Personals

Dr. W. E. Stoff leaves Sunday evening to spend a week in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Crofoot will return about next Thursday from New York City.

A son was born Thursday at St. Joseph hospital to Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Gercken.

A son, Edward Joseph, jr., was born April 20 to Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Struwing of Lyman, Neb.

A daughter was born Thursday to Mr. and Mrs. William Swatek of Plattsmouth at St. Joseph hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Herzberg and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Trellet left Friday to spend two weeks at Excelsior Springs.

Dr. Frank G. Smith of the First Central Congregational church will leave in June for Los Angeles, where he will be a delegate to the Rotary club convention. Mrs. Smith will accompany him. Her trip is a gift of the women of the church.

Camp Fire Girls

Miss Evelyn Ennis has organized an orchestra in her Camp Fire group of 10. Every member plays some instrument and is very enthusiastic about the project.

The Kicava group met Wednesday at the home of Virginia Droste for a council fire conducted by their guardian, Miss Alice Pfeiffer. Dorothy Price took her Wood-gathers rank while Virginia Droste and Myrtle and Marjorie Ochiltree took their desires to become Camp Fire Girls.

The Yallani group practiced Camp Fire songs and their motions Monday at the Hirt Memorial church. Lexie group met Friday at the home of Mrs. Colin McKenzie with Harriett Pinkerton as leader.

The Tanadonna group held a ceremonial at its last meeting. Katherine Indoe lighted the candle of work. Frances Gilch, love and Rebecca Delong, health.

Omaha Girl Returns

Marjorie Cavers.

Eleanor Carpenter Home From Abroad

Although there soon promises to be a general exodus from Omaha to Europe, two prominent Omahans have just returned from a year abroad. They are Mrs. Frank Carpenter and her daughter, Miss Eleanor Carpenter. At present they are at the Gilbert E. Carpenter home.

Miss Carpenter was graduated last June from Wellesley college and sailed for Europe immediately afterward. Mrs. Carpenter and her daughter visited all of the principal countries of the continent, except Spain and Portugal. During the coming summer they will reside at their home at Lake Okoboji.

Maybe there'll be a reconciliation. In the Zander-Gump affair, we mean.

Clubdom

Faculty Club.

The Woman's Faculty club of the University of Nebraska College of Medicine will entertain at luncheon at the Fontanelle, followed by a matinee party at the Junior League Revue at the Brandeis theater on May 13, for the 15 graduating nurses of the University of Nebraska hospital.

All Camp Fire Girls interested in the Saturday hike are requested to be at headquarters at 9 a. m. The hike will lead to municipal beach, Carter lake, where at 10:30 o'clock a pine tree will be planted in observance of Arbor Day.

My Marriage Problems

Adelle Garrison's New Phase of "REVELATIONS OF A WIFE"

Has Madge Made the Correct Guess Lillian's Brusque Words Deserve?

I promptly took the cue Lillian had given me, although I had to make an effort to bring myself back from the remembrance of the terrible time through which the youth standing before me had proved so staunch an aid.

"No, I shan't ask Mr. Chester to stay for luncheon," I said gayly, straining the verb. "I simply shall tell Kate to put another plate on and dare him not to stay. He knows, or should know, that there is no one in the world more welcome to our home than he."

"I spoke but the truth, though I realized, even as I spoke, that my enthusiasm must have sounded foolish, exaggerated. But the young chap had rendered us such signal service in our time of awful need that every one of the family held not only gratitude but genuine regard for him."

Mr. Chester flushed from both embarrassment and pleasure at his expressive face told the truth, and he said hurriedly: "I hope you know that there is no home to which I like better to come," and there was boyish earnestness in his tone.

Lillian clapped her hands and I was sure I detected a note of impatience in the sound.

"A very pretty speech," she said. "But I must listen to another kind. Madge, if you'll just tell Katie about that extra plate, and then come back here, I'll be much obliged. There are some points I want to go over with you."

I hurried away with a tiny feeling of chagrin. That Lillian had dismissed me a bit cavalierly I realized, and I knew also that if we had been alone I should have cared no whit. But there was something in the honest, boyish admiration and sympathy which Tom Chester had given me during our search for Junior which had appealed to me—and my vanity could not help a tiny bit of resentment at being belittled in his eyes.

