

Youth Accused of Robbery Tries to Murder Father

Los Angeles Lad Fires Three Shots at Parent Before Being Disarmed by Detectives.

By EDWARD DOHERTY.
Omaha Bee Staff Writer.

Los Angeles, May 28.—"My son, my son," Henry B. Day, millionaire manufacturer, sat with his head in his hands, moaning.

His son, Chester, 23, had just been taken away by three policemen. The boy had been clubbed, while the old man had looked on. And there were handcuffs on his wrists as he went out.

Raymond Shelton, a messenger for the Henry B. Day company, taking money from the bank to meet a payroll, was stopped by a young man who sprang upon the running board of the auto.

The man shoved a pistol in Shelton's side and the messenger handed over $500—all he had.

He described the robber minutely. Day called in the police. He had the boy describe the man again.

"Go Find Him,"
"Gentlemen," he said, "I believe this robber is my son that I have disinherited. I sent him to Australia some time ago. I wanted him to get away from my companions. They've ruined him. He was a good boy. But it seems he has come back."

The old man straightened up. "Go get him," he said.

Chester Day heard somehow that his father had put the detectives on his trail. He came hurriedly to his father's office. He had a gun in his hand. He fired. His father rose from his chair and cried, "Chester!"

The gun blazed again. "Chester, you wouldn't kill your father?"

Another shot. Detective Sergeant Edward Oker, just returning from the boy's room, swung open the door.

Day surrendered.

He fired five shots over Day's head, saving one bullet to use if he had to. Chester dropped his weapon and swung around, arms high in the air.

Oker lowered his revolver and the boy sprang at him. Oker clubbed him over the head with the butt of his gun, while the boy continued to fight. Other detectives entered the room. And while the old man looked on, in sorrow and agony, the young man was handcuffed, jerked off the floor, thrown roughly into a chair.

"You rob your father and you try to kill him."

Sergeant Oker was astounded. "Yes, I tried to kill him. But I didn't rob him. I shot at him because he accused me of it and because he squealed."

RADIO Good Points in Radio Receivers

Laymen in Wireless Game
Are Cautioned Against Unknown Makes.

Radio telephone receivers are similar to the ordinary home phone receivers in construction, except for details in design. The general principle of both are the same: a permanent magnet made of steel, is fitted with two soft iron pole pieces, each of which supports a coil of many turns of insulated copper wire. Near the ends of the pole pieces is supported a magnetic diaphragm, made of thin sheet iron.

Permanent Magnet.
The force of the magnet acting through the pole pieces normally bends the diaphragm slightly upward. Currents of electricity passing through the coils vary the effective strength of the magnet and consequently pull the diaphragm closer to the pole pieces, or releases it somewhat, according to the direction and strength of the current.

A radio telephone receiver should have a strong permanent magnet, a perfectly flat diaphragm without bends in it, and magnet coils wound with small copper wire to a resistance of between 1,500 and 3,000 ohms per pair of receivers. In purchasing receivers, the radio editor cautions the layman against head-pieces of unknown make.

SPARKS
Valley, Neb., has installed a powerful radio receiving set.

Many moving picture theaters throughout the middle west have installed receiving sets with loud speakers to catch the Omaha Grain Exchange concerts.

The Chicago, North Shore & Milwaukee railroad announces a "radio special" that will run between Chicago and Milwaukee during the radio show, June 21 to 25. A radio outfit will be placed in the baggage car. Mr. Shappert announces, so that messages can be received from Racine during the trip.

WIZ—Newark, N. J.—Westinghouse Co.
WLB—Minneapolis—University of Minnesota.
WIK—Indianapolis—Hamilton Mfg. Co.
WLV—Cincinnati—Crosby Mfg. Co.

Other stations will be listed in the radio columns of The Bee tomorrow.

Rollicking Fun in DeMolay Show

Blue and Gold Revue Keeps
Big Audience Continuously Entertained.

A revue of nine acts, ranging in variety from rollicking comedy to drama of tragic tension, kept a full house keyed to 100 per cent enjoyment for two and a half hours at the Brandeis theater. The performance was the "Blue and Gold Revue" presented by the Omaha chapter of the Order of the DeMolay boys.

