

Illinois Is Favorite in Western Conference Track Meet

Coach Gill Has Best Balanced Squad Entered

Big Ten Meet at Iowa City Expected to Do Much to Encourage Track Sport in Middle West.

By WALTER ECKERSALL.

Represented by one of the most evenly balanced teams in the history of western intercollegiate track and field competition, Illinois, coached by the veteran Harry Gill, should have a strong chance for honors in the 22d annual track and field games of the western conference to be held at Iowa City next Friday and Saturday.

Illinois will score a number of first places and it will register points in almost every event. There is not a team in the conference which can approach the downstaters in balance, one of the greatest assets in the successful development of track and field teams. Outside of the Big Ten, Notre Dame appears to be the only squad of strength, but it has not enough point winners to seriously endanger Illinois' advance claims to the title.

Good Performers at Michigan. Wisconsin, which showed promise during the indoor season, was defeated by Minnesota in a dual meet. Result of this event moves the Gophers into the challenging position occupied by the Badgers. Michigan has some good performers, but not the all-around strength to make it a serious contender.

In the Missouri valley conference there are no teams of balance. The University of Kansas and Hamilton of Missouri may cut in on points expected to be won by athletes of other teams, but they cannot register enough points to change the advance prediction of Illinois being the best team in the games.

Prepare for Meet. It will be the first time the event has ever been held in Iowa City, and it will go a long way toward encouraging track and field athletics in the section. The university of Iowa will be host to scores of athletes and visitors. Howard Jones, able director of athletics at the Hawkeye institution, is leaving nothing undone to make the games among the most successful ever held.

The athletes will be far from disappointed with conditions. They will race upon one of the best tracks in the middle west, while the performers in the field events will have solid and firm turf for their efforts. Seven lanes will be laid out for the dash and hurdles. The 220-yard dash will be decided over a straight course. The quarter-mile will start in a chute and be run around one turn. The half mile will be run around three turns.

Airplane Scouts May Spy on Rival Football Teams

Cambridge, May 27.—What's fair in war is fair in football may become a new version of an old proverb in his report to President Lowell, Dean LeBaron R. Briggs of the Harvard athletic committee points out the danger of airplane spies from a rival gridiron gaining information of secret plays. The dean may or may not be joking, but there appears nothing to prevent scouts from an enemy camp from registering the secret practice of their rivals on a motion picture camera while flying over the field.

Checkers Favorite Game of Veteran Jockey Who Will Ride at Ak-Sar-Ben Meeting

HOW long is the saddle life of the jockey? How long can he continue to show good form over his younger rivals? These are the questions that are often asked of the experienced horseman. Their answer is from five to eight years. Yet, in Charley Gross, the evergreen veteran jockey, who has voiced his intentions of knowing his horsemanship at the coming Ak-Sar-Ben meeting, is one rider whose long career as a successful pilot of thoroughbreds would seem to refute that answer.

With the exception of Johnny Callahan and Jimmy Butwell, two pigskin artists who are now scintillating on the metropolitan tracks, Gross is in point of years of saddle service the oldest rider in America. Callahan and Butwell have the edge on this westerner, but the difference is but a few months.

Years ago when most of the present day jockeys were in their swaddling clothes, Gross then in his teens, was booting in winners ahead of the best riders in America. Indeed during one of his early years of service he finished out the period the champion of his profession, a distinction which is the aspiration of every lad who throws his leg over the back of a graceful thoroughbred.

Takes Many Chances. Twenty years spent in the saddle has not robbed this jockey of his cunning. Nor has it curbed his daring. Today he is found slipping through a small opening on the rail, taking chances which a faint-hearted runner would not attempt. During this score of years spent with the thoroughbred, Gross has seen jockeys climb the ladder of fame and then in after years descend when they had lost the knack of driving the younger home ahead of their runner rivals. Others he has seen pass on an increasing weight the contents of all jockeys has forced them to retire. This bugaboo of riders has never been a source of worry to Gross. He can always keep the beam from raising when it is set at 107 pounds and never has been forced to deny himself the contents of full dinner plate to accomplish this.

Gross, unlike many of the present-day saddle luminaries, has saved his money. He has seen many great stars of the riding world, such as Tod Sloan, Eugene Ehrlich, and Grover Fayer, Joe Pigott, Monk Coburn and others, who had made a fortune at their vocation, squander it and eventually wind up their career broken in health and purse. Gross has profited by their experiences with the result that today he can sign a check with many figures on it as one finds in the numbers of a box car.

From Old School. He is one of the old school of riders who learned their saddle lessons from a master who was stern to the end that mistakes were punishable by the frequent use of a riding whip of which the erring lad was on the receiving end. This same master taught Gross that the stable was the place for all rising jockeys to stay and that late hours with bad companions and spendthrift habits contributed more to the downfall of public idols than any other form of bad behavior.

Today we find Gross imparting that same wisdom to others of his calling. Rightfully, he has earned the sobriquet, "Daddy of the jockey room." He takes a keen interest in the budding rider and often he can be found in some secluded corner of their quarters advising some embryo jockey. He tells them that rough riding never hung a laurel wreath on the brow of any jockey and that all it ever got one who uses rough tactics the ambition came to him to be a fisticifer. He got a chance to serve as a 14th or 15th assistant sparring partner for Johnson. He grabbed the job, and he has been a lamb at home ever thought he'd know about boxing.

