

Eleven Omahans Will Compete in Commercial Test

High School Students Over State to Match Skill in Contest at Lincoln.

Eleven Omaha high school students will journey to Lincoln Friday and match skill with other high school students in commercial subjects in the annual state contest under the auspices of the Nebraska State Teachers' association.

Central High will send Emma Wolverton, Bertha Baer, Herbert Nelson and Gertrude Blomquist. Sacred Heart High school will send Helen McEvoy and Margaret Schmitt. South High will send Cecelia Broderick, Gladys Matson, Stanley Sienko, Stella Horwich and Geraldine Thomsen.

These were the winners at the district contest held in Omaha a week ago. Miss Mina E. Hubbell of South High, R. H. Johnson and Miss Margaretta Burke of Central High will accompany the students.

Seventy pupils from Chadron, McCook, Holdrege, Kearney, Hastings, Battle Creek, West Point, Neligh, Omaha, Fremont, Plattsmouth, Lincoln, Beatrice, Pawnee City, Havelock and Wynmore will be in the contest which will be held in the Lincoln High school.

The contest in shorthand will be held from 10:30 to noon; lunch, 12 to 1; typewriting, 1 to 2; spelling, 2 to 3. The results probably will be announced about 4:30.

Iowa Hotel Men Indicted Through Omaha Officials

The recent indictment of A. A. Cooper, W. F. Cooper and Phil Ryder, officials of the Hotel Julien Dubuque, Ia., was brought about by Omaha internal revenue officers working under direction of James J. Drakeford, revenue agent in charge of the Omaha division which collects income and other federal taxes from Nebraska and Iowa.

The amount the government claims from the defendants, together with penalties and interest, is $351,444.87 up to date.

The defendants were indicted by a federal grand jury on charges of false and fraudulent income tax returns and perjury.

The government claims the hotel made big profits in 1919 and 1920 although the return made to the government tax collectors showed a loss. It is said many of the small stockholders sold their stock for as little as 25 cents on the dollar upon this showing of loss.

Frank Hughes Resigns as Grocery Company Official

Frank J. Hughes has resigned as vice president and general manager of the H. J. Hughes wholesale grocery company because of ill health. His interest in the firm, valued at $25,000, has been sold to his brothers, Clarence E. and Robert W., according to their father, H. J. Hughes.

Clarence Hughes is secretary-treasurer, and Robert will be placed in charge of several departments as a buyer. The vacant places will not be filled until the annual meeting of stockholders next January, according to H. J. Hughes, who said he wants his son, Frank, to get out in the open and see if he will not feel better.

"Perhaps! Perhaps!" Jimmy Rabbit answered. He wished his guests would move away.

Former G. A. R. Commander in Suit Brought by His Son

C. E. Adams, former national commander of the G. A. R. and banker of Superior, Neb., is a party to a suit being tried in Judge Fitzgerald's court.

Clarendon E. Adams, jr., a son, brought suit against his father and David Guthrie, official of the Southern Nebraska Power company, to recover $4,000 on two notes growing out of the collapse of a Superior bank of which the elder Adams was president.

A Silly Song

By A CUCKOO BIRD

Oh King Solomon was puzzled, great decisions he had made, but he couldn't make the grade. He had picked the real mother of a baby in dispute. And the whole darned world admitted that old Sol. was pretty cute. Then they ushered in a flapper to King Solomon's domain and said, "Oh Sol, they tell us that this being has a brain, and now will you please tell us, man of wisdom, great and true, what she does with her gray matter? We are stumped—we're asking you." Solomon then took that flapper and he talked to her a week. Weighty words of wondrous wisdom to that flapper did he speak and he asked her many questions. Then he sadly shook his head and he said to those who waited, "if she has one it is dead."
