

$2,000 Is Posted for Capture of Siefkens' Slayer

Lad. 16, Second Victim of Holdup Tragedy, Dies—Hears Father's Fate From Mother.

A total of $2,000 in cash rewards has been posted for the arrest of the slayer of Charles Siefkens and his son, Robert, who died following their battle with a bandit Saturday morning. The Firemen's Fund Insurance company, which the elder Siefkens represented in Omaha, offers $1,000; H. J. Golden of Chicago, brother of the bereaved widow, has made an offer of $500 and the county board of commissioners authorized $300.

Robert Siefkens, 16, died in Lord Lister hospital yesterday morning from two bullet wounds inflicted by the bandit at the Nicholas oil station. The mother was at the bedside of her son a few minutes before his death. The youth was unable to talk to her, but indicated by a nod of the head that he understood her. Then, he heard for the first time that his father, Charles Siefkens, 42, died Sunday morning from wounds received in an attempt to rescue him.

Told Story of Shooting.
The boy rallied Tuesday afternoon and told the story of the shooting. He was alone in the station, he said, when the masked highwayman entered brandishing a revolver and told him to hold up his hands. Then he was told to open the cash register. At this moment his father appeared and pressed a revolver into the side of the robber, ordering him to hold up his hands.

Instead the robber whirled, shot twice at the father, who fell wounded, dropping his gun. "I'll get him, dad," "I reached for the gun," the youth said, "calling, 'I'll get him, dad.'"

"The robber turned again, shot me twice and then firing three more shots into the body of my father, fled out the door."
Girl Is Frightened.
Sylvia Kulakofsky, 418 South Thirty-eighth avenue, who believes that the murderer is the same man who followed her out to that section of the city the day of the shooting, appeared at the police station yesterday, tormented by fear that the slayer of the Siefkens might kill her because she had revealed her experiences on the fatal night. She was shown several suspects but failed to identify any of them.

Funeral services for Robert Siefkens will be held Saturday morning at 10 in the Dundee Presbyterian

Reconciliation of Okuns Fails

Couple Go on With Suit—Judge Orders Husband to Pay Alimony.

An attempt to reunite Sara Golddeberg Okun, 17, and her husband, Sam Okun, 21, yesterday in domestic relations court, failed. The hearing was before Judge Sears on Mrs. Okun's application for a restraining order to thwart any attempt of her husband to molest her and for temporary alimony pending decision in their divorce actions.

The judge issued instructions for Okun to pay $10 a week temporary alimony.
An attempt was made by Okun's attorney during the hearing, to introduce letters written by Mrs. Okun to Gilbert Jaffey, violinist at a local restaurant. Judge Sears sustained objections by John Battin, attorney for Mrs. Okun, on the grounds that this was not a divorce hearing.

The girl, who was working as a telephone operator at Hotel Hill at the time she took poison last Friday, said that she was afraid of her husband as he had threatened her on several occasions.

Woman Sues City Because Daughter Fell Into Lake
Suit for $50,000 was brought in district court against the City of Omaha and Dr. and Mrs. J. P. Connolly by Mrs. Ella Bailey, mother of Mary Bailey, 14, who alleges the defendants should be held responsible for injuries to her daughter, who suffered nervous shock and contracted pneumonia when a boat she was riding in Riverview park capsized, causing the drowning of two other children, May 29, 1920.

Dr. Connolly and his wife were in charge of the concessions at the park and were negligent, the petition states, when they failed to observe that the boats were unfit for use.
