Three Championship Cue Matches to Bring Billiard Season to Close

Layton, McCourt Clash for Three-Cushion Crown

Greenleaf to Defend Crown Against Franklin of Kansas City—Schaefer to Play Cochran.

By JOE DAVIS.

The waning billard season has three championship matches in store, the meeting of Champion John Layton and Charley McCourt of Pittsburgh for the three-cushion title, the contest between Champion Ralph Greenleaf and Walter Franklin of Kansas City at New York for the pocket championship, and lastly, the battle between Champion Jake Schaefer and Welker Cochran for the world's 18.2 balk line title at Chicago.

JAKE SCHAEFER.

The first of these will be staged May 1 to 3 at Sedalia, Mo., which is now Layton's home town. Layton is patriotic enough to give the home folks a view of himself in championship competition once in a while and so the peppery Scotch-American expert from the Smoky City will have to travel there.

Layton a Steady Player.

Layton on his past performances rates as one of the greatest angle players in the history of the game. He is steadier than the brilliant McCourt, and this quality is a big factor in the three nights' play, the goal being 180 points.

McCourt and Layton are both graduates of the pocket billiard ranks, and before taking seriously to the three-cushion game the Sedalia expert had won the national championship. Competing against the fine field which assembled at Chicago in 1916 to compete for the pocket championship, Layton finished second to William E. Blankenship, and in the first challenge match defeated the latter, 450 to 341. Then Layton lost to Frank Taberski, in a memorable match at Sedalia, in which Frank scored 267 balls the final night to 137 by John. They had flowers ready to present to Layton, but Taberski got them.

History of the Title.

In this same year McCourt won the three-cushion title from Charley Ellis, 150 to 149, but lost to Hugh Heal in September. In January, 1917, McCourt again became champion by defeating George Moore, but later lost to Bob Cannefax.

Layton in the meantime was gaining skill at three cushions, and in 1920, at Chicago, he defeated Cannefax, Jackson and Kieckhefer in the final for the title, which under the rules he held for a year. Last October at Pittsburgh, Kieckhefer of Chicago won the tournament, Layton and Alfredo de Oro tying for second place. Layton had the right to challenge first and defeated Kieckhefer, 180 to 171, at Chicago. Last February he defeated De Oro, 180 to 135, at Milwaukee, and as Pierre Maupome did not exercise his right to challenge, McCourt is next in line.

Layton a Real Champ.

Layton has all the qualifications which go to make a champion, and is blessed with a rugged constitution. He was a fine ball player and at one time managed the Sedalia team. He loves the outdoors and spends one or two weeks each year hunting or motor boating.

In billiards he was a "solid" stroke, and is peculiarly adapted to three cushions. With him the game is to a large extent a mechanical science, as nearly every shot is "figured," and after he has made his calculation as to where to hit the first cushion it is largely a matter of accuracy in hitting the desired spot. As soon as this is accomplished John knows he will come close to making the shot.

McCourt, too, plays by system, but he is an impetuous player, who figures quickly and shoots without delay. He has not as good a billiard head as Layton and his great chance to defeat Layton will be to develop a brilliant streak, but this he will have to produce himself, as Layton has a defense which is hard to break through.

Track and Field

By Frank Loomis, Jr.
World's Champion Hurdler

For many years America has led the world in field events. The reason for this is because of the attention the American boys give to form. Form—perfection of form—is the quality one must work for to be successful in any field event.

The importance of style in the high jump cannot be overestimated. One might have plenty of spring and agility for the high jump, but if he hasn't any form or style in his jump he will not be able to do his best. In other words, he can spring the height, but does not know how to get his body, arms and legs out of the way as he reaches the height of the bar.

Most jumpers start with the scissors jump. This is a side jump, the athlete running at an oblique angle toward the bar, kicks over one leg and follows it with the other.

Way to Jump.

The modern way to jump is as follows: Run almost straight at the bar. Within a short distance from the standards swerve slightly parallel to the cross bar, and smashing the heel of right foot into the ground, spring upward, making a big, high kick with the left leg. At the same time swing the right leg up and, in doing this make a mighty swing upward with the left arm and a thrust up with the chest. This first big, high kick and the other movements will give the athlete his height and get his left leg over the cross bar. As the athlete reaches his height he turns his body so that he "arches" the cross bar with his body and is facing the cross bar and is directly over it. This turning is done by "cutting" or "swinging" the right leg under the body, cutting it from the right side of the cross bar over to the left, and at the same time swinging the arms upward and over across the bar. The jumper will land facing the bar.

There are many styles used in high jumping, but all the best jumpers of modern times use the above style, or something similar. In fact, every jumper has a style of his own. His form of turning, etc., may be his own because of his build, etc., but his styles will probably be along the same line as many others.

Many jumpers "shoot" over the bar, going over it almost in a lying-down position.

High school boys learning to high jump should not confine themselves to a certain style. Try the style that is described above and then work in your own modification to the style to suit your own peculiar capabilities.

