

Duffy Agrees to Pay Alimony of $3,000 to Ex-Wife

Sum Is $8,000 Less Than First Spouse Obtained—Mate No. 2 Gets Decree by Default.

Two years ago Joseph L. Duffy, owner of the Duffy Furnace and Sheet Metal works was ordered to pay wife No. 1 $11,000 alimony. Yesterday in the court of domestic relations Duffy agreed to pay wife No. 2 $3,000.

Mrs. Cathryn Duffy, who obtained her divorce yesterday by default, testified before Judge Day that her husband threatened her life and ridiculed her religion before her friends.

On one occasion, she said, when she wanted to go to church, Duffy took her shoes and locked her in the bathroom.

Mrs. Duffy has been living at the Y. M. C. A. until recently, when she moved to her mother's home at 2220 Burt street.

"Once, when I wanted him to take me to a school of expression for study, I wanted him to pick up a chair," said Mrs. Duffy. "But he refused and became abusive and angry and took me to South Omaha, where he threatened to knock some teeth out of my mouth and throw me in the river."

Mrs. Duffy stated that she separated from her husband January 1, and went to Kansas City, but returned to him after he pleaded he would not nag and abuse her.

On April 1 Mrs. Duffy filed suit for divorce.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF NIMBLE DEER BY ARTHUR SCOTT BAILEY

CHAPTER XVI. Mr. Crow Looks On.

Nimble and his friend Dodger, the Deer, picked themselves up off the ground where they had fallen after their collision in the air. They did not feel any too pleasant. One of Dodger's sharp toes had given Nimble white. And neither of them said a word.

"Come! Come!" cried old Mr. Crow. "This will never do. Give us more action!"

And then Dodger, the Deer, looked up at Mr. Crow and Jasper Jay and spoke:

"If you want more action why don't you two furnish it?" he asked.

"That's a good idea!" Nimble exclaimed. "Let's see a mock battle up in the tree!"

But Mr. Crow replied hoarsely that he had to meet a friend down the valley. "I must be flapping along," he said. And off he went.

Jasper Jay grinned and winked at Nimble and Dodger behind Mr. Crow's back. And then with a loud squall—which might have meant almost anything—he too flew away.

"That was the liveliest mock battle we ever had," Nimble remarked to his friend Dodger.

Dodger agreed with what he said. Nimble's mother gasped when she saw her son a little later.

"You're a terrible sight!" she told him severely. "What have you been doing?"

"I've been having fun with Dodger, the Deer," Nimble explained. "But to tell the truth, it wasn't as much fun as I had expected!"

Anness Doesn't Favor Repeal of Volstead Act

Republican Candidate for Congress Says He Will Oppose Attempt to Modify Dry Law.

"If we should repeal the Volstead act, we should also repeal the manufacture and sale of automobiles and go back to the good old days of horses and buggies, back to buckboards and ox teams."

So declares Wilbur W. Anness, republican candidate for congress from Otoe county, in a statement issued from Dunbar regarding his stand on the Volstead act.

Mr. Anness was asked for a statement following the declaration of former Gov. J. W. Morehead of Falls City, democratic candidate for congress from the First district, at the Bryan harmony banquet in Lincoln Saturday night, that he "would uphold in congress, if elected, the Volstead act as it stands today, and oppose any attempt to change or modify it."

All the other candidates, republican and democratic, have now announced themselves "dry" candidates.

When Chauncey Depew was asked the other day the secret of holding his old friendships he replied, "I never discuss the wet and dry question with them," says Mr. Anness' statement. "As a candidate, however, for congress here in the First district, I want to say I have only one shoulder on which to carry stuff around, and I am not in favor of disturbing the Volstead act."
