Erstwhile Minister Makes Mistake in Hailing Friend Copper Who Has Warrant.

Andy J. Nielsen, Council Bluffs birdman, is in trouble again. He was about to start aboard a street car for the Bluffs yesterday morning when he spied George Emery, police traffic sergeant.

"Hello there, George," cried he, little knowing Emery carried a warrant for his arrest. Emery served the warrant and took the flier to jail.

The warrant charges wife and child abandonment and was sworn out by his wife, who is living at 1614 Wirt street, with their two youngsters, Bertha, 9, and Paul, 6.

Mrs. Nielsen filed suit for divorce December 10, asking custody of the children and $150 a month alimony. She charged cruelty.

"He is not the same man I married," said the wife then. "He once was a God-fearing minister. Now he has joined the scramble for money."

Nielsen was a Methodist minister when he entered the army aviation corps. After the war a dispute with members of his church prompted him to doff the ministerial cloth to don the goggles and helmet.

Then last week he signified his intention of forsaking the air to become a barrister and make eloquent pleas before the bar of justice.

Nielsen charged his wife is a religious fanatic.

Denver, Colorado.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for seven years and I cannot tell you the good it has done me. It is good for young and old and I have a bottle of it in the house, for I am at that time of life when it calls for Lydia E. Pinkham's help. My husband saw your ad. in the papers and said 'You have taken everything you can think of, now I want you to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.' So I let him get it, and I soon felt better and he told me 'I want you to take about six bottles.' So I did and I keep house and do all my own work and work out by the day and feel fine now. I tell every one about the Vegetable Compound, for so many of my friends thought I would not get well."—Mrs. R. J. LINTON, 1850 West 33d Avenue, Denver, Colorado.

SYNOPSIS
Elizabeth Conroy, a country girl, is visiting in the city. She takes her to a ball. She feels keenly the contrast between her dowdy, homelike frock and the smart clothes the other women wear. The only person in the gathering who takes pity upon her is Pat Royston, who with some success, to teach her to dance. Elizabeth's relatives tell her that he is a dancing teacher; that he is married and that he is not to meet him again. Pat agrees so readily that Madame Senestis, a famous teacher, agrees to take care of her. Elizabeth has a wealthy man, is to pay the bill, Elizabeth has lunch with Farmer, then packs to go to Madame Senestis' home. She has a farewell dinner with Pat and discovers she is to bring the girl home. Elizabeth quickly renounces. Walter Senestis, an old suitor from the girl's home town, finally persuades her to return to her home in Illinois. Elizabeth, she goes to dinner with Farmer. When he attempts to kiss her she flees into another room where she encounters Pat.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.
She looked up with a wild hope in her eyes, and then, although neither was conscious of making any movement, she was clasped in his arms, her face hidden against him.

"Oh, I have wanted you so! I have wanted you so!"
The words were wrung from her. She clutched at his coat with desperate fingers; she would have fallen but for his upholding arms, and there followed a silence that seemed to hold all the sorrow of the world. Above Elizabeth's bowed head Royston looked out into the room with tragic eyes. He was white to the lips and his mouth was set in hard lines of pain.

The small hands that clutched at his coat so frantically seemed also to be tearing at his heart; and yet his one thought was for her, how best he could help her and save her pain. She was so young, so unfitted to battle with a world that hitherto had shown her little but kindness.

How best to help and not hurt her! The knowledge of his impotence tortured him; and then suddenly he felt her slight figure relax, and, looking sharply down, saw that she had fainted.

He put her into a big chair, and fetched water and bathed her forehead; he chafed her hands gently, watching her with passionate pity until at last her eyes opened and rested upon him, at first with blank unrecognition, and then with such a growing, intolerable shame that it was more than he could bear.

He laid his hands on her shoulders, holding her gently against the back of the chair so that she could not turn away from him or hide her face, and the bitterness of his soul found vent in broken words.
