

Children Fight in Court Over Mother's Burial

Family Evenly Divided Over Place Body Will Be Taken From Omaha—Vault Now Being Built.

Columbus, Neb., May 4.—(Special.)—Seeking an order from the court to prevent the body of their mother, Mrs. Martha J. Kinman, from being placed in a mausoleum in Columbus cemetery and to cause it to be given burial in the family plot in Osceola, Herbert S. Kinman, Joseph R. Kinman and Mrs. Alice Eliegarth have filed suit in district court against their three sisters, Misses Jessie and Lellie Kinman and Mrs. Albert M. Graves and the Forest Lawn Cemetery association of Omaha.

Farmers Not Turning Radical, McKelvie Says

Philadelphia, May 4.—There is no danger of the farmer of the middle-west turning ultra-radical and he is not behind any class or sectional legislation, Gov. Samuel R. McKelvie of Nebraska, declared in an address before the Philadelphia Chamber of Commerce.

Indian Girls Confess Setting Fire to School

Sioux Falls, S. D., May 4.—Two young Indian girls confessed to starting the blaze that destroyed the Episcopal school for Indian girls at Mission, S. D., on the night of April 23, according to Deputy United States Marshal Lee R. Brooks, who is on his way to the Rosebud reservation to arrest them.

Lincoln, May 4.—(Special.)—Alvin Heryly, 25, died here one week and a day after the death of his wife, Mary Ellen Heryly. Both were working their way through college.

The Dancing Master

Elizabeth went home feeling miserable; though she did not care for Dolly, she was sorry for her and she would have given a great deal to have helped her.

When Farmer called that evening she was unusually cool to him; the easy friendship that had grown up between them seemed to have broken down. She felt ill at ease.

"I wish you wouldn't call me by my Christian name; I don't like it." She saw the hot blood rush into his handsome face, but he controlled himself admirably.

"I'm sorry, I thought you did not mind," he said. She turned away without answering. She felt ashamed. He had been so good to her. She thought of the check he had sent to Enid Sanger with sudden heart sinking.

"I shall never wish it," she told him. "I don't think there's much happiness in the world," she added pitifully.

He broke out again eagerly: "I've spoken too soon. I never meant to. But you won't send me away, Elizabeth. I'll never allude to it again. I'm content to go on, just being your friend, unless you ever wish it to be different."

"I can't ever care for you like that." He tried to laugh. "I know I owe you everything," she said again; "I know it would only be right if I did care for you."

She shook her head. "It's all my fault, for—ever letting you do what you have done," she said.

"He would not allow that. 'I've made a good investment, that's all,' he said cheerily. 'There's no need to be sorry for me. Wait till the 11th.'"

It was much later on in the evening that he said suddenly, when Miss Senesis was out of the room: "Elizabeth, may I ask you something?"

"What is it?" "He smiled at her anxiety. 'Don't look so alarmed; I'm not going to scold you, only—will you tell me who you gave that check to?'"

Elizabeth stared at him with wide eyes, the color mounting slowly to her cheeks. "Who—who did I give it to?" she faltered. She could not imagine why he was questioning her; in her ignorance she had never dreamed that the check was ultimately bound to find its way back to him.

"No, I don't understand—Oh, do explain what you mean!" He lowered his eyes to hide the sudden smile that flashed into them.

"I don't mean anything. When you have a check book of your own I will show you how to use it. Don't look so scared; I give you my word that there is nothing the matter, and I hope—I hope when you want money again you will not hesitate to ask me."

"You are very kind," Elizabeth said; her eyes were puzzled; she looked at him furtively.

Cool Weather Delays Crops

Germination Held Back in Southern States—Winter Grains Well Along.

Washington, May 4.—It's just one thing after another for the farmers in the middlewest, it was indicated by reports of the weather bureau in its weekly weather and crop review. These reports for several weeks have said farm preparations were being delayed by rain and snow, although the rain has stopped, the review says it "was mostly too cool in central southern states for germination and development of spring crops."

Winter grains and grass in the central states, however, made satisfactory progress, the review stated, adding that beneficial rains fell in northern Florida and portions of the southwest where drouthy conditions have prevailed.

Sowing of oats in the northern states during the period covered by the review—the week ending yesterday—made satisfactory progress, but it was stated that a considerable decrease in acreage was indicated.

Planting of corn was reported as well along in central and southern Kansas, but the work was much delayed in central valley states.

Two Venango Bankers Are Married Same Day

Venango, Neb., May 4.—(Special.)—An unusual coincidence occurred here when two assistant cashiers of local banks were married the same afternoon. The weddings took place Wednesday.

Albert Schroeder of the Farmers State bank was married to Miss Alda Wostenberg, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Christian Wostenberg. After two weeks in Chicago and other eastern points they will be at home in Venango.

Charles Novak of the Venango State bank married Miss Iva Morton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Morton. The two will spend a honeymoon at Omaha, after which they will return to Venango.

Golden Wedding Celebrated by Cambridge Couple
Cambridge, Neb., May 4.—(Special.)—Robert Aires and wife celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary here. Mr. and Mrs. Aires came from Illinois in an early day, settled on a farm near Hendly, moving to Cambridge a little more than one year ago. Their son is a doctor in St. Louis. The one son who lives with his parents and the daughter, Mrs. Larson, of Willonville, Neb., were present. Rev. W. C. Kelly of the Methodist church assisted in the ceremonies.