The opening was a 20-minute entertainment by Billy Paynter's Minstrels, where William Kerr, stellar end, starred in "Mandy," the finale to the first part, and in "Mama Wouldn't Buy Me a Bow-Wow," with the chorus. The song followed, "Mama Wouldn't Buy Me an Elephant," featuring Homer Schell, who was well-received. "Roll Dem Bones," by the Keno quartet, consisting of Floyd Paynter, Eugene Maxwell, Clair Young and Paul Jordan, was one of the best in the act.

Leon H. Connell as Strickland in the drama "Finger of God," the one heavy act in the revue, did excellent work. He was assisted by Miss Alice Humbert and James G. Bowie.

A farce, "It Pays to Advertise," directed by Bertram Rhea, depicted a comic advertising agency, with chest players by the use of advertising.

SLEEPY-TIME TALES THE TALE OF SNOWBALL LAMB

CHAPTER XIV.
Teasing Uncle Jerry.

Farmer Green's flock of sheep had followed Snowball over the stone wall and back into the pasture. And

"The game's all right," the old lady said.

Soon every one of them was grazing again as if nothing had happened.

Now, Snowball was greatly pleased. It was the first time he had ever started that game called Follow My Leader. And there wasn't a sheep nor a lamb that hadn't gone chasing after him when he showed them the way.

Snowball saw many merry games ahead of him.

"I'll give them some good runs!" he promised himself.

And he did. Before that morning was over he led the flock up to the farthest corner of the pasture in a mad scramble. And before the afternoon was over he took them on a brisk run to the barn.

That made three times for the day. On each summer's day that followed Snowball played Follow My Leader often than he had the day before. So it happened that by the end of a week, when evening came, the older sheep were weary from all the running they had done, all the scrambling over the stone wall, for Snowball's favorite trick was to lead the sheep over the wall and into the tangle of raspberry bushes where Uncle Jerry Chuck lived.

Snowball had soon learned that there was nothing to fear over there. He discovered that it was the noise the flock made when leaping down upon the ledge that alarmed Uncle Jerry Chuck. Drowning in his underground chamber Uncle Jerry had thought there must be an earthquake. That was why his teeth chattered. That was why his nose twitched. When he peeped out of his doorway.

As soon as Snowball learned all this he took great pains to land upon the ledge as heavily as he could. He liked to hear Uncle Jerry Chuck's teeth chatter, he liked to see Uncle Jerry shiver; he liked the sound of Uncle Jerry's squeaky voice asking what was the matter.

So Snowball enjoyed his days in the pasture—or in and out of it. In fact he enjoyed them more than anybody else in the flock. For the others began to grow tired of being led helter-skelter in a headlong flight. And the old ones especially became annoyed because Snowball took them so often over the stone wall.

At last the old dame known as Aunt Nancy, all hung with great folds of thick fleecy wool, spoke her mind plainly to Snowball himself.

"You're making a nuisance of yourself," she told him. "In all my days I never knew another youngster—a mere lamb!—to lead the flock. And here you're making us run our legs off every day! When I was your age we children never started a game of Follow My Leader. We followed behind the rest of the flock."

"D—don't you like the game?" he stammered.

"The game's all right," the old lady said. "But nobody cares to play it a dozen times a day. And nobody enjoys having to clamber over the stone wall again and again. I just have to go along with the others."

Poor lady!

Coolidge Plays Wheel; Wins Box of Cigarets

Philadelphia, Pa., May 28.—Vice President Calvin Coolidge won 100 cigarettes and, incidentally, cheers from a group of young women at the Devon horse show and county fair when he paid a quarter for a spin at a wheel of fortune.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray or streaked, just an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use. It is called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre of your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it dardens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.

WAS A BROKEN-DOWN WOMAN

Then I Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Medicines

Donaldsonville, La.—"I write with pleasure to praise your medicine—Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—which has done so much to restore my health. I was a broken-down woman until my husband brought me a bottle of your Vegetable Compound and one of your Little Pink Pills. I took them and I feel like a new woman. I had been having pains every month and at intervals between was weak and seemed to be smothering at times, but in a week I felt like another woman. I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash. It did me a lot of good too. I cannot praise your medicines too much and will be more than glad to recommend them to any woman who is suffering from female troubles. You may print my testimonial as it is true."—Mrs. T. A. LANDRY, 612 Miss. St., Donaldsonville, La.

Note Mrs. Landry's words—"as it is true." Every letter recommending Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is genuine. It is a statement telling the merits of these medicines just as the women in your own neighborhood tell each other.
