Eastern Star to Convene Here

Miss Smith is principal of Druid Hill school.

Eight hundred delegates are expected to attend the meetings and the evening sessions will probably attract 1,500 people according to Miss Rose M. Owens, grand secretary for Nebraska. Among the prominent women attending will be Mrs. Edna Z. Zerweh of O'Leary, Ia., grand matron in that state and Lucretia W. Armour, S. D., of similar office in South Dakota. Other grand officers from Iowa are expected.

Washington Society

Bureau of The Bee

Washington, April 29. Balls and conventions, banquets and teas, mainly for women, have made up the week's schedule in Washington society. Time was, and not so many years ago, that suffrage and uplift work was a thing aside from society. Now it is a part of society, even what is known as "smart society." So it is that the many conventions and conferences of women of the past fortnight have gone hand in hand with social festivities, official and otherwise. The latter part of this week was a mixture of Grant and Astor fetes.

Lord and Lady Astor. Lord and Lady Astor, both born American citizens, were the inspiration for the most brilliant social affairs. They came with a flourish of trumpets, Lord Astor, a native of New York City, where his ancestors for several generations were loyal Americans, and his sprightly wife, a native of Virginia and claiming to be still 50 per cent American, although a distinguished member of the British parliament and occupying the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gifford Pinchot during their stay in Washington. Mrs. Pinchot gave a large and brilliant tea late in the afternoon, to which official and resident society—that is, the principal members—and the progressive women in town were asked. Lord and Lady Astor will later go on to Virginia, where they will spend some time at Mirador, the beautiful country estate which was the childhood and girlhood home of the first woman member of the British parliament. Lord Astor is chiefly distinguished as Lady Astor's husband, and as being the son of that American citizen who renounced his flag because of taxes, and accepted high honors, including a title, from the British crown. He has been found quite a charming person socially, unassuming and democratic. Loyal American citizens can have little more flattering attention shown them than have these two British subjects who are former.

Foundation, and received most disconcerting and ungrateful treatment from their own board while she was traveling to organize branches and to raise money. Mrs. Calhoun was succeeded in that organization by Mrs. James Carroll Frazer, nee Van Rensselaer. Mrs. Calhoun, who stepped out of the national foundation, has advanced a few steps higher and conceived another and a greater idea in this International Foundation, whose slogan is "Harmonious Service for Humanity." Names of prominent women in almost every country may be found in the membership and committees of historical research are being formed in these countries and in each state of this country. They will select names of women who have rendered historic and patriotic service to be placed upon memorial pillars of the proposed building, which is to be an acropolis of womanhood. It will be built in Washington. The plan is to surround it with an open pergola, the columns of which will be dedicated to the different states and different countries, and upon which the names of the famous women selected will be inscribed. The organized women have already elected Mrs. Calhoun president and they have offices at 813 Vermont avenue. The Pan-American round table Tuesday evening inspired the new organization and great enthusiasm abounds among the foreigners as well as Americans.

Mrs. Harding did not spare herself in the matter of receiving women delegates for everything, last week and this. Tuesday afternoon, last, she received the Daughters of the Loyal Legion at 4 o'clock, and at 5 o'clock she entertained at tea the League of American Pen women whose convention and book-fair opened a few days later. Mrs. Harding is herself a member of this organization. She had at the tea table Mrs. Henry Wilder Keyes, acting president; Mrs. Harry Atwood Colman, convention chairman, and Miss Harlan.

Honoring General Grant. Mrs. Harding accompanied the President to Mt. Pleasant, O., to be present at the ceremonies in celebration of the 100th anniversary of the birth of General Grant, and to dedicate his birth place to the public. It has recently been bought and preserved by the Grant Memorial association, of which Mrs. Harding is president. The League of American Penwomen gave an authors' breakfast Wednesday, with Basil King, Mary Roberts Rinehart, Anna Katherine Green, Rolfe, Mrs. H. H. A. Beach, Mrs. Daniel Lathrop (Margaret Sidney), Gen. Pershing, Princess Cantacuzene, Mrs. Colquhoun, Mrs. Taft and Mrs. Louis N. Geldert among the guests of honor.

banquet in charge are Mrs. George T. Odell, chairman of the American section of the league; Mrs. Robert M. LaFollette, Mrs. W. Thomson Burch, Mrs. Louis Post, and Mrs. Harriet Conner Brown.