Like a Sentinel. The unworthy little feeling was almost instantly banished by another, a wondering curiosity as to Lillian's selection of Tom Chester as her medium of communication with the government operatives due in a few hours. At the time of Junior's kidnaping Lillian had been desperately ill, and we had kept all knowledge of the awful thing from her until after she had recovered. She had had no personal acquaintance with Tom Chester.

Indeed, as I looked back, I was sure she had never seen him before this hour, for we had kept her in almost absolute seclusion until her trip to the Catskills. And while I often had spoken of his kindness and likable young personality, yet it had been Hugh Grantland to whom we all had given credit for the wonderful way in which he had tracked the criminals and had restored our boy to us.

Hugh Grantland, of course! The name was like a key to the little puzzle. He must be in communication with both Lillian and Tom Chester, must have recommended the lad to Lillian. I stopped short on my way to the kitchen with almost an eerie little feeling at my heart.

Never do I receive any communication from Hugh Grantland save the conventional picture postcard with his traveling address on the message space, and the single initial "H," which he mails me whenever he leaves his permanent address for any time longer than a day or two. But from time to time, in odd bits of revelation, there comes to me the knowledge that he is like a sentinel at the crossways of my life, that there is no detail of my existence of which he is not cognizant, and that he stands ready with royal aid and protection whenever I shall need it.

Madge Is Comforted.

Of course, I knew that this present association of Lillian and Tom Chester, through Grantland's recommendation, had nothing to do with me or my needs. But as well as if I had heard the words from Hugh Grantland's own lips, did I know that the army officer had kept in touch with the younger man in order to have a strong resourceful arm at my service in his absence.

I defy any woman in the world to remain unmoved by such a tribute, no matter how much she may be in love with her husband. And when the knowledge of it comes to her at a time when the man who has sworn her love and homage has gone away for a little season—patiently chafing at domesticity—into the vicinity of a girl whom she detests—perhaps I may not be so rigidly censored when I confess that for a little while the knowledge of Hugh Grantland's thoughtfulness and care comforted the soreness which Dicky's thoughtlessness had left in my heart.

A very cleverly executed bit of hand work was the motif of a little navy blue "silk" gown in an Omaha modiste show this week. Skillfully drawn was the design, the blue cut out to disclose a backing of white organdie.

Common Sense

How Do You Act When You Try to Turn a Rusty Screw?

"Let me see a man attempting to start a rusty screw, which is hard to turn, and I will tell you what kind of a man he is," a wise old fellow has said.

What is your attitude when the first twist of a screw driver fails to turn a screw? Put on a little more pressure and turn the screw driver point out of the screw slot.

Angry place the screw driver again into the slot and give it a vicious turn, which tears away the edges of the slot.

By this time you are in a boiling rage, and you have so damaged the screw slot that it won't hold the driver when strength is applied.

Now supposing that after the first turn you had taken a position where you might have held the driver firmly in the slot, and had exerted a powerful, even pressure, doubtless you would have moved it, but you jerked with temper.

In most of the difficult things you have to do, you yank and pull and twist out of shape if they do not respond to your temper, and, consequently, your prospects of success, (Copyright, 1922.)

Church Sacrifice Sale All Day Saturday

The sacrifice sale sponsored by Auxiliary B of All Saints church will open at 10 a. m. Saturday, continuing until 5 o'clock, in the corner store room of the World theater. The only food for sale will be Brownell Hall fudge. Brownell girls, all of whom are members of All Saints church, will sell the delicious confection. Virginia Carlisle will be in charge of the booth. Assisting her will be Julia Caldwell, Elizabeth Morgan, Esther Smith, Eleanor Smith, Laura Richardson, Dorothy Higgins and Margaret Shotwell.

Pictures, china, cut glass, bric-a-brac, jars of cosmetics and some evening gowns and suits of men's clothes with waist lines too small for the original owners, will be on sale. Nothing has been placed on sale, according to the committee in charge, which the donors themselves would not be willing to buy.