'Brown Pantner' Is a Lamb at Home

It was from Johnson that Wills learned the value and the expert use of an uppercut—the most useful and most powerful of all his blows.

Along in 1911 Wills launched himself upon a fistic career. But for many years battling was but a side issue. His real work—his means of livelihood—was as a longshoreman on the docks around New York. It was there that he built up the giant strength that is his; strength that scintillates even the gorilla-like power which Johnson knew in his best days. Wills has mixed it 79 times during his ring career. Of these jousts, 32 have been rewarded with knockout achievements. He has won 17 decisions and mingled in 21 no-decision encounters. Another affair was a draw. He was tossed out of the ring three times and the doings officially labelled "no contest." Because the referee figured that he and his rival were putting on a bunny-hug skit—a prize fight.

Bowling Once "Wicked" Game; Was Under Ban

Bowling was once forbidden by law. The game was originally ninepins, and was called "cloche," the definition being given as "cloche the game at nine-pins, forbidden by statute, anno 17 Edward IV."

The prohibition was afterward withdrawn and the game became popular. It was once also a popular gambling game in the United States, and in some states was prohibited by law. The law was evaded by aiding another pin and calling it ten-pins.

Something's wrong with the boxing game. Wills Jackson and Johnny Dundee haven't fought for quite awhile.

Bright Lights Have No Appeal for Harry Wills, Negro Heavy.

By FRANK G. MENKE. (Copyright, 1922, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

Now that they've smoked up this Dempsey-Wills thing to a point of national discourse, folks are asking: "Who and what is Wills?" Although the name of Wills has been smudged a million times over more onto news print, his like story, his fistic record, his achievements here and there have remained as something of a mystery.

Beyond everything else, Wills is a clean living negro. Whatever Jack Johnson was, Wills is exactly the opposite. The bright lights have no appeal for him. Home life, mixed with church socials and the swapping of calls with the friends of his wife and himself appeal to Wills—make up for him his real life beyond the rosin arena.

Long years ago when Wills was a youngster he had yearnings to be a jockey. He was a peckananny in size until he was well into his teens. Then, when he started to grow, lassy me, how dat chile did sprill up.

Wills of today is perhaps the most perfect specimen of physical manhood that ever stepped into a ring. In every line of his perfect frame he out-Apollos Apollo.

Bowling Once "Wicked" Game; Was Under Ban

Bowling was once forbidden by law. The game was originally ninepins, and was called "cloche," the definition being given as "cloche the game at nine-pins, forbidden by statute, anno 17 Edward IV."

The prohibition was afterward withdrawn and the game became popular. It was once also a popular gambling game in the United States, and in some states was prohibited by law. The law was evaded by aiding another pin and calling it ten-pins.

Something's wrong with the boxing game. Wills Jackson and Johnny Dundee haven't fought for quite awhile.

Chicago White Sox Take Both Games of Double-Header

Shocker Holds Opponents to Three Hits in First but Loses by 2 to 1—Squeeze Play Wins Second.

Chicago, May 27.—Chicago made it three straight from St. Louis today by taking both ends of a double-header by scores of 2 to 1 and 3 to 2, the first game going 10 innings.

Both contests were pitching battles, the first between Urban Fisher and Urban Shocker, the latter pitching a perfect game until the eighth inning, not a man reaching first until Falk singled after one was out. This followed by Schalk's double tied the score, the visitors having counted a run in the second on Jacobson's triple and a double by Severid.

Gerber's two-base error on Collins' grounder, followed by a hit by Falk, gave the locals the first game, and the St. Louis shortstop paved the way for the last run in the second game by throwing Mostil's grounder wild to first, which let Mostil reach second.

Police Baseball Team Selected to Extinguish Omaha Firemen

Lon Trosby, boss of the police baseball team, today announced the personnel of the nine that he expects to extinguish the firemen with their game at League park at 2 in the afternoon Decoration day for the benefit of disabled war veterans.

Look 'em over: Yost, catcher; McCoy, pitcher; Wheeler, first base; Craker, third base; Bosen, centerfield; T. Ryan, rightfield; Nelson, Sullivan and Fee, utility men.

Cop's Star Shines. McCoy, with a brilliant record as a semi-pro hurler behind him, is looked upon by the coppers as a certain puzzle to the firemen, as effectiveness will be increased by having Yost to receive. Yost is a Murphy-Did-It veteran. J. J. Ryan at shortstop once played with the Omaha team in the Western league and furnishes a clever starting point for a fast infield defense. In the 24th men that he had to choose from, Trosby and his assistants found a wealth of talent, a ball team in fact as well as name.

"Jovial Joe" Wavrin is assistant manager of the copper crew and also is utility man.

Cushion Foots in Lineup. The clash will bring into view three prominent police executives—Charles A. Van Deusen, chief of the detective department; Lieutenant Samuelson, and "Benjie" Danbaum, a star in the sleuthing world—all of whom are taking interest in police athletic activities.

Van Deusen is manager and Lieutenant Samuelson is captain of a Des Moines police department in Des Moines July 2. The baseball team will go there the same day to meet the Des Moines diamond coppers.

Danbaum is president of the Police Athletic association.

The tug-of-war team consists of Heller, Vance, Hokuif, Anderson and Charles Payne, all huskies.
