Two Omaha Easter Week Brides

Two interesting after-Easter weddings, which took place at All Saints Episcopal church during the past week, are those of Miss Helen Danforth Smith to Philip Gray Lovell of Weston, Mass., and Miss Winifred Brandt to James Way Hunsaker of this city. The Lovell-Smith wedding was a large afternoon affair and was solemnized Tuesday. Mrs. Lovell, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Crittenden Smith, wore the wedding gown of her mother. It was of heavy pearl color satin, heavily embroidered in pearls and made according to the Marie Antoinette period. The neck was finished with a bertha of rose point and Duchesne lace, and the elbow sleeves were finished with deep flounces of the lace. Mrs. Lovell also wore the wedding veil of her mother, which was of Duchesne and rose point lace. Her bouquet was of Easter lilies. The bride will make her future home in Weston, Mass.

Etiquette Worth While in Office

The man or woman of small ambition and smaller achievement feels that it is his privilege and pleasure always to leave a position he is "quitting" in a cloud of unpleasant feeling. So long as he remains in his position he puts up with unpleasantness, stifles his dislikes for the men over him and does his best to grin and bear things. When he realizes that he can take his destiny in his own hands, and ask to have his name stricken off the payroll, he takes intense satisfaction in airing his prejudices and showing every one in the place just how he feels about things. He undoes in a day all that he has gained in the months or years that he has worked there.

Notesbook Items.

Iodine still holds first place as a skin and wound disinfectant. Shellac the inside of all drawers and they will be easy to clean. Irons will not stick if a teaspoonful of salt is cooked with the starch. A baked potato should be cracked the moment it is done to let out the steam. After the flour sack has been emptied, open the bottom to remove a possible cupful. Less sugar will be necessary if a little salt is added when cooking very sour fruits. A window-sash cord can be made to last a long while by an application of tallow or lard.

Apply Psychology to Child Training

While children are much the same the world over, American children are, by development, the most active of all nationalities in their play habits and the most exacting. They demand more realism, insist upon taking parts that are active and call for skill of body or mind and show greater interest in and understanding of educational games than other children.

"I want to go outdoors," is the phrase which mothers, particularly at this time of the year, hear most frequently when in the house with their children. The appeal of the great outdoors is very strong to children and should be answered by parents whenever possible. While experiments have pretty conclusively proved the advantage of permitting the child to follow in its play the natural bent of its developing character, it must be remembered that the imaginative scope of the child mind is necessarily somewhat limited and play suggestions are of great help if based upon sound child psychology and do not run counter to the child's own good character developing play ideas.

"Don't do that" is usually bad child psychology because it has a strong tendency to destroy budding initiative and unfavorably affects the child's mental growth particularly when the phrase—as is frequently the case—is used constantly to a child and without consideration of the child's real needs. As the proper selection of toys for children is of great importance, so the proper guidance of children in their play habits into beneficial educational channels is of equal importance. Such proper guidance will

Utilize Sour Milk.

Sour milk is a food of high nutritive value and should never be wasted. It has many uses in the preparation of foods. Sour-milk biscuits are a delicacy which every woman takes pride in knowing how to make correctly. When using sour milk, it is necessary to neutralize it with soda. Usually a scant half teaspoonful of soda will neutralize one cup of sour milk, although the amount of soda required varies with the acidity of the milk. A good recipe for sour-milk biscuits is as follows: Sift together 1 1/2 cups of flour, three teaspoonfuls of baking powder, one-half teaspoonful of salt, one-half teaspoonful of soda, chop into this 1 1/2 tablespoonfuls of cold lard. Add a cup of sour milk, cutting the dough with a spatula or knife. Toss the soft dough on a floured board; knead in a little flour if the dough is too soft. Roll. Cut small biscuits and bake in a quick oven. One woman who likes to serve the sour-milk biscuits keeps a supply of a reliable brand of evaporated milk on hand which she permits to sour at her convenience. Her biscuits are light and have the added softness so characteristic of the type.

Favorite Jewels of Debutantes

A string of pearls, beautiful, invaluable, oriental pearls, is the favored piece of jewelry for the debutante. Bracelets are next in demand, which is not to be wondered at, for the designers of the exclusive houses have produced some particularly fascinating specimens for the delectation of this year's buds. They are different in every respect from those of former seasons, for styles in jewelry change just as radically as those in clothes. The bracelets this year are composed of flat links, and onyx and diamonds are the favored combination. Then there are arm bracelets of oriental inspiration, which are worn on the upper arm, after the Paris mode, and add a barbaric touch to sophisticated Miss York.

Something entirely new is a pearl collar, half an inch wide, composed of seven rows of two sizes of perfectly matched small pearls. The stringing of these small pearls requires infinite patience, but the result is eminently satisfactory. This little collar carries a diamond buckle jauntily at the side and demands a youthful, white and rounded neck to set it off to advantage. The older women are using wider collars and black and white combinations, but none of the jeweled collars are wider this year than an inch and a half. The old-fashioned throat covering pearl collars are quite out of date.

Other pieces which find favor are odd pendants of carved jade and beautiful, clear, red quartz, hung on black cords. A graceful brooch has a pin with two long zigzag diamond pendants, set with small uncut rubies and terminating in two rubies cut in a leaf shape from an Indian design. This has a very delicate effect. The same brooch is to be seen with sapphires.

Cleaning Silk.

The best way to clean pongee, tussah and novelty silks is to wash them in lukewarm water with good soap. Instead of rubbing between the hands or on a board, material of this sort should be scrubbed with a brush and it will need rinsing in at least three waters. The greatest danger in handling material of this kind is in using water which is too hot, for very hot water causes heat wrinkles which will not disappear even under the iron. Oil Stains—Stains made by machine oil or any of the ordinary oils can be removed with carbon tetrachloride. Oil Paints—A mixture of carbon tetrachloride and chloroform in equal parts will remove oil paint marks. Nickel—Stains and marks on nickel can be removed by rubbing them with a paste made of whiting and ammonia.

tints of hair, and eyes, and skin. As so many of the fashionable dresses, this model disdains a girdle and effects its demarcation by folds at the sides. These are caught by self-covered buttons.

Moire is a Rival of Taffeta Today

Chisel Line

New York—(Special Correspondence)—Moire, like the cat, has a few lives to spare, and this spring it seems to be using up its ninth one. The material so beloved by our mothers and grandmothers has been reincarnated and is a rival of taffeta for many of those smart full-skirted models which we wear for afternoon or evening. But, just like all the other octogenarians, moire is skittish in black this year, it favors such tones as cocoa, and bisque, and orchid, and rose. Sometimes it is combined with lace, the latter used as tunic or apron. However, some of the smartest models are like the one pictured today. This is made perfectly plain, and relies upon the brilliant frosty tint of its watered surface, as well as upon the line of its long bodice and full skirt, for its essential charm. The tone used here is white, and the frock as it is would be particularly successful upon either brunette or blonde, provided she have brilliant
