and the little party of official society who will witness the scene from the south portico of the White House.

A ceremony which will interest the people all over the country will be the unveiling of the monument to Gen. Ulysses S. Grant April 27, which will take its place among the many monuments of which Washington is guilty, though it will not be one of them. It is a great group commemorating the civil war and Gen. Grant's part in it, and he is represented on horseback, which figure his two great-granddaughters, Princess Ida Cantacuzene and Miss Edith Grant, will personally unveil.

The statue stands close to the east entrance of the Botanical Gardens and faces the capitol. There will be some festivities connected with the unveiling of this great war group, which has been in the course of construction and setting for several years, and all of the Grant family still living will be here for the occasion. The Princess Ida is the schoolgirl daughter of Prince and Princess Cantacuzene, the latter the daughter of Gen. Frederick D. Grant. Miss Edith Grant is a daughter of Capt. Ulysses S. Grant, 3d. Her mother was Miss Edith Root, only daughter of former Senator Elihu Root.

The Nebraska Association of Washington, of which Representative M. O. McLaughlin of York, Neb., is president, will give a large reception next Tuesday evening in the handsome ball room of the Hadleigh hotel on Sixteenth street, in honor of the distinguished Nebraskans who have received presidential appointments in this administration. Among these guests of honor are: J. Raymond McCarl of McCook, who is now controller general of the United States; C. W. Pugsley of Lincoln, now assistant secretary of agriculture; Frederick K. Nielson of Wahoo, solicitor of the State department; Edgar C. Snyder, formerly of Omaha, sworn in this week as United States marshal, and the only woman from the state to receive a presidential appointment, Miss Grace Abbott of Grand Island, who is head of the children's bureau of the Department of Labor. Mr. Snyder's wife and two daughters, Mrs. Watson and Mrs. David Snyder, are perhaps the best known families of such appointees, as they have been identified with the Washington society for many years.

Flappers Recall Styles of '80s to Mothers Who Criticize Their Dress

By International News Service.
Chicago, April 11.—"Now when I was a girl," began mother as she cast a disapproving eye over daughter's rather frank shirtwaist and none too bashful hosey.

"Oh, no you didn't, mother dear," daughter rejoined, "you wore 'em just about the same as we do." And forthwith daughter, who has been to the University of Chicago, springs Godey's "Lady's Book and Magazine," volume of 1882, upon her defenseless mother and shows her the following discourse concerning feminine styles of the period:

"The new spring costumes have long, smooth-fitting waists that outline the figure from throat to hips. The general effect is long, slender waists.

"Colored hose continues popular. Black silk stockings are the most stylish. Terra cotta and rose are new shades; others are dark garnet, cardinal and bright turkey red, blue, tan and bronze. Lace work, open designs and hand embroidery are the ornaments for hose."

From 1832 to 1882 Mr. Godey's periodical was the ne plus ultra of style publications. Therefore, if mother was in style, daughter concludes, she must have arrayed herself something after the manner portrayed by the fashion journal of four decades ago.

Perhaps the answer to where the styles of today come from may be found in the assertion of authorities of the University of Chicago that the "Lady Book" has become so popular that additional copies are being sought to supply the demand. Before planning their spring wardrobe the co-eds are joining the waiting list to get a peek at the accounts of the styles of bygone days. Even if they don't get such a lot of swell ideas on how array themselves they get some fine material for argument to combat parental aversion to the freedom of modern styles.

Why Your Well Feet Need a "Built-In" Bridge

CIVILIZATION has decreed that shoes be made with heels of varying heights. When your foot is lifted onto a heel it leaves the middle of the foot (the arch) to sag. Nature intended the entire foot to be supported. Arch Preserver Shoes eliminate such strain by providing a concealed built-in bridge, that affords exactly the same support as when you are bare-footed.

Arch Preserver Shoes are smart, upstanding, following the style trend. They keep your feet well groomed. They'll give you a new idea of foot comfort.

Keeping a Child's Hair Beautiful

What a Mother Can Do To Keep Her Child's Hair Healthy—Fine, Soft and Silky—Bright, Fresh-Looking and Luxuriant

THE beauty of your child's hair depends upon the care you give it. Shampooing it properly is always the most important thing. Shampooing brings out the real life and lustre, natural wave and color, and makes the hair soft, fresh and luxuriant.

When your child's hair is dry, dull and scaly, lifeless, stiff and gummy, and the strands cling together, and it feels harsh and disagreeable to the touch, it is because the hair has not been shampooed properly.

When the hair has been shampooed properly and is thoroughly clean, it will be glossy, smooth and bright, delightfully fresh-looking, soft and silky.

While children's hair must have frequent and regular washing to keep it beautiful, it cannot stand the harsh effect of ordinary soaps. The free alkali in ordinary soaps soon dries the scalp, makes the hair brittle and ruins it.

That is why discriminating mothers, everywhere, now use Mulsified coconut oil shampoo. This clear, pure, and entirely greaseless product cannot possibly injure, and it does not dry the scalp or make the hair brittle, no matter how often you use it.

If you want to see how really beautiful your child's hair can be, just follow this simple method:

A Simple, Easy Method

FIRST, put two or three teaspoonfuls of Mulsified in a cup or glass with a little warm water. Then wet the hair and scalp with clear warm water. Pour the Mulsified evenly over the hair and rub it thoroughly all over the scalp and throughout the entire length, down to the ends of the hair.

Two or three teaspoonfuls will make an abundance of rich, creamy lather. This should be rubbed in thoroughly and briskly with the finger tips, so as to loosen the dandruff and small particles of dust and dirt that stick to the scalp.

After rubbing in the rich, creamy

Mulsified lather, rinse the hair and scalp thoroughly—always using clear, fresh, warm water.

Then use another application of Mulsified, again working up a lather and rubbing it in briskly as before.

You can easily tell when the hair is perfectly clean, for it will be soft and silky in the water.

Rinse the Hair Thoroughly

THIS is very important. After the final washing, the hair and scalp should be rinsed in at least two changes of good warm water and followed with a rinsing in cold water.

After a Mulsified shampoo you will find the hair will dry quickly and evenly and have the appearance of being thick and heavier than it is.

If you want your child to always be remembered for its beautiful, well-kept hair, make it a rule to set a certain day each week for a Mulsified coconut oil shampoo. This regular weekly shampooing will keep the scalp soft and the hair fine and silky, bright, fresh-looking and fluffy, wavy and easy to manage—and it will be noticed and admired by everyone.

You can get Mulsified at any drug store or toilet goods counter, anywhere in the world. A 4-oz. bottle should last for months.

An Open Letter to Thomas C. Byrne

Dear Mr. Byrne:

You have been in Omaha almost as long as I have, and during all this time you have been a good patron of The Pantorium.

The first time I ever saw you was nearly thirty years ago. I lived over in Iowa then and worked in a country store. One time the boss took me to Saint Joseph on a buying trip and when we called on Richardson, Roberts and Byrne you personally showed us through "stock."

I never have forgotten the incident, nor did I forget you. When you came to Omaha to open your new wholesale dry goods house I went right after your business—and got it. We also got George L. Hammer, Charlie Robinson and Will Maloney—and have kept them, too.

Although Mr. Hammer has passed to his reward, we still have both his daughters as customers, so I feel that we are justified in considering ourselves the official cleaners to the BYRNE-HAMMER DRY GOODS COMPANY.

Thanking you all for the business you have given us during these many years and trusting there may be many more to follow, I am

Very truly yours,

Guy Siggitt

President for 25 years.
