

Omaha Schools Win in Business Subjects Contest

Bertha Baer, Central High, is Champion Speller—Plattsmouth Is Victor in Penmanship.

Three Omaha schools, competing in the commercial subjects contest yesterday in the Auditorium, carried off most of the honors. Bertha Baer, Central High, is the champion speller. She missed only five out of 100 words. Margaret Schmittroth of Sacred Heart, Omaha, won second place, with a grade of 93; Elvera Born, Plattsmouth, third place, with 91; Fern Niel of Plattsmouth and Mark Bair of Central tied for fourth place with 88, and Eloise Powell, Central, Estelle Lister, Plattsmouth, and Henry Porter tied for fifth place with 87.

Plattsmouth Gets Pen Honors. Plattsmouth won all penmanship honors. Edna Klingler was awarded first place for excellence in elementary grades and Helen Westcott for high schools. Ruth Lushinsky and Dora Soennichsen won first place for improvement since last trial. South High captured shorthand speed laurels. Gladys Matison took 65 words of dictation per minute with a grade of 96 1-2 in Class 1, and Stella Horwich 100 words per minute in Class 2, with a grade of 82. Herbert J. Nelson of Central won first place in Class 1 typewriting, with 49 words per minute; Gertrude Bloomquist, Central, second, and Stanley Sienka, South, third place. Stanley Sienka Praised. Miss Mina Hubbell, South High instructor, in charge of the contest, voiced pride in the achievement of Stanley Sienka, who was under heavy strain this week. At the last moment he filled a breach in at the Seventh High operaetta, this week, when the father of a school friend cast for the role died suddenly.

Miss Marguerite Burke is the Central High instructor who coached the winning pupils. Anna Vonaka of South High assisted as clerk. The students winning the first three high places in the contest will compete again later for state honors.

Rural School Children Don't Drink Enough Milk

University Dietician, in Douglas County Nutrition Campaign, Says Country Pupils Fail to Appreciate Food Value of Dairy Product.

Children of the rural schools of Nebraska do not drink enough milk. This astounding revelation was made yesterday by Miss Florence Atwood of the extension service of the University of Nebraska, who is conducting a nutrition campaign in Douglas county.

In some of the rural schools the percentage of pupils who do not drink milk reaches as high as 30 and 75 per cent, Miss Atwood declared. In Omaha city schools children who are undernourished are fed two glasses of milk each day. Some such arrangement may be adopted for the rural schools.

Don't Appreciate Value. Miss Atwood attributes the lack of milk on the diets of rural youngsters to the fact that there is so much milk on the farm they do not appreciate its worth to their growth and nourishment.

"We visit the schools and get in touch with the children first," she said. "We generally weigh and measure them and urge them to drink more milk. Then we meet with the

"Most Pathetic Case of Poverty in City" Found

Children Without Nourishment Except Milk Given Them at School—Father's Salary Garnished.

Welfare board workers believe they have discovered the "most pathetic case of poverty in Omaha."

A frail little woman, giving her name as Mrs. C. Sterling, entered the Welfare board offices a day or so ago and sank weakly into a chair. "She told me her five little children have been without food for several days," said Mrs. Ida Levin of the board. "Her husband is employed part of the time at a packing house, but until recently his salary has been garnished."

Their rent has become due, and they must move soon. They have no place to move. But the last few days have been the worst for the family. Every cent has been used by the father for street car fare and the children, who are attending Farnam school despite their ragged clothing, have had no nourishment except milk given them at school."

The Sterlings live in a shack at 3417 Jackson street, Mrs. Levin says.
