26 Graduate From Curtis College

Prof. W. W. Burr of State Agronomy Department is Speaker for Occasion.

Curtis.—"Problems of the Farmer of Tomorrow" was the subject of the address delivered by Prof. W. W. Burr, head of the agronomy department at the University of Nebraska, at the ninth annual commencement of the Nebraska School of Agriculture here. After indicating that acquisition of capital, preservation of soil fertility, reduction of cost production, organization and regulation of return proportional to labor were some of the chief questions involved, the speaker pointed out that the farmer's problem is one that the city man cannot afford to overlook.

If worst comes to worst, Mr. Burr declared, the farmer can take care of himself by living on the products of his farm. The speaker stated that whereas the farmer of a few years ago could rely on the increase in the price of his land to help him out, today it was up to the farmer to make production carry itself and yield a profit.

Mr. Burr explained that farmer organization was as necessary as the organization of any other kind of labor in order to secure more equal return for labor involved in production. The 1922 graduating class included 26 members with representatives from nearly all sections in the western end of the state.

Douglas County Bee Inspection

Apiaries Will Be Examined by Federal Officer to Eradicate Foul Brood.

The department of agriculture, the county agents and the Douglas County Bee Keepers' association, cooperating, will begin an inspection of bee apiaries in Douglas county this week for the purpose of eradicating foul brood. An inspector will be sent from the department to supervise the work, which will be a demonstration project for the guidance of the work in other bee localities.

As there is no appropriation for work of this character, bee keepers and the county agents must take the initiative in conducting such an inspection, it is explained. Should other counties desire to have such an inspection made, the secretary says the state will take up the work upon application.

The state law provides that should an inspection support evidences of foul brood or other contagious or infectious diseases, the department of agriculture is authorized to furnish the owner with written instructions of the nature of the disease and the methods for treating them.

The law further provides that any person who maintains, sells or gives away, removes or permits the removal of any diseased bees without the consent of the department of agriculture, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction, be subject to fine or jail sentence.

DAKOTA WOOL CLIPS SOLD FOR 35 CENTS A POUND.

Belle Fourche, S. D.—The Belle Fourche wool market opened and two of the largest clips in the western part of the state were sold at 35 cents per pound, these being the clips of the Smiley Sheep company, amounting to 115,000 pounds, and the Fuller Sheep company, amounting to 45,000 pounds. O'Connor Bros. and Schult of Belle Fourche, representing Charles J. Webb & Co. Philadelphia wool merchants, were the purchasers. This wool has not been shorn, but will be delivered in June and July.

The prices received was very satisfactory to the owners of the sheep and it will be good news to the flockmasters of this part of the west, as it really establishes a "going price" for the wools in this locality which will amount to in the neighborhood of 2,000,000 pounds. Shearing will start about June 1. As a general rule sheep have wintered well and the wool is in good condition for market.
