Commission Agrees to Moratorium for 1922—Reparations Problem Given to Bankers.

Paris, June 1.—(By A. P.)—Approval by the reparations commission of the German reply to its ultimatum and the decision to grant Germany a provisional moratorium for the year 1922, have cleared the way for consideration of a loan by the international bankers' committee meeting here.

While in reparations circles it is thought there will be no disagreement, and that a loan of probably more than $1,000,000,000 will be arranged within a few weeks, there is a tendency in some quarters to fear that the bankers will be unable to find a solution reconciling the economic and political elements of the problem. The bankers' committee meets this afternoon.

Paris, June 1.—The fate of Germany and all that applies to Europe was placed squarely in the hands of J. Pierpont Morgan and his associates by the reparations commission yesterday.

The commission telegraphed its acceptance of the German promises for financial reform to Berlin last night. Its acceptance confirms the partial moratorium granted Germany for 1922 and clears the financial and political skies of Europe for months to come. The May 31 crisis is leading Europe into a new path of peace.

The reparations delegates, including the American, worked desperately from 10 in the morning until 10 at night, with only short intervals for luncheon and dinner, in studying the German offer word for word. Now they stand aside and the Morgan committee takes over the job.

Baynes Salls for U. S.

As the reparations problem is now shifted to the bankers, Col. Hugh A. Baynes of New Orleans, the legal adviser of the American reparations delegates, sailed to the Homeric yesterday for a month's vacation in America and Roland W. Boyden of Boston, the chief American delegate, is leaving in the middle of June to visit his mother. The bankers will now start their work in earnest. The way has been cleared for them by the promise of the German government to balance its budget and to stop printing money, which means the stabilization of the mark. Their adjournment was simply calculated to assure settlement.

William H. Westover, District Judge of Rushville, Neb., who is a candidate for the nomination for justice of the supreme court from the Sixth judicial district.

Dollar Gas Litigation in Lincoln Nears End

Lincoln, June 1.—(Special.)—The 16-year-old litigation between the city of Lincoln and the Lincoln Gas and Electric company over the dollar gas ordinance is now nearing a close, with the submission of briefs by the company opposing interest claims on first period rebates due to consumers. The total interest claims aggregate $100,000.

The company contends that acceptance of the first period rebates by consumers was final and that no interest on the claims can now be collected.

Improves Rural Routes

Washington, June 1.—(Special Telegram.)—The fourth assistant postmaster general announces the motor rural route service out of Elsie, Neb., will be run daily hereafter, instead of three times a week. Rural route No. 1, out of Bertrand has been extended to serve 10 additional families.

Iowa Primary Is Eagerly Watched in Washington

Politicians See Possibility of Rawson Getting Nomination Although Not Primary Candidate.

By GEORGE F. AUSTIER, Washington Correspondent Omaha Bee. Washington, June 1.—(Special Telegram.)—Political interest in Washington is centering on the Iowa primary of next Monday, which will name a candidate for senator to succeed Charles A. Rawson of Des Moines, named by Governor Kendall to succeed Senator W. S. Kenyon, recently appointed a federal judge.

As seen in Washington, the Iowa situation may result in the nomination of Senator Rawson, the present incumbent, although he is not a candidate in the primaries. The Iowa law requires that the winning candidate shall have 35 per cent of the votes cast, and if no candidate receives this number, the nomination goes to the convention.

Not in Primary.

When accepting the appointment, Senator Rawson said he would not be a candidate in the primaries, but made no pledge not to accept a nomination from a convention. There are six candidates in the field: Representative Burton E. Sweet of the Third district; Charles E. Fickett of Waterloo, also a resident of the Third district; Maj. Claude Stanley of Corning; Leslie Francis from the western part of the state, and Smith Brookhart, who was a strong candidate against Senator Cummins in the last senatorial election. Brookhart is a representative of the more radical element among the farmers.

Representative Sweet is the author of the legislation organizing soldier relief work in the war risk bureau. His soldier relief legislation has made him a strong favorite with service men, but he is opposed by a veteran in the person of Major Stanley.

Opposition in District.

The strength of the Third district, which would naturally go to Representative Sweet, will be divided with Pickett between whom and Mr. Sweet there is a feud. In spite of these handicaps, Mr. Sweet is looked upon as the strong man in the primary.

Senator Rawson, the present incumbent, is one of the most popular men in the state and is former Senator Kenn's close personal friend. If it were not for the fact that Senator Cummins lives in Des Moines, the residence of Senator Rawson, Iowa leaders say there is little doubt he would receive the nomination in the event none of the primary candidates polls the required 35 per cent, and in such an event may be nominated anyhow.

Candidate for U. S. Senate Opposes Protective Tariff

The tariff question seems to be one of the foremost issues of the day, according to a letter from Frank John, candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator, to R. B. Howell, also a candidate for the republican nomination for United States senator. John asserts he has declared frankly in a number of public addresses that he is opposed to a protective tariff on any commodity which does not involve elements of public health or national defense.

Airplanes Aiding in Hunt for Brown

The Ford roadster, bearing license number 2-8502 Nebraska, which was found at Krog park, was stolen from the house of J. C. Broady, private detective, 2335 Q street, Lincoln.

