All-Star Bill Which Includes Beautiful Women, Leading Literary Lights (Including None Other Than Joseph Hergesbeimer With His Bright Shawl) and Oh, Yes!-Wallace Irwin Is To Be Among Those Radiantly Present

[By WILLIAM R. DURGIN]

TERE is a benefit performance of which the reader will do well to make note. I call it a "benefit" because the American public will benefit by this truly remarkable program; it includes such noted names as Joseph Hergesheimer, Booth Tarkington, Clarence Budington Kelland, Howard Chandler Christy, Frederick R. Gruger, Everett Shinn.

Just as talk was beginning to subside about Hergesheimer in connection with "Cytherea," along comes the shawl story which, as soon as it has had time to spread, will start anew the comments and criticisms on a very gifted, and very daring American writer.

But to revert to the big party:

The Cuban Who Knew Some Nice Girls

I wish I knew a little more about Charles Abbott's colorful past-or else had learned nothing. Only Mr. Hergesheimer can give you the whole story about Abbott, why he was without interest in Andres' allusion to the "nice girls"-or why he was in Havana at

I did get the whole story of the diamond, though, from Melville Davisson Post. He is on this double-bill of entertainment. He makes a pretty good living because of his firm belief in the epigram he stated thus: "The thing that keeps life keen is that you can never figure out what's ahead." I'll agree to that where Friend Post is concerned.

Some Back Fence Stuff

We'll meet Effie, sponsored by George Gibbs. It is Effie who breezes in with such observations as "Ain't we the helluva mess!" Only her delivery makes it sound like perfect rhetoric. No dull moments while Effie is about: ask her friend Cherry, who will be there, too.

Leave it to Jack Boyle to provide the thrill of the evening. This man's dramatic power is amazing. I wish I might give the bare outline of this new bit by Boyle, who surely registers true love and real hate. And E. Phillips Oppenheim, too, will be with us. He will bring Michael Sayre with him. But before you listen to Sayre, you will be told frankly that he is a criminal.

Everyone Is Invited

All this wonderful entertainment, the quality and quantity of which can only be hinted here, is in the June issue of The Red Book Magazine. Compressed between the covers of one magazine are big installments of four serial novels, nine sparkling complete short stories, three special features.

Ask the man or woman who doesn't have time to read all the magazines which one he or she really does read. Then get a copy and see if it isn't perfectly obvious why.

June issue on the news stands now. The price, 25 cents. The Red Book Magazine authors are headliners; all of them. Any story printed in The Red Book Magazine is good enough to be the feature story in any magazine.