Two of the most interesting women at the meeting of the Daughters of the Loyal Legion were Mrs. John A. Logan and Mrs. John C. Black, widows of general. Both made addresses at the banquet on Tuesday. Mrs. Logan was elected national president, succeeding Mrs. James Sexton of Illinois. Mrs. Logan's daughter, Mrs. Tucker, was elected president of the District of Columbia society and Mrs. Saxton was elected treasurer of the national society. Mrs. Charles Austin Coolidge of Detroit was elected first vice president, Mrs. Bowley of California junior vice president, Mrs. Clarence Bishop of Philadelphia chancellor, Mrs. Albert Mann of Chicago historian, Mrs. Blake of Chicago registrar and Miss May Clark of the District of Columbia recorder. Mrs. Logan entertained the Daughters at a reception in her historic home, Calumet Place, Tuesday evening.

The Colored Linen Handkerchief Vogue

Word comes from Paris that the colored linen handkerchief as a decorative part of the tailored suit is in vogue. And this fashion will be emphasized in the spring, when American women are prone to take to the tailored suit consisting of jacket and skirt. We may wear one-piece frocks and enveloping caftans throughout the winter quite willingly, but most of us crave at least one tailored suit when spring comes. There is a freshness, perhaps, about the constantly changing blouse that we like. Anyway, we sponsor and advocate the tailored suit, especially when spring comes.

So, to get back to the linen handkerchief of color, have you mastered the art of making it? It is an easy matter, and one quite worth while, for you can make a lovely little handkerchief of materials costing a quarter, and for the same handkerchief made you would pay from a $1.25 to $2.50. Your time and handwork, of course, are what make the difference.

Here's how to do it: Draw a thread straight across one side of a handkerchief size square of colored linen. This may be any place from half to two inches from the edge. Skip one thread and draw two more. Then pull the middle thread out half an inch at one end. Tie it around a loop in a long double piece of thin colored embroidered cotton. Now carefully, by means of the other end of the middle thread, pull the colored thread into place.

You can make any sort of designs you wish to, once you have mastered the art of pulling these threads. The edge of the handkerchief may be whipped with colored thread or hemmed or hemstitched. Some shops sell the squares of linen. Some sell the squares by the yard. A third of a yard cuts nicely into five.

D. A. R. Congress Closed. The closing sessions of the congress of the D. A. R. were followed by the opening of the first convention of the newly organized Daughters of American Colonists, an organization similar to the Colonial Dames, but of much wider scope and distinctly not a "class" society. Mrs. G. T. Guernsey, former president general of the D. A. R., is their president. The charter membership is now closed.

Many of the delegates to the congresses closed recently remained over for the annual meetings of the Dames of the Loyal Legion, the Society of the Army of the Tennessee, the biennial convention of the League of American Pen Women and the "Washington day" of the League of Women Voters, which closed the week.

The principal work of the Dames of the Loyal Legion this year was to present the proposition to affiliate or associate their organization with the Commandery of Loyal Legion, which, of course, grows smaller each year, being composed of officers of the civil war. Captain H. M. Fisher is chairman of the committee to consider such affiliation, or association. The only woman on his committee is Mrs. Louise Smith of Cleveland, widow of General Charles H. Smith of the Army of the Tennessee. She was a delegate to the meetings of the Daughters of Founders and Patriots, D. A. R., Daughters of American Colonists, Society of the Army of the Tennessee, Dames of the Loyal Legion and the Sons and Daughters of Pilgrims. She is a most capable and interesting woman, being a member of, in addition to the organizations mentioned, the Order of Americans of Royal Ancestry, Daughters of Royal Descent and the Colonial Dames of Vermont.

The "Newest" Organization. Quite the newest organization of women formed is the "International Foundation," announced this week. The founder is Mrs. C. C. Calhoun, who founded the Woman's National