Broady had been working with the posse on the Brown manhunt all Tuesday night and went home Wednesday evening and returned at 2 a. m. parked his roadster with the top down behind his house.

Roadster Gone.

When he got up yesterday morning the roadster was gone. Leaders of the posse believe Brown took the car because Broady's house is in the heart of the district which they have been searching for the fugitive, and is but three blocks from the house at 2037 Q street, Lincoln, where the desperado staged a pistol duel with two officers Wednesday evening.

Then, too, residents of the house at 1114 and Twelfth street, Lincoln, just six blocks from the scene of the shooting, reported some cold ham and a bottle of milk had been stolen from their ice box during the night.

Report from Utica.

Chief of Detectives Van Deusen was notified by two traveling men that they had a blowout on the Lincoln Highway as they were motoring from Lincoln to Omaha yesterday morning and that a man in a Ford roadster with the top down passed them as they were repairing the tire.

When they completed the repairs, they speeded up and passed the same man in a Ford roadster, but with the top up this time.

Auto Stolen by Fiend Insured by Holdup Victim

Belief That Manacle Man Is Bandit Who Slew Siekens Reveals Interesting Fact.

Belief of Omaha detectives that Fred Brown, ex-convict and alleged manacle man of Benson, also is the bandit who slew Charles Sieken and his son, Robert, 16, in a Saturday night holdup, has brought forth an interesting fact which may or may not have anything to do with his later crimes.

The automobile, for the theft of which Brown was sent to the Nebraska state penitentiary, belonged to the Council Bluffs real estate firm of Day & Mayne, since changed to J. R. Day & Co.

Sieken Carried Insurance.

The insurance on this automobile was carried by Charles Sieken, representative for the Home Fire and Marine Insurance company, subsidiary to the Firemen's Fund company, which has offered $1,000 reward for the capture of Sieken's slayer.

Sieken, with Detective Charles Pipkin, caught Brown shortly after he had shot Detective Robert Samardick, who was trailing him on the auto theft charge.

A Ford car, found with two other cars at Brown's hangout, was partly identified by Sieken as the one stolen from Day & Mayne, but neither Jackson R. Day nor Don Mayne of the firm could identify it. The numbers and license had been changed and the car otherwise altered.

Another Car Found.

But further search revealed still another Ford at Brown's back, and this second car was identified positively as the Day & Mayne automobile.

Brown, who could have been prosecuted for shooting Samardick, preferred, however, to plead guilty to stealing this automobile and took a term in the penitentiary.

Lovett Denies N. Y. Bank Combine Controls U. S. Rails

Washington, June 1.—Charges that a "New York banking combine" dominates through interlocking directorates 82 per cent of the nation's railroads with 211,000 miles of track were denied before the senate interstate commerce committee today by Robert S. Lovett, chairman of the Union Pacific board. The charges were made recently before the committee by W. Jett Lauck, economist, for the railroad unions.

"I know the charge is absolutely untrue and consequently there is no real evidence to support it," Mr. Lovett declared. He also denied that banking interests control the Association of Railway Executives, of which he is a member.

Paul Barnes, Author of Songs, Dies Insane

New York, June 1.—That the Paul Barnes who died in Manhattan state hospital, Ward's island, May 8, insane, blind and a pauper, was the author of "Goodbye, Dolly Gray," the battle chant of the American soldiers and sailors in the war against Spain, became known today.

Barnes also was the author of many other songs once popular. Among some fifty are "Josephine, My Joe," "Down by the Riverside," "Dreaming," "Venetian Moon," and "Mammy Jenny's Lullaby."

Dan Daly, a noted variety actor sang himself to fame late in the 90's through a song entitled "You Won't Do," which Barnes composed for him while the two men walked 12 blocks down the roadway one afternoon.

The last appearance of Paul Barnes was in English music halls, just at the outbreak of the war. When he and his wife, who worked with him, returned to Broadway, they found themselves forgotten and soon, through worry, Barnes became insane.

Southern Melody Is Well Received

Negro Organizations Present Concert to Large Audience at City Auditorium.

The old southern melodies with all their touching appeal and rich harmony were given in instrumental and vocal music to a large audience by organizations under the auspices of the Colored Commercial club of Omaha at the City Auditorium Wednesday night.

When Miss Irene Cochran, contralto, assisted by a chorus of 100 voices under the direction of Rev. Russel Taylor, sang "Believe Me if All Those Endearing Young Charms," by Belle Adams, the audience thundered applause that was a tribute to their presentation.

But when Mrs. Mable Nelson and a double quartet sang "I Couldn't Hear Nobody Pray," arranged by Works, the audience heard negro melody at its best. An excellent soprano voice, Lena May Curry, was well received in "Love's Rapture," by Williams.

"Far Away in the South," by Adams, and "Swing Low, Sweet Chariot," arranged by Parks, sung by the St. Paul quartet, were full of touching Dixie melodies.

The program opened and closed with selections given by the Daniel Desdunes' band, the closing number being "Folks De Concert," by Desdunes himself.
