

Nation to Receive Arbor Day Message by Radio Service

Document, Signed Yesterday, to Be Broadcast by Secretary of Agriculture.

By EDGAR C. SNYDER. Washington Correspondent Omaha Bee. Washington, April 18.—(Special Telegram.)—Secretary Wallace of the Department of Agriculture, was host today to the members of the Nebraska delegation in congress, having asked members of it to be present when he attached his signature to the Arbor day message which will be wireless throughout the country Friday evening.

With the exception of Congressman Jeffers, who is confined to his home by illness, every member of the delegation from Nebraska was present at the interesting ceremony. It had been intended to ask President Harding to broadcast the message on the eve of Arbor day, but the decision of Secretaries Denby and Weeks, of the Navy and War departments, against the use of their radio apparatus, save for official business, put a different aspect on the proposition and Secretary Wallace decided to do his own broadcasting.

Several pictures were taken of the signing of the Arbor day message, which is regarded by the American Forestry association as an epoch in the growing movement for reforestation throughout the nation. The reception accorded a number of distinguished Nebraskans tonight by the members of the Nebraska state association was a crowning event in the history of the organization in this city. Upwards of 250 members of the society, temporarily resident in the national capital, were present to pay their respects to the guests of honor, including J. R. McCook, comptroller general of the United States; Miss Grace Abbott of Grand Island, chief of the Children's bureau of the United States; C. W. Fugleby, Lincoln, assistant secretary of agriculture; Theodore K. Nelson of Omaha, solicitor of the State department, and E. C. Snyder, United States marshal for the District of Columbia.

Speeches were made by several of the honor guests, in which Nebraska came in for unstinted praise as one of the great states of the union. Congressman McLaughlin of York, president of the association, presided. A program of music and dancing followed the speech making.

The following Nebraska postmasters were nominated today: Henry J. Steinhilber at Creighton; Ray H. Surber, Davenport; Earl R. Lewis, Humphrey; James E. Scott, Osmond, and James D. Finley, Sargent.

Miss Helen Morris, daughter of Dr. F. C. Morris of McCook, who is a student at Columbia university, has been the guest of Congressman and Mrs. McLaughlin during the Easter holidays.

Kraut Kills Still Odor, Woman Says

But Judge Holds Husband, Too, Despite Wife's Plea He Was Kept in Ignorance.

Sauerkraut is to a whisky still what Tiz is to tired and aching feet. It kills the odor. Mrs. Harry Brown, 4017 Ohio, testified to that fact in Central police court yesterday in defense of her husband, who is jointly charged with her with operating a whisky still. "Harry knew nothing about it," Mrs. Brown told the court, trying to explain her husband's ignorance in view of that fact that the still was just off the Brown kitchen. "I kept a jar of sauerkraut near the still, and that killed the odor; nobody could've smelled it."

Veteran Railroad Physician Dies

Dr. S. H. Smith, U. P. and "Q" Surgeon, Succumbs to Long Illness.

Dr. Seymour Harry Smith, 53, died yesterday morning at his residence, 1226 North Fifty-second avenue, after four months' illness. Funeral services will be held Friday afternoon at 2, in Masonic temple. Active pallbearers will be: Fred Daily, Frank Marsh, Frank Durr, Ed Weaver, Charles Conoyer and E. M. Southard. Honorary pallbearers: Dr. A. J. Jonas, Dr. E. J. Uptegraff, Dr. W. W. Humphrey, Dr. R. H. Hollister, Dr. O. S. Hoffman, Dr. L. T. Hall.

Dr. Smith is survived by his wife, Nellie M. and one son, Seymour Harry Smith, jr. He was born in Rome, N. Y., May 28, 1869, and was a member of the Knights Templar, Shriner, Nebraska lodge No. 1 of the Masonic fraternity and of the Woodmen of the World. Seymour lodge, Woodmen of the World, was named in his honor.

He served as local surgeon for the Union Pacific since 1898, when he was graduated from the Omaha Medical college. During the last 16 years he also served as local surgeon for the Chicago, Burlington and Quincy railroad.

Parents' Problems

How can a boy of nine who is something of a wit, and who knows it, be kept from "playing to the gallery," as it were? A child, very early in life, becomes self-conscious and knows what he is entertaining unless great care is used to prevent it.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF NIMBLE DEER BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER IV. Planning a Picnic. While he was only a fawn Nimble became very fond of water lilies. But he didn't carry them as a bouquet, nor wear one in his buttonhole. He was fond of lilies in a different way; he liked to eat them, and their flat, round, glossy pads. At night his Jimmy Rabbit said he really ought to have a look at the cabbages. mother often led him to the edge of the lake on the other side of Blue Mountain, and there they feasted. It was wonderful to stand in the cool water, not too far from the shore, with the moonlight shimmering on the ruffled lake, and breathe in the sweet scent of the lilies while nibbling at their leaves and long stems.

"There's nothing," said Nimble to his mother one night, "nothing so good to eat as water lilies." His mother said, "Humph! Wait till you've tasted carrots!" "Carrots," Nimble echoed. "What are carrots and where can I find some? Do they grow in this lake?" "Carrots," his mother explained, "are vegetables, and they grow in Farmer Green's garden."

When he heard that Nimble wanted to start for Farmer Green's place at once. But his mother said "No!" And he soon saw that she meant it, too.

However, the word carrots was in his mouth a good deal of the time, for days and nights afterward. But Nimble wasn't satisfied with having only the word in his mouth. There was no taste to that at all. Nor could he chew it, nor swallow it. He was wild to bite into a carrot and see if it actually was more toothsome than a water lily. Again and again he said to his mother, "Can't we go down to Farmer Green's garden patch tonight? If we wait much longer somebody else will eat all the carrots before we get a taste of them." Or maybe he would exclaim, "Let's have some carrots for supper! Please!"

It was no wonder that Nimble's mother grew very tired of his teasing. At last she said to him, "You're urging her to take him down the hill and across the meadow to Farmer Green's vegetable garden. There's no sense in our going down there now. The carrots aren't big enough yet. They aren't ready to eat. But later, if you really are trustworthy, and if you mean a well, and if you grow enough, and if you can start quickly and run fast, perhaps I'll see that you have your first meal of carrots. Now, don't bother me any more!"

Well, there were so many ifs in his mother's promise that Nimble almost gave up hope of ever getting to Farmer Green's garden patch. At least he didn't quite dare expect that his mother would take him there with her. But he made up his mind that, if she didn't he would go on a carrot hunt alone as soon as he could.

At the same time he practiced minding his mother, which was not always a pleasant thing to do. And he practiced starting and running, both of which were a good deal of