Training is very necessary for jumpers. Three times a week is plenty of practice for the high jump. Do not practice at very high heights. Get used to your form, your takeoff, and get all the little points down before you try for height. Inexperienced boys always jump too often. Take plenty of time between jumps (three and four minutes between each jump.)

During a competition psychology plays a big part. Always try to clear the bar in your first attempt. Nothing will so dishearten your rivals as to see you clear each height easily on your first attempt.

Questions and Answers

1. Q—At our school a question came up as to which was the hardest race to run. What do you consider?—H. F., Lincoln, Neb.
A—The 440-yard hurdles.
2. Q—Should the arms be carried above or below the hips in sprinting?—Ralph, Omaha.
A—Above the hips and "not carried," but driving just as hard as your legs.
3. Q—Is there any rule disqualifying a boy for knocking down the last hurdle in a race?—Grand Island Athlete.
A—No.
4. Q—How far along the track should you look when you get "set" in the dash?—H. C., Fremont, Neb.
A—About two yards.

Gish of Nebraska Wins Third in 120 Hurdles at Drake Relays

Des Moines, Ia., April 29.—(By A. P.)—With a capacity crowd of 15,000 persons packed into the stands, the finals in the Drake relays were contested in the Drake stadium this afternoon. A bright sun blazing down from a clear sky made weather conditions perfect for the games. A record-breaking list of 859 athletes from 138 institutions were in the competition.

Two-mile high school relay, Class A, won by Cedar Rapids (Cook, Crawford, Yeisley, Irwin); Mason City second, North Des Moines third, West Des Moines fourth. Time: 8:27 4-5, new Drake record, former record, 8:33 4-5.

120-yard high hurdles: Won by Anderson, Minnesota; Bradley, Kan, second; Gish, Nebraska, third; Shope, Iowa, fourth. Time: 15 2-5.

Two-mile university relay; Won by Ames (Hammerly, Frevert, Higgins, Wolters); Minnesota second, Iowa third, Wisconsin fourth. Time: 7:53 3-5.

One mile college relay, first section: Won by Centre (Mount Joy, Berryman, Robertson, Kimball); Depauw second, Central third, Simpson fourth. Time: 3:31 4-5.

One mile college relay, second section: Won by Occidental college (Spangler, Ellsworth, Martin, Powers); Knox second, Cornell third, Butler fourth. Time: 3:25 3-5.

Babe Ruth Boils as Yanks Lose

Bambino Doesn't Like Idea of Having to Sit and Watch Mates Beaten.

Babe Ruth, home-run hitter extraordinary of the Yankees, was out of the game opening day because of his suspension, but not out of the pictures.

The big fellow sat in a box with Ban Johnson, president of the American league, and Colonel Huston, part owner of the Yanks, and boiled over when he saw his team beaten while he sat in idleness.

Brigades of movie cameras whirled and other cameras clicked while the Bambino registered disgust.

Babe marched in the procession when the Auerican flag was hoisted, and later was introduced to President Harding. After the game he remarked:

"Only 36 more days like this."

College Player Dies From Injuries in Ball Game

Wyatt Davenport, center fielder of the Georgia Military college baseball team, died from injuries received in a game April 8. Davenport collided with another member of his team while attempting to catch a ball, suffering a concussion of the brain. He never regained consciousness.

Red Sox Defeat Yanks, Breaking Losing Streak

New York Drops 14-Inning Game to Boston—Hoyt Takes Punch at Manager Huggins.

New York, April 29.—The Boston Americans broke their long losing streak here today, winning a tight 14-inning game from New York, 5 to 2. Hoyt got into a hot argument with Huggins after the 14th inning and took a punch at the New York manager because he had been ordered to pass Smith, filling the bases. Baker and Woods, the trainer, prevented a row. Score:

Browns, 5; Indians, 4.

St. Louis, April 29.—Ellerbe's single in the 10th inning scoring Van Gilder, who had doubled, gave the Browns a 6 to 5 victory over Cleveland today. It was Van Gilder's fourth straight victory of the season. Kenneth Williams, home run champion of the majors for this year, added two to his total, giving him nine in seven games. His first came in the sixth, with Tobin on third, against Coveleskie, while his second, in the ninth, against the same pitcher, tied the score. Both of the wallops went out of the park. Tobin also shit a home run in the seventh inning.

Both Van Gilder and Coveleskie were hit hard. The Brownie pitcher gave up a dozen safeties, while the Cleveland splitter was found for 14. Score:

Christy Mathewson Picks Giants to Win

Christy Mathewson picks the New York Giants to win the National league and the world's series. The former pitching star of the Giants has been following the teams closely in the spring training camps and believes his former teammates have the best chance.

Mathewson, who for two years has been fighting tuberculosis, hopes to be at the opening game next year. He has improved so much that he is allowed to take short walks, go to the dining room for his meals, and take long automobile rides.

Alexa Stirling Made Honorary Member of New York Golf Club

New York, April 29.—Miss Alexa Stirling, the former Atlanta (Ga.) girl, who launched into a business career here after the last women's national giolf championship at Hollywood, has been elected an honorary member of the Garden City Country club and may present that organization in the metropolian and national events in which she will participate this season.
